Home of the Brave race brings community together in support of Sturbridge veterans

STURBRIDGE — Runners, walkers, volunteers and community supporters gathered at the Sturbridge Town Common on Saturday, Nov. 7 for the 2026 Home of the Brave 5K Race (HOTB), continuing a local tradition of supporting Sturbridge veterans.

Presented by the Sturbridge Special Events Committee, the annual walk and recorded nearly 160 runners with many friends, families and neighbors. Despite morning drizzle, the event brought neighbors together ahead of Veteran's Day to recognize military service and contribute to a cause close to home.

A special moment was the posthumous presentation of a community service award honoring George Berry, a longtime Sturbridge resident, Marine Corps veteran who served in the Korean War, and member of the Sturbridge Board of Health for more than 30 years. The award was accepted by the son of George Berry.

Race revenues generated by the nearly 160 runners totaled out to $4,838. These funds will be placed into the Town's Veteran's Fund.

The 2027 Home of the Brave Race will be Saturday, Nov. 6.

The race reflected the efforts of a broad community team which included Race Director Seth Mansur along with Pam Mills from Red Door Realty. Organizers thanked many who worked to make this event a success. These included our Police and CERT safety volunteers and DPW staff along with town resident volunteers. Organizers extend their appreciation to every runner, walker, volunteer and supporter who helped carry the event's mission forward.

The Web site www.thankyou5k.com now offers information on the 2027 HOTB Race which will be Saturday, Nov. 6, 2027. Plans are underway to add new exercise and competitive features to the 2027 race.

Southbridge Lions Club announces Steve Ide Memorial Toy Drive

SOUTHBRIDGE — The Southbridge Lions Club, in partnership with the Southbridge Police Department's Cops N Kids Program, is once again sponsoring the Steve Ide Memorial Toy Drive to help bring some holiday cheer to children and families in the Southbridge community.

This annual effort provides holiday gifts to children whose families could use a little extra assistance during the Christmas season. Through the continued cooperation of the Lions Club and the Southbridge Police Department, the program helps make the holidays a little brighter for local children.

Applications for the 2026 Toy Drive are now available at the Southbridge Police Department. Families wishing to participate may pick up an application at the department or download and print a copy from the Southbridge Lions Club Facebook page.

The deadline for submitting completed applications is Thursday, Dec. 10. All applications must be returned to the Southbridge Police Department, and a copy of photo identification is required.

Toy distribution will take place on Wednesday, Dec. 16, from 3 to 6 p.m. at 25 Cole Ave. in Southbridge.

Families with specific questions about the program may contact Deputy Chief Jose Dingui at the Southbridge Police Department.

The Southbridge Lions Club encourages residents to help spread the word about the Toy Drive so that families who may benefit from the program are aware of the opportunity.

The Steve Ide Memorial Toy Drive is another example of what can be accomplished when local organizations work together to serve their community. Through this continuing partnership, the Southbridge Lions Club and the Southbridge Police Department hope to make the holiday season a little more joyful for children throughout Southbridge.

Local DAR members honor Revolutionary War patriots, headline Historical Society's final 2026 program

SOUTHBRIDGE — With the nation's 250th anniversary of independence, local members of the Daughters of the American Revolution (DAR) marked Veterans Day with a meaningful tribute to Revolutionary War patriots and an evening dedicated to preserving the history and ideals of America's founding.

The day of remembrance began Wednesday morning, Nov. 11, at the Old Burial Ground in Sturbridge, where Dr. Adelina N. Healy, her daughter, Anne Marie Safaee, and Sylvia Gamache gathered to honor the 77 Revolutionary War patriots buried at the historic cemetery.

For the three women, the observance carried special significance. Among those remembered was their Revolutionary War ancestor, Aaron Allen, whose service in the cause of American independence represents a deeply personal connection to the nation's founding. Their visit offered an opportunity not only to pay tribute to those who helped secure America's freedom, but also to preserve the memory of the generations whose sacrifices shaped the country's history.

The spirit of remembrance continued that evening when the Southbridge Historical Society welcomed the community to its final public program of the 2026 season at The Arts Center on Main Street.

Beginning at 7 p.m., Dr. Healy and Safaee presented a joint program titled "The History and Purpose of the Daughters of the American Revolution." The mother-daughter team introduced attendees to the organization's origins, historical significance, and continuing mission as a nonprofit, nonpolitical, volunteer women's service organization.

