Southbridge mother-son duo returns to Falmouth

SOUTHBRIDGE — The Brain Injury Association of Massachusetts (BIA-MA) is pleased to announce it will be returning to compete in the 54th Annual ASICS Falmouth Road Race with Team BIA-MA on Sunday, Aug. 16. Team BIA-MA will have a total of 29 runners for this iconic race, which is an important annual fundraising and awareness event for the organization.

Both from Southbridge, Austan Bellefeuille and his mom, Karen Dmohowski, will hit the Falmouth start line together this year as mother and son: Bellefeuille, a brain injury survivor who sustained his injury in 2013 and is returning to the team for the second time, will run alongside Dmohowski, who first discovered BIA-MA online in the aftermath of her son's injury and has since become a passionate advocate, returning for her fifth year and second time running side-by-side with Austan; together, they embody the heart of Team BIA-MA — survivor and caregiver, showing up for a community that has shown up for them, while Karen also looks forward to reuniting with teammates from years past.

“We are excited and thankful for this incredible team of inspiring runners who are determined to accomplish their personal milestones while raising awareness for brain injury,” said BIA-MA Chief Executive Officer Nicole Godaire. “Each runner brings a powerful personal connection to brain injury, which makes their dedication even more meaningful and helps shine a light on the impact brain injury has on individuals, families, and communities.”

Though the Falmouth Road Race is not intended to solely be a charity race, the “Numbers for Nonprofits” Program allows nonprofit organizations like BIA-MA to both fundraise and participate. To support any of the Team BIA-MA runners in the 2026 ASICS Falmouth Road Race, please visit the team fundraising page. More information can also be found at biama.org/falmouthroadrace.

The Brain Injury Association of Massachusetts (BIA-MA) is the only organization in the state dedicated to improving the lives of those affected by brain injury while reducing its incidence and impact through advocacy, education, prevention, research, and support. Ruth Wells Center spotlights life and work of Michel Merle SOUTHBRIDGE — The Ruth Wells Center for the Arts, 111 Main St. in Southbridge, is excited to present a retrospective of the life and works of Michel Merle. The opening reception will be held Saturday, Aug. 8, 4-8 p.m. The galleries will then be open throughout the month Saturday and Sunday noon to 4 p.m. Please join us to celebrate his works, meet the artist and share refreshments in this historic setting. The artwork of Michel Duncan Merle serves as a vibrant and provocative crossroads where legendary artistic heritage meets decades of technical mastery.

A native Parisian born in 1937, Merle spent more than three decades as a Professor of Art at Worcester State University in Worcester, Massachusetts, where he taught generations of students to view creation through an alternative or philosophical lens.

Artistic practice and innovation run deeply in his veins: Merle is the son of artist and gallery owner, Ligoa Duncan, the grandson of artist and philosopher Raymond Duncan, and the great-nephew of modern dance pioneer and virtu-

Charlton Lions wrap up 2025-2026 year

CHARLTON — The Charlton Lions Club recently finished a busy spring season of serving their community.

In April, the Club participated in Charlton's Earth Day Clean-Up by collecting debris along Bond Road and, with The Overlook's Tree Advisory Committee, distributing 100 free sweet gum trees to Charlton residents who helped with the town clean-up. (The trees were contributed by Bartlett Tree Experts.)

In May, they repaired their bulletin sign board located at Ted's Liquor Store at the junction of Routes 20 and 31. The sign is once again available for rent to post your message. Contact: Dr. Carole Duquette at kikibo0808@gmail.com.

Also in May, the Club conducted a toll-road fundraiser at the intersection of Route 31 and North Main Street when they raised $889 for the Scholarship Fund.