Their presentation explored the DAR's commitment to historic preservation, education, and patriotic service, while explaining the organization's genealogical membership requirements. Prospective members must establish a documented line of direct descent from an ancestor who provided qualifying service in support of American independence during the Revolutionary War.

The presentation was particularly timely as communities across the country commemorate the United States Semiquincentennial—the 250th anniversary of the Declaration of Independence. The program provided an opportunity to reflect on the individuals, families, and communities whose

Charlton Knights & Lions clean up intersection

CHARLTON — The Charlton Knights of Columbus and The Charlton Lions Club joined forces on Saturday, Nov. 14 to clean up the traffic islands at the intersection of Routes 31 and 20.

Wielding hand tools, shovels, brooms and rakes, ten members of the two organizations pulled and dug out weeds from the cracks and crevices and raked and swept up organic debris as well as broken glass and plastic and car parts as well as countless cigarette butts. Cars and trucks whizzed or rumbled by while the safety vest-clad volunteers filled and carted off several trash bags. The islands were left looking much like they would have soon after installation.

The Knights and Lions groups both have a mission to serve their community and enjoyed working together to beautify one corner of Charlton.

Community Fridge offers free food at Charlton Federated Church

CHARLTON — The Federated Church of Charlton (FCC) has opened a community fridge or refrigerator and shed to provide food and other household items to anyone in need.

The concept is simple: people take what they need and share what they can. The main purpose of community fridges is to reduce food insecurity, while also mitigating food waste. The FCC Community Fridge is in a grey shed next to the church parking lot. It is open 24 hours, seven days a week.

"Our community fridge complements other food programs in our community, such as the Charlton Chip-In Food Pantry. Our program allows people to access free, nutritious fresh foods, and household items at any time," said Elizabeth Moran, chair of the FCC diaconate. "We understand that people can feel embarrassed when they are in need. Our program allows people to acquire resources anonymously. There is no sign-in or registration. Simply come and take what you need, when you need it."

The Federated Church of Charlton hopes to work with organizations, businesses and individuals to fill the community fridge and shelves. Acceptable foods include: all produce, unopened frozen foods, breads and pastries, prepackaged frozen dinners, milk, cheese, eggs, non-perishable goods, home cooked meals. Please label each meal with the ingredients. Clear packaging is preferred. Foods that are unacceptable include: moldy fruits, vegetables, and bread and previously opened foods. The FCC also accepts household items such as canned goods, boxed foods, soap and shampoo, paper supplies, toothpaste, and shaving supplies.

For more information, please call the church at 508-248-5550 or email emoran3@charter.net or office@fed-church.org.

Gateway Players announce auditions for "The Curious Incident of the Dog in the Night-time"

SOUTHBRIDGE — Gateway Players Theatre in Southbridge is hosting auditions for "The Curious Incident of the Dog in the Night-Time," adapted by Simon Stephens, based on the novel by Mark Haddon, music composed by Matt Friedman.

Auditions will be held on Monday, Dec. 14 and Tuesday, Dec. 15 from 6:30-8:30 p.m. (you only have to attend one), in Fellowship Hall at Elm Street Congregational Church, 61 Elm St. Auditions will consist of cold readings from the script, a little improv and a short movement routine led by our choreographer. No need to sign up or prepare anything, but if you have a resume please bring a copy with you.

Rehearsals will be Sunday afternoons and Monday and Wednesday evenings officially beginning after the first of the year. Please bring a list of conflicts to auditions (attendance for tech week and all performances is required). Performances will be held March 12, 13, 19 & 20 at 7:30 p.m. and March 21 at 2 p.m. Directed by Mikey Dearn, Produced by Stephen Jean, Choreographer: Valerie Langlais and Stage Manager: Erin Morin.

For more information, please contact Gateway at 508-764-4531. Presented by permission through special arrangement with Concord Theatricals, A Dramatists Play Service Title. There are 10 roles in the play (five male identifying characters and five female identifying characters) and all characters speak with a British accent. Actors must be at least 18 years old to audition with the exception of those auditioning for the role of Christopher (who can be 14 or older). We welcome performers of all genders, identities and ethnicities to audition whether they are newcomers or veterans to the stage.

Fifteen-year-old Christopher stands beside his neighbor Mrs. Shears' dead dog. It has been speared with a garden fork, it is seven minutes after midnight, and Christopher is under suspicion. He records each fact in the book he is writing to solve the mystery of who murdered Wellington the dog.

Christopher has an extraordinary brain and is exceptional at math, but he is ill-equipped to interpret everyday life. He has never ventured alone beyond the end of his road, he detests being touched and he distrusts strangers. But Christopher's detective work, forbidden by his father, takes him on a frightening journey that turns his world upside-down.

Simon Stephens' adaptation of Mark Haddon's bestselling, award-winning novel "The Curious Incident of the Dog in the Night-Time" offers a richly theatrical exploration of this touching and bleakly humorous tale.

Preserving the past is a responsibility to the future

As the United States marks the 250th anniversary of its independence, there is something particularly meaningful about remembering the ordinary men and women whose courage and determination helped establish this nation. Their names may not appear in history textbooks, and their contributions may be unfamiliar to most Americans, but their sacrifices deserve no less recognition.

That message was brought home on Veterans Day when three local members of the Daughters of the American Revolution visited the Old Burial Ground in Sturbridge to honor 77 Revolutionary War patriots buried there.

Among those remembered was Aaron Allen, an ancestor of Dr. Adelina N. Healy, her daughter, Anne Marie Safaee, and Sylvia Gamache. For these women, the observance was more than a historical exercise. It was a personal acknowledgment of a family connection stretching back nearly two and a half centuries.

Later that evening, Healy and Safaee shared their knowledge of the Daughters of the American Revolution during a presentation hosted by the Southbridge Historical Society. Their program offered an opportunity to learn about the organization's commitment to historic preservation, education and service.

Together, these observances illustrated something worth remembering during this milestone anniversary: History does not preserve itself. Every cemetery maintained, every document protected and every family story carefully researched represents an investment in the collective memory of a community. Without individuals willing to undertake that work, important pieces of the past can disappear, sometimes permanently.

In communities such as Southbridge, Sturbridge and Charlton, history is never particularly far away. It can be found in old burial grounds, historic homes, town records and the family histories of residents whose ancestors helped establish these communities long before Massachusetts became the state recognized today.

Yet familiarity can sometimes lead to indifference. A weathered gravestone becomes another feature of the landscape. An old building becomes something passed on the way to work. A collection of historical documents remains tucked away until someone recognizes its significance. The work of local historical societies and organizations such as the DAR helps prevent that gradual loss.

There is also an important distinction between celebrating history and understanding it. The nation's 250th anniversary provides an opportunity to recognize the remarkable achievements of the Revolutionary generation while acknowledging that the promise of liberty and equality was not extended to everyone at the country's founding.

An honest appreciation of American history requires room for both pride and reflection. Recognizing the nation's accomplishments does not mean overlooking its shortcomings. In fact, understanding the struggles and contradictions of the past can deepen appreciation for the progress made by subsequent generations. That is why historical education remains so important, particularly for young people.

Students can memorize dates and famous names, but history becomes considerably more meaningful when they discover that someone buried in a nearby cemetery participated in the struggle for independence. Suddenly, the American Revolution is no longer a distant event involving unfamiliar figures. It becomes part of the story of their own community.

The dedication demonstrated by Healy and Safaee also reminds us that preserving history is often the work of people who have spent their lives serving others in different capacities. Healy's background in nursing and education, combined with her involvement in the Southbridge Historical Society, reflects a commitment to both the well-being of her neighbors and the preservation of their shared heritage.

As the nation's semiquincentennial year draws toward its conclusion, the challenge is to ensure that the attention devoted to American history does not fade when the anniversary celebrations end.

There will always be another gravestone requiring care, another historical record waiting to be examined and another generation needing to understand the sacrifices that helped shape its freedoms. The 77 patriots remembered in Sturbridge cannot tell their stories themselves.

Fortunately, there are still people willing to tell those stories for them. That may be one of the most meaningful ways to honor America's founding generation: ensuring that, 250 years later, their lives and contributions have not been forgotten.

Donor-advised funds: A smart way to give

Financial Focus

Trevor Nielsen

While there are many ways to make charitable gifts, a donor-advised fund (DAF) offers multiple tax benefits and an efficient platform for ongoing giving.

Once you open a DAF, you can contribute many types of assets, including cash, publicly traded stocks, bonds, CDs, or non-cash items such as closely held business interests, art or collectibles. Then decide how to invest the money, potentially following a strategy your DAF sponsor suggests. Next, choose which charities to support, how often to give and how much. You can direct the money to any IRS-approved charitable organization.

Tax deductions

The standard deduction was raised in 2025 and has now been indefinitely extended.

Taking the standard deduction: A new provision in 2026 lets you deduct up to $1,000 in charitable cash contributions ($2,000 if filing jointly) made directly to qualified charitable organizations. However, contributions to DAFs are specifically excluded. You can still receive other DAF advantages, including tax-free growth and capital gains avoidance, just not a deduction for the DAF contribution itself.