And that month three $1,000 scholarships were awarded to local secondary school seniors: Nicholas E. Jalbert, son of James and Renee Jalbert, graduated from Bay Path Regional Bridget Nault is an accordion player, guitarist and singer out of Worcester. She is a Berklee educated musician who has appeared all over the state (and beyond) playing her original songs and performing solo and in different bands. Together this duo will play a selection of old-time and traditional songs spanning from the 16th century through the early 20th century, with a focus on the Scot, Irish and English music that was brought to Appalachia during that time period. Along with the music itself, Badger & Nault are passionate about the song histories, and will discuss the origins of the music they play throughout the performance. This program is supported by a grant from the Southbridge Cultural Council, a local agency funded by Massachusetts Cultural Council a state agency.

Shepherd Hill students hosting Tackle the Stigma 5K to promote mental health awareness

CHARLTON — The Shepherd Hill Regional High School cheerleading program, in partnership with the Dudley-Charlton Regional School District community, is inviting residents to lace up their running shoes and help break down barriers surrounding mental health during the annual Tackle the Stigma 5K and 2.5K Walk/Run on Saturday, Sept. 27.

The event will begin at 10 a.m. at the Shepherd Hill football field and is designed to raise awareness about mental health and mental wellness while encouraging open conversations throughout the local community.

Organizers hope participants of all ages will come together to demonstrate support for those facing mental health challenges and reinforce the message that no one has to struggle alone.

"This event is very important to us as we work to raise awareness about mental health and mental wellness throughout our local community," organizers said in announcing the event.

The walk and run carries the theme, "Run toward awareness, stand up for support, and tackle the stigma one mile at a time," reflecting its focus on education, compassion and community involvement.

Mental health advocates continue to emphasize the importance of reducing the stigma surrounding anxiety, depression and other mental health conditions, which can often prevent individuals from seeking help. Community events such as Tackle the Stigma aim to create a welcoming environment where conversations about mental wellness are encouraged and support resources are highlighted.

In addition to providing an opportunity for exercise and community engagement, the event serves as a reminder that mental health is an important part of overall well-being. Organizers hope the day will inspire participants to check in with friends, family members and neighbors while promoting a culture of understanding and acceptance.

The Shepherd Hill cheerleaders have made mental health awareness a priority, using the event to unite students, families, educators and community members around a common cause. By bringing together participants from across Dudley, Charlton and surrounding communities, they hope to build momentum for ongoing conversations that extend well beyond race day.

Whether participants choose the full 5-kilometer course or the shorter 2.5-kilometer walk/run, organizers say every step represents a commitment to supporting mental wellness and reminding those who may be struggling that help is available.

Registration information and additional event details are expected to be available through Shepherd Hill Regional High School and the Dudley-Charlton Regional School District as the event approaches.

Drought conditions prompt water restrictions

SOUTHBRIDGE/CHARLTON — The Massachusetts Drought Task for issues a Level -2 Significant Drought status for Worcester County. The Town of Southbridge now has to require that all Southbridge and Charlton water customers refrain from all outside water use except for handheld watering between the hours of 5 and 9 p.m. Please turn off all outside sprinkler systems.

This declaration from the State also applies to homes with private wells.

Certain water uses are not subject to restrictions such as production of food and fiber, health and safety reasons, maintenance of livestock, and core functions of a business (for example irrigation for a nursery).

For the general public's information, Currently the Southbridge Water Departments reservoir system is at 100.1 percent of total capacity. This is within our historical average for this time of year.

The declaration is a county wide declaration, and not due to any current water storage shortfalls within the Southbridge Water Department. This declaration is part of new laws and regulations put forth by the State legislature, and enforcement went into effect in April of 2025.

To be clear, the Southbridge Water department is not experiencing any water storage shortages currently.

The declaration of Level- 2 significant drought will remain in effect until the State Drought Task Force deems that the conditions within Worcester County have returned to acceptable levels.

More information can be found at <https://www.mass.gov/orgs/drought-management-task-force>

Please feel free to contact the Southbridge Water Department at 508-764-3207 if you have any questions or concerns.