Itemizing deductions: A new 2026 rule limits what's deductible: only aggregate charitable contributions exceeding 0.5 percent of your adjusted gross income (AGI) are deductible. If you don't give enough in a single year to clear that floor, a DAF's "bunching" strategy may be effective. You combine several years of giving into one DAF contribution and distribute funds at your own pace, making the 0.5 percent AGI floor easier to clear.

In the 37 percent federal marginal tax bracket: Your itemized deduction tax benefit is now capped at 35 percent, applied after any other deduction-specific limits such as the 0.5 percent AGI floor. Factor this into your charitable giving strategy with your tax professional.

Tax-free growth of earnings

Once you contribute an asset to a DAF, any earnings growth is not taxable to you, the DAF or recipient charities. This means charitable assets can grow, potentially increasing what recipient organizations receive.

Avoidance of capital gains taxes

When you donate appreciated stocks or other investments — or virtually any appreciated asset — to a DAF, you can avoid the capital gains taxes that would be due if you sold the asset and donated the proceeds. Charities benefit because they receive the full appreciated value rather than after-tax sale proceeds. And you can still take a tax deduction for your donation.

Tradeoffs to consider

While these tax benefits can make a DAF attractive, it's worth understanding the tradeoffs. Once you contribute assets to a DAF, that gift is irrevocable. Your investment options are also limited to what's available in the DAF program you've chosen, and DAFs can incur administrative costs in addition to fees charged on the underlying investments.

A good next step

Because DAFs can have significant implications for your tax situation, consult with your tax professional before acting. Your financial advisor can also help you evaluate DAF benefits and tradeoffs and compare sponsors, since programs offer different features.

If a DAF is appropriate, it can be a meaningful and efficient way to support charitable giving for years to come.

When did everybody get so young?

Lanterns Along Main Street

By CHARLES

I had an unsettling experience the other day. I was watching a television interview with a fellow who was being introduced as one of the country's leading experts in his field. He was articulate, confident and obviously knew what he was talking about. He also looked like he ought to be asking permission to borrow the family car.

I mentioned this to my wife, who glanced at the television and informed me that the gentleman was probably in his early 40s.

"Forty?" I said. "He looks about 25."

"That's because you're getting old."

There are certain things a man doesn't particularly enjoy hearing over his morning coffee. That was one of them. But the more I thought about it, the more I realized she's right. Somewhere along the way, the entire adult population seems to have gotten younger. Doctors are younger. Police officers are younger. The people managing banks and running businesses are younger. Even the people delivering the evening news look as though they should be studying for final exams.

I remember when a doctor was a distinguished-looking gentleman with gray hair, serious glasses and the sort of expression that suggested he'd personally witnessed the discovery of penicillin. Now, I occasionally find myself sitting across from a physician who looks younger than my son. And I have to resist the urge to ask whether his mother knows he's out practicing medicine.

Of course, the fellow probably has more education than I could accumulate in three lifetimes. But that doesn't change the fact that I remember when people his age were asking me for advice.

That's another strange part of getting older. For much of your life, there's always somebody ahead of you. Somebody who knows more, has seen more and can explain how things work. When you're 20, the 50-year-olds seem to have everything figured out. When you're 30, you assume the people in their 60s possess some special wisdom that comes with age. Then one morning, you realize you're approaching the age of those supposedly wise people, and nobody has delivered the instruction manual.

I still occasionally feel like the same fellow who was trying to figure out how to pay his first electric bill. The only difference is that now the electric bill is considerably larger, and people sometimes expect me to know what I'm doing. That's a dangerous assumption.

The other day, a younger acquaintance asked me a question about a problem he was having at work. He listened carefully while I offered my opinion, nodded thoughtfully and thanked me for the advice. I walked away feeling rather pleased with myself. Then it occurred to me that he'd probably come to me because he considered me an older, experienced gentleman. An elder statesman, if you will. I nearly had to sit down.

I used to be the young fellow asking questions. Now, apparently, I'm the fellow people ask. And I don't recall anybody consulting me about the promotion.

The funny thing is, I don't feel particularly old. Oh, there are mornings when my knees have a different opinion. And I admit that reading the tiny print on a medicine bottle has become something of a competitive sport. But inside, I still recognize the fellow I was at 25.

He's a little more cautious now. He doesn't stay up quite as late. And he's learned that certain home improvement projects are better left to professionals. But he's still in there. I suspect that's true of most people.