Building on strength
while looking ahead

Economic reports are often filled with percentages, charts and statistics that can be easy to overlook. Yet every number tells a story about the people who choose to invest, work, shop and build a future in a community. Sturbridge’s latest economic review offers encouraging signs that the town continues to be a place where businesses want to grow, while also reminding us that success requires continued attention and planning.

One of the clearest takeaways is stability. Restaurant spending climbed from $80 million in 2024 to $86 million in 2025, and this year’s numbers appear to be on pace to remain strong. That is welcome news for a town whose identity has long been tied to hospitality. From locally owned restaurants to hotels, specialty shops and attractions, tourism remains a cornerstone of the local economy.

Retail also tells an encouraging story. Business turnover is a natural part of any healthy commercial district, and Sturbridge has largely replaced every storefront that closed over the past two years with new enterprises. Since 2024, 23 businesses have opened while 19 have closed. That is not evidence of decline. It is evidence of an economy that continues to attract entrepreneurs willing to take a chance on the community.

The diversity of those businesses also matters. While food and beverage establishments remain the largest sector, Sturbridge continues to support specialty retailers, health and wellness businesses and personal services. A varied business community creates resilience. It gives residents more choices and encourages visitors to spend more time, and more dollars, in town.

Perhaps the biggest reason for optimism comes from the manufacturing sector. Photonis USA’s decision to expand its operations in Sturbridge with a $15 million to $20 million investment and the creation of 25 new jobs demonstrates confidence in the community’s workforce and business climate. Manufacturing jobs often provide stable careers while generating economic activity that extends well beyond a single company.

Likewise, R.W. Beckett’s investment in transforming the former Heal Dispensary building into a modern training center reflects another important trend. Companies increasingly seek communities where they can educate employees, host customers and establish long-term roots. The thoughtful dedication of the facility in memory of longtime employee Jeff Rozga also reminds us that successful businesses are about more than profits. They are built on people, loyalty and shared values.

Tourism promotion has evolved dramatically over the past decade, and Sturbridge has adapted. Through coordinated digital marketing efforts and the Experience Sturbridge campaign, the town is reaching hundreds of thousands of potential visitors each year. Today’s travelers often discover destinations online long before they arrive. Maintaining a strong digital presence is no longer optional. It is essential.

Still, no community can afford complacency. Hotel revenues are currently trailing last year’s pace, reminding us that economic trends can shift quickly. Competition from neighboring destinations remains strong, and consumer habits continue to change. Continued investment in infrastructure, attractive commercial areas, special events and quality-of-life amenities will help ensure that visitors continue choosing Sturbridge.

The numbers presented to the Planning Board are encouraging because they reflect years of deliberate effort by town officials, business owners, civic organizations and residents working toward common goals. Economic success rarely happens by accident. It grows through partnerships, thoughtful planning and a willingness to adapt.

Sturbridge has every reason to be proud of its progress. The challenge now is to build on that momentum, welcoming new investment while preserving the character that has made the town a destination for generations. That balance between growth and tradition has always been one of Sturbridge’s greatest strengths, and it remains the foundation for its future.

OPINION

Build confidence in your 401(k) decisions

NIELSEN

In its simplest form, saving can mean putting money into a jar, adding to it and letting it grow slowly. A 401(k), or other workplace retirement plan, is a step beyond that. It's more like a garden than a jar. Once you understand the basics of your 401(k), it becomes easier to feel confident in your decisions.

In a jar, your money only grows when you add more. In a garden, what you plant can begin to grow on its own. Your investments can earn returns, and those returns may in turn earn additional returns. That's called compounding, and it can have a meaningful impact over time. Like a garden, however, growth is not guaranteed. Markets can rise and fall, and investments can lose value.

Most workplace retirement plan contributions are made with pre-tax dollars, which lowers today's taxable income; you'll pay taxes when you withdraw it in retirement. Some plans also offer a Roth option: you contribute after-tax dollars and withdrawals in retirement can be tax free. Your plan administrator can provide more information.

Many 401(k) plans include an employer match, either up to a set dollar amount, perhaps $500, or a percentage of your salary, typically 3–5 percent. Contributions you make, as well as those from your employer, can grow over time. Try to contribute at least enough to capture the full match; anything less means you're leaving money on the table.

Now the question is how to invest your contributions inside your 401(k). The menu of investment options may seem complicated, but most fall into a few common categories.

• Stock or equity funds focus on stocks, which represent ownership in companies. Because they're tied to company performance, they have the potential for higher growth over time, but their value can go up and down in the short term. When you're decades from retirement, that short-term volatility matters less; you have time to ride out the swings.

• Bond funds invest in loans made to governments or corporations. These tend to be more stable than stock funds but typically grow more slowly. They can help balance the ups and downs.

• Balanced or blended funds hold a mix of stocks and bonds in a single investment.

• Target-date funds combine different types of investments in one fund. As you move toward a specified retirement year, the fund gradually adjusts to focus more on stability and less on growth.

The earlier you start planting, the more time your money must grow. Even small contributions early in your career can end up as large amounts later, simply because they had more time to compound.

If you change jobs, keep in mind that your employer's contributions may not be fully yours immediately. It depends on your plan's vesting schedule, so it's worth checking before you go.

The most important steps in a retirement plan are getting started, contributing consistently and taking advantage of what your plan offers. With a little knowledge, you can feel more confident moving forward. The garden is yours. Start planting.

The empty parking space

LANTERNS ALONG
MAIN STREET
By CHARLES

I pulled into a crowded parking lot last week and did what most of us do. I started looking for the closest available space. There wasn't one. So I circled once. Still nothing.

By the second lap, I noticed something interesting. Every driver seemed to be doing exactly what I was doing. We were all hunting for the perfect spot while dozens of perfectly good spaces sat empty just a little farther away. I finally gave up, parked near the edge of the lot, and walked. It took all of about 45 seconds.

By the time I reached the front door, several of the cars that had passed me were still circling. It made me wonder why we're so determined to save a few extra steps.

When we were kids, walking wasn't something we tried to avoid. We'd think nothing of hiking across a field to visit a friend or riding a bicycle halfway across town because someone said there might be a pickup baseball game.

Now many of us will spend five minutes searching for a parking place that saves us 30 seconds of walking. I'm as guilty as anyone.

There's something strangely satisfying about finding that front-row space. It feels like winning a prize, even though the prize is usually a walk that's shorter than the average television commercial. The funny part is what happens when you park farther away. You notice things.

You see flowers planted along the sidewalk that you would have driven right past. You hear conversations instead of engines. You notice the small independent businesses tucked between larger stores. Sometimes you even run into someone you haven't seen in years because you're both walking instead of rushing from one door to another.

Those extra few steps become part of the outing instead of something to be avoided. I suppose that's true of a lot of life.

We're always looking for shortcuts. Faster internet. Faster checkout lines. Faster shipping. Faster routes around traffic. We measure success by how quickly we can get from one thing to the next.

But not everything improves by speeding it up. Some conversations are worth lingering over. Some roads are worth taking because they're scenic instead of efficient. Some Saturday mornings deserve to unfold without constantly checking the clock.

Living in New England reminds us of that every season. Nobody hurries through the first blaze of autumn color. People stop to watch a fresh snowfall. We pull over for covered bridges and scenic overlooks even when we're already running a little late.

Those moments aren't productive by any measurable standard. They're simply enjoyable. Maybe that's why I didn't mind the longer walk after all.

The parking lot gave me a few extra minutes outside on a pleasant afternoon. I watched a family loading pumpkins into the back of a pickup. An older couple strolled toward the garden center without seeming to be in any hurry. A little boy proudly carried a loaf of bread that was almost as long as his arm.

None of those moments would have registered if I'd found that perfect parking space. I still like parking close to the door. Old habits don't disappear overnight. But every now and then, the best spot in the lot isn't the closest one. It's the one that reminds us slowing down is sometimes the shortest path to enjoying the day.