We look at somebody who's 75 or 80 and see an older person. What we sometimes forget is that the person looking back at us probably still remembers being 19 as clearly as we do.

They remember their first car, their first paycheck, their first heartbreak and the ridiculous things they did when they thought they knew everything. And somewhere inside, they're probably wondering how they ended up being the oldest person at the table.

Maybe that's one of the more interesting surprises of growing older. You discover that age doesn't necessarily bring a completely different personality. It brings a longer collection of experiences to the person you've always been. You also discover that younger people are perfectly capable of knowing things you don't.

My children have taught me plenty over the years. Some of it involves technology, naturally, but much of it has nothing to do with computers or phones. They see certain problems differently. They question assumptions I've carried around for decades. And every so often, they make a point I can't argue with.

I find that encouraging. After all, somebody has to take over eventually. And judging by the age of the people appearing on television these days, they've already started.

I suppose the sensible thing is to accept that the world is going to keep producing capable young people, whether I'm ready for it or not.

Still, I have one request. Could somebody please explain why the high school principal looks younger than the students' parents? Because I distinctly remember when principals were at least 70 years old. And I'm beginning to suspect they weren't.

To the Editor

Democracy in inaction

To the Editor:

Whether you love Flock, hate Flock or don't care one way or the other, voters should not buy what the Charlton Select Board is selling. The voters of Charlton turned out for the October Special Town Meeting in numbers that were much greater than usual. They voted 245 to 56 to suspend use of Flock street cameras and to conduct a public review before considering any future ALPR technology. The article was a non-binding Citizen's Petition because the Select Board refused to place an article that would allow the people an opportunity to vote for something the majority of the Board does not personally want. Because it passed overwhelmingly, they then begrudgingly put the topic on their Select Board agenda for discussion.

However, they refuse to act. They refuse to consider the will of the people. They refuse to vote. They refuse to even discuss compromise. And, most egregiously, their argument is that 245 people is not enough! That there are 11,000 voters they must consider. That is not how democracy works. It is about who shows up. And 301 people felt strongly enough to go to Town Meeting and cast their votes. So what hubris does it take for a 5 person Board to decide what is in the minds of those 11,000 people and that they are the only ones equipped to decide for us? (And I say 5, but technically it was 4 because Selectwoman Spiewak clearly argued in favor of considering the will of the people.)

The hypocrisy is also off the charts. The Board has historically never argued that there were not enough voters to matter when it was something they wanted, or something they did not want, as the case may be. At Town Meeting we vote on multi-million-dollar budgets, projects involving tax increases for every resident and bylaws that impact all who live here and even some who don't. And never has the Board come back and said, we will not consider this because there were not enough voters at that meeting and we know best.

How is this democracy?

SOUTHBRIDGE — On Saturday, Nov. 7, Major General Salem Towne Lodge (MGSTL) held its second food drive of the year through its Community Outreach Program at Big Bunny Supermarket in Southbridge. The drive benefited Food Share Pantry, which serves several area towns.

After consulting Christine McTigue, who runs the Winter Coat Closet for those needing winter clothing, the lodge also collected winter coats. Both organizations are based at Holy Trinity Church, 446 Hamilton Street, Southbridge. Volunteers spent five hours gathering food and coats from generous shoppers despite the cool, rainy morning.

Big Bunny shoppers donated cases of cereal, peanut butter, and canned Chef Boyardee ravioli, as well as boxes of pasta and tomato sauce along with many other canned goods. MGSTL members bagged individual donations and added cans to prefilled bags, collecting 121 bags of groceries for Food Share Pantry — enough to fill two pickup trucks. Other donors brought armfuls of winter coats from their vehicles, filling two huge boxes and four large contractor bags. The community's overwhelming generosity deeply gratified the Master Masons volunteering at the drives. Special thanks go to Big Bunny owners Pete and Jon Cournoyer and their staff for supporting the community and welcoming MGSTL's Master Masons to hold both drives outside the supermarket.

Karen Engell, president of Southbridge Food Share, was delighted to see the 2 pickup trucks filled with bags of donated groceries. She told MGSTL volunteers the food we collected today would help a family of 4 feed 30-40 families in the community, as Thanksgiving nears. The Food Share Pantry and Winter Coat Closet thanked MGSTL's Master Masons for supporting both organizations through this year's Community Outreach Program. # All Saints Academy honors our veterans – not just one day, but all year long!