TO THE EDITOR

A garden that grows community

To the Editor:

I've spent the past several weeks helping to rebuild the Sturbridge Community Food Collaborative's Web site. In the process, I found myself reading through the organization's timeline—a year-by-year, month-by-month record of what has happened since the project began in 2017.

I expected a list of planting dates, harvest totals and volunteer schedules. Instead, I found the story of a community.

The Community Food Collaborative didn't simply appear one spring. It began with an idea from local architect Joe Coan, who envisioned a community garden dedicated to growing fresh, organic vegetables for local food pantries. He brought that vision to the Rotary Club of Sturbridge, which embraced the concept and, together with the Rotary Club of Southbridge, established a Rotary Community Corps to turn the idea into reality.

Nearly a decade later, it's clear that Joe's vision took root in more ways than one. What started as one person's idea has become a community effort involving hundreds of volunteers, countless acts of generosity and thousands of pounds of fresh produce for local families.

Of course, every successful garden also needs people who know how to make things grow. Head gardener Roberta Watson, along with the other experienced gardeners who have shared that responsibility over the years, has provided the knowledge, patience and leadership that have kept the garden productive season after season.

What becomes obvious after reading the timeline is that this garden belongs to everyone. Volunteers have come and gone over the years, but the commitment hasn't changed. Community members have donated vegetable plants, gardening supplies and gently used tools. Local companies have provided financial support. Students from our regional high school have built raised beds, constructed a work shed and earned community service hours while learning that helping others is rewarding in its own right. Week after week, volunteers simply keep showing up.

The timeline is filled with the kinds of entries you would expect from any serious gardener.

A late-season nor'easter threatens newly planted vegetables, so volunteers rush out to protect them. A heat wave arrives, and watering becomes the priority. Rain forces work sessions to be canceled. New raised beds replace aging ones. Tomatillos appear. Squash is harvested. Chives and scallions are delivered to the St. John Paul II Food Pantry.

Then there are the entries that make you smile. The rabbit is back. Bees have moved into the work shed. A hungry woodchuck has discovered the vegetables. Anyone who has ever tended a garden understands those entries immediately. What impressed me most wasn't any single accomplishment. It was the persistence.

Gardens don't care about calendars. Tomatoes don't stop ripening because it's Father's Day. Squash doesn't wait until the volunteers have a free afternoon. If the work needs to be done, someone simply shows up to do it.

And they have—for nearly a decade.

By my rough estimate, it takes nearly 800 volunteer hours each year to keep this garden operating. That's almost twenty full-time workweeks donated by people who simply believe fresh vegetables belong on every family's table.

Every year, those volunteers produce more than 3,000 pounds of fresh, organically grown vegetables for local food pantries. That's an impressive harvest.

But after reading the timeline, I came away convinced there's another harvest taking place here, one that's a little harder to measure. Every season, the garden also grows volunteers, friendships and a stronger sense of community.

If you'd like to read the Community Food Collaborative's complete timeline, from its founding in 2017 through today, you'll find it at cfcgarden.org/timeline. It's well worth the few minutes it takes to read. I suspect you'll come away with the same appreciation I did for the volunteers whose quiet work has been nourishing our community since 2017. And you may just decide to join them.

Hitchcock’s Summer Concert Series rocks Brimfield Town Common on Wednesday evenings

BRIMFIELD — The Hitchcock Summer Concert Series sponsored by Country Bank will take place on Wednesdays, 6 to 8 p.m., through Aug. 19 on the Brimfield Town Common. In the case of rain, concerts will move to Thursday. A food truck will be on site at each event. Picnics are also welcome; chairs and blankets are encouraged.

The series kicks off on July 1 with Woodshed, bringing Acoustic Folk, Country & Americana. Members Jason Wood of Brimfield, along with A.J. Kiernan, Karen Gallant, and Mike St. Germain are four musical friends who found each other through a love of music and mutual admiration, and are known for their signature three-part harmony. BT’s Smokehouse will be on site.

Aug. 5 brings the Brimfield debut of The Willies - a popular, community-focused classic rock and Americana band based out of Belchertown. The band performs across the Western Mass region, playing high-energy hits from the 1950s through the 1980s, modern country, and rock standards. Flippin’ the Bird BBQ returns for this concert.

Long-time series favorite CobbleStone Road of Connecticut returns on August 12th with high-energy country. Well-known throughout the region for playing modern and classic country hits from the 1990s to today, their energetic style mixes classic country with rock and blues.

Smashing Patties will have their concert series debut this evening.

The series closes out on Aug. 19 with Hard Knox, a Westfield, Massachusetts-based party rock and cover band known for their high-energy shows and “forgotten classics” setlist. Instead of regular cover tunes, they play unique, underappreciated gems from the ‘70s and ‘80s, making them a fixture in the Western Mass and Northern Connecticut music scenes. BT’s Smokehouse will return to bookend this year’s food truck lineup.

In addition to Presenting Sponsor Country Bank, this program is supported in part by a grant from the Brimfield Cultural Council, a local agency which is supported by the Mass Cultural Council.

Robyn Kennedy; State Rep. James O’Day; Assistant Secretary Robert LePage of the Massachusetts Executive Office of Education; Worcester Mayor Joseph Petty; QCC Student Trustee Dawit Quilty and Craig Skurka, operations manager for Gilbane Building Company.

The event featured a ceremonial beam signing and remarks from Pedraja; State Sen. Robyn Kennedy; State Rep. James O’Day; Worcester Mayor Joseph Petty; Assistant Secretary Robert LePage of the Massachusetts Executive Office of Education; Deputy Commissioner Dr. Richard Riccardi of the Massachusetts Department of Higher Education; Commissioner Adam Baacke of the Massachusetts Division of Capital Asset Management and Maintenance (DCAMM); and Craig Skurka, operations manager for Gilbane Building Company.

"The raising of the beam is a moment for us to give gratitude and thank those who have stepped up to make this a reality," Kennedy said. "As you join into the growing skyline of Worcester, we continue to grow with you. By signing our names to these beams, we are signing our commitment to make sure the school continues to be successful."

The Topping Off Ceremony commemorated the progress of the $37.4 million renovation and expansion project, which is transforming a 1960s-era athletic facility into a modern, accessible hub for learning, workforce development and student life.

Upon completion, the 57,000-square-foot facility will feature advanced manufacturing and robotics laboratories, hospitality training spaces, flexible classrooms and revitalized athletic facilities. The project also includes significant upgrades to aging infrastructure and accessibility improvements designed to create a more inclusive and welcoming environment for all students.

"This project is so important to the mission and vision of Quinsigamond Community College, the region it serves and the Commonwealth," Riccardi said. "We know that holistic student success incorporates curricular and co-curricular initiatives, and this project provides the infrastructure to check both of those boxes."

Speakers highlighted the collaborative partnership among the college, the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, and project stakeholders that have made this investment possible.

"It is a necessity that we continue to improve our community college environments," O’Day said. "The legislature has made it very clear that not only is higher ed important, but certainly the community college segment is equally as important. It’s been an honor to be able to represent the college."

While the majority of the renovation is funded by DCAMM, the project reflects the type of transformational campus investment envisioned through the Commonwealth's BRIGHT Act (An Act to Build Resilient Infrastructure to Generate Higher Education Transformation). The statewide initiative is designed to support modernization of public higher education facilities.

"I want to thank our legislative partners for championing the BRIGHT Act to date and hopefully getting it across the finish line so we can keep doing impactful projects like this one," Baacke said. "As someone whose parents both worked at community colleges, I know there are few things we do that are more important in changing the lives of residents across the Commonwealth than what community colleges do every day."

Designed to achieve LEED Gold certification, the facility will support improved energy performance, enhanced indoor air quality and long-term sustainability goals.

"Buildings like this bring jobs to your community – great-paying opportunities for advancement. We are looking forward to continuing to make these investments. They are about the future of the economy," LePage said.

Skurka recognized the efforts of the construction team and project partners in reaching the milestone safely and efficiently.

"Today's event celebrates a significant construction milestone and the many people and partnerships helping us bring this project to life," Skurka said. "At Gilbane, we are committed to creating healthy, safe and sustainable spaces that have a lasting effect on the community. We are honored to partner with QCC on this transformative project."

The QCC Center is expected to open in Fall 2027 and will serve as a centerpiece of the college's campus, creating new opportunities for hands-on learning, workforce training and community engagement.

"When we look at this structure, we aren’t just looking at steel beams and concrete; we’re looking at the literal framework of Worcester’s economic future," said Petty. "True progress means lifting everyone up. By expanding physical accessibility and producing state-of-the-art, energy-efficient systems, QCC is ensuring our green energy and equity goals move forward."

Worcester Youth Leadership Institute kicks off 13th year

WORCESTER — While many students traditionally have headed off to summer vacations, for the past 13 years, some area high school and college students have participated in the Worcester Youth Leadership Institute.

The program offers students a six-week learning experience which exposes them to a variety of Worcester businesses, industries, and mentors. The Institute is a part of a broader effort by the Worcester Regional Chamber of Commerce to develop and mentor Worcester's future leaders.

The Institute is a partnership between the Worcester Chamber, MassHire Central Workforce Board, The United Way of Central Massachusetts, Worcester Community Action Council, and the City of Worcester's Youth Opportunities Office, and DPH, with support from Massport and National Grid, sponsors of the 2026 program.

"The goal is simple — expose Worcester's young people to the myriad of businesses, leaders, mentors, and possibilities available in their own communities," said Timothy Murray, president and CEO of the Worcester Chamber. "These youth are our future leaders. We want them to know and understand their community can offer them a unique college experience and fascinating job opportunities, and provide insight and perspective on the city's history, leadership, business community, and government make-up."

The Institute identified 25 youth, ages 15 – 21, some who are participating in the city's YouthWorks employment program, and others who applied on their own to be a part of the program. The program runs from July 10 to August 14 introduces the participants to the business, government, education, and nonprofit sectors in a variety of ways including talks and question-and-answer sessions with the leadership structures of various sectors and organizations. Topics will include career exploration as well as leadership focus areas from the Worcester fabric, such as entrepreneurship, economic development, public health, and non-profit organizations.

The program launched in 2014 after conversations between Tim Murray, George Smith and Ron Scott from United Families for Change, Worcester Mayor Joseph Petty, City Manager Edward Augustus, and City Councilors Philip Palmieri and Sarai Rivera. All of the partner organizations came together and have graduated more than 200 students over the past 12 years. For the past 10 summers, the program was facilitated by Walter Jovel, whose passion for mentoring young people and commitment to helping students discover their potential made a lasting impact on hundreds of participants. Walter passed away unexpectedly in May, and the 2026 Worcester Youth Leadership Institute is dedicated to continuing his legacy of service and leadership.

Town Administrator Robin Grimm along with Town Planner Jean Bubon worked closely with state economic officials and Photonis executives on a retention expansion assistance package. Photonis will be creating 25 new jobs and investing $15 to $20 million in this project. Photonis will be occupying space in 660 Main Street which is currently under construction as a 40,000 square foot building.

Adding to all of these good news items is that the Ohio based corporation R.W. Beckett recently renovated the former Heal Dispensary building into a first class training center. R.W. Beckett is an 88 year old business that manufactures a variety of HVAC products. It is estimated that Beckett products are in 50 million American homes. The President and CEO of R.W. Beckett, Kevin Beckett, attended the Sturbridge ribbon cutting and thoughtfully dedicated this center for Jeff Rozga, a 45-year Beckett employee who passed away after a courageous battle with cancer. Members of the Rozga family were in attendance. Sturbridge is very appreciative of the investment made by R.W. Beckett and the human values they represent as a business. This center will attract many visitors to Sturbridge for their training sessions.

Marketing and promoting Sturbridge Since 2022, the Sturbridge Tourist Association has retained the tourism marketing firm Tap Into Travel to promote Sturbridge through the Experience Sturbridge web site, Facebook, Instagram and seasonal digital marketing campaigns. Since 2024 there have been 39,000 to 57,000 visitors to the website annually. Online advertising campaigns reached 250,000 viewers in 2025. These figures reflect that reach and depth of digital messaging.

Master Masons gather for pig roast

BY BRO. JIMMY FALZONE
MAJOR GENERAL SALEM TOWNE LODGE
SOUTHBRIDGE

OXFORD — On Saturday, Aug. 1, the Oxford Masonic Lodge parking lot welcomed Master Masons, their families, and friends from the 24th Masonic District for a family-friendly pig roast.

From left, Brother Clay Tull, Brother Fred Aubin III with the apple in his mouth, Dave Mackenzie, and Brother Fred Aubin, Jr. kneeling are Jamiesin Miller and Jeff Trainor. The group smiles after successfully removing the pig from the grill and placing it on the table before carving and serving it to guests.

of Major General Salem Towne Lodge in Southbridge hosted the event. With help from Brother Aubin's son and friends, Brother Aubin and Brother Tull began cooking the nearly 110-pound pig at 7 a.m. It took about eight hours to cook fully. The aroma filled the air as guests enjoyed pork butts, BBQ chicken, corn on the cob, pasta salad, potato salad, cornbread, coleslaw, baked beans, and more. Proceeds will support lodge needs and scholarship funds.

The day was filled with laughter, children playing, and the camaraderie and fellowship of Freemasonry, bringing together brethren from lodges across the 24th Masonic District with their families and friends. To learn more about Freemasonry, visit www.massfreemasonry.org to find a lodge near you.

41st Valley Friendship Tour raises nearly $110,000 for Open Sky Community Services

Courtesy Photo

Worcester-based nonprofit Open Sky Community Services brought together over 250 participants for its 41st annual Valley Friendship Tour fundraiser. The community event, for all ages and abilities, was held on June 6 in Whitinsville to support Open Sky's programs throughout Central Massachusetts.

WORCESTER — The 41st annual Valley Friendship Tour drew more than 250 participants who walked, ran, and rolled through the Blackstone Valley on June 6 and raised nearly $110,000 to benefit Open Sky Community Services, a nonprofit behavioral health and human services organization.

The Valley Friendship Tour, which starts and ends at Alternatives' Whitin Mill, is Open Sky's signature fundraising event for the agency's nearly 150 programs serving children, adults, and families with mental health challenges, intellectual and developmental disabilities, substance use disorders, brain injury, homelessness and other complex challenges. Since it began just over four decades ago, the tour has raised millions in support of individuals and families in Central Massachusetts.

"The Valley Friendship Tour is a visual representation of Open Sky's mission – individuals of all abilities coming together in the community with purpose," said Ken Bates, President & CEO of Open Sky Community Services. "We are grateful to this community that has been created over the past four decades and for its unwavering support of our neighbors throughout Central Massachusetts facing complex challenges. Thank you to our participants, attendees, sponsors, and staff for making this year's Tour another one to remember."

Teresa Pitaro, a resident of Norwood who has a family member served by Open Sky, was the top fundraiser for the fifth year in a row. She raised nearly $7,000 for the 2026 Valley Friendship Tour.

The individual and team participants of all ages and abilities had the option of a 1-mile walk, 5K run or walk, or a 30-mile bike ride through the Blackstone Valley. The all-day event featured lunch, live music, raffles, and entertainment on the Dennis H. Rice Community Plaza at Alternatives' Whitin Mill.