WEBSTER — Over the past few years, All Saints Academy has come to realize that Veterans Week is an especially busy time for our local veterans, who are invited to numerous activities and celebrations in their honor. In place of hosting our annual breakfast, we began changing our approach last year, and we are continuing that tradition this year.

At ASA, we believe our veterans deserve to be honored and recognized throughout the entire year, not just during one week in November. Whether it is helping with an everyday chore, offering a helping hand, or welcoming them to special ceremonies in September, January, and May, we want our students to understand that gratitude is best demonstrated through action.

This year, the All Saints Academy 8th grade students spent time volunteering at the Veterans Home in Webster, helping with their fall clean-up. Students worked together raking leaves, filling bags, and emptying them into the disposal pile. It was a wonderful opportunity to show our appreciation through service and a helping hand.

Our Grade 4 students also enjoyed a wonderful Question & Answer session with some of our veterans and active-duty military members! Students had the opportunity to hear firsthand what inspired these men to serve, how their military experiences shaped their lives, and how their service influenced their future career paths. It was an engaging and meaningful opportunity to ask questions, learn from their experiences, and gain a deeper appreciation for those who serve our country.

Our students love finding ways to honor our veterans, and we are proud to help them understand that service, gratitude, and respect should extend far beyond a single day. To all of our veterans and active-duty military members, thank you for your service, your sacrifices, and the stories you share with the next generation. We are grateful for you today and every day and look forward to seeing you in January at our next celebration.

Come to give blood, experience the magic of Trans-Siberian Orchestra

WORCESTER — The American Red Cross and Trans-Siberian Orchestra invite eligible donors to make an appointment to give blood, platelets or plasma and enjoy a special opportunity to experience the magic of the holiday season while helping save lives.

When donors hurry in to give blood, platelets or plasma, they can earn at least 100 points through the Red Cross Donor Rewards program, which can be used to redeem two tickets to select performances of Trans-Siberian Orchestra's The Ghosts of Christmas Eve: The Best of TSO and More, while supplies last. Trans-Siberian Orchestra will perform in Worcester on Nov. 28, for the 7:30 p.m. show at the DCU Center. (To learn more about Donor Rewards, visit RedCrossBlood.org/rewards.)

"The Red Cross is in constant need of blood donations, and it's so important that we all step up," said Trans-Siberian Orchestra's Al Pitrelli. "You give blood to support a wonderful cause and in exchange, you come spend the holidays with us. It's a win-win!"

Quantities are limited! To make an appointment, visit RedCrossBlood.org, call 1-800-RED CROSS or download the Blood Donor App.

The holiday season can be a challenging time to ensure the blood supply remains stable, even as busy schedules may prevent regular donors from giving. "Blood donors make a profound difference in the lives of patients every day," said Darren Irby, executive director of brand partnerships for the Red Cross. "This special Donor Rewards offer is a meaningful way to thank those who come to roll up a sleeve to help others while giving them the chance to enjoy an unforgettable holiday experience, thanks to the generosity of TSO."

How to donate blood

Simply download the American Red Cross Blood Donor App, visit RedCrossBlood.org, call 1-800-RED CROSS (1-800-733-2767) or enable the Blood Donor Skill on any Alexa Echo device to make an appointment or for more information. All blood types are needed to ensure a reliable supply for patients. A blood donor card or driver's license or two other forms of identification are required at check-in. Individuals who are 17 years of age in most states (16 with parental consent where allowed by state law), weigh at least 110 pounds and are in generally good health may be eligible to donate blood. High school students and other donors 18 years of age and younger also have to meet certain height and weight requirements.

Blood and platelet donors can save time at their next donation by using RapidPass® to complete their pre-donation reading and health history questionnaire online, on the day of their donation, before arriving at the blood drive. To get started, follow the instructions at RedCrossBlood.org/RapidPass or use the Blood Donor App.

contributions helped shape the nation's founding and the importance of preserving that legacy for future generations.

The evening also brought a personal dimension to the historical discussion, highlighting the speakers' longstanding connections to the Southbridge area and their dedication to community service.

A Southbridge native and current Dudley resident, Dr. Healy is well known throughout the region for her contributions to nursing, healthcare education, and local historical preservation. Following her graduation from Wells High School in Southbridge, she pursued a distinguished nursing career, earning degrees from Quinsigamond Community College, Worcester State University, and Regis College before completing her doctorate in nursing at Quinnipiac University.

Her professional career includes service at Harrington Hospital, Hubbard Hospital, Quaboag Rehabilitation, and Bay Path Practical Nursing Academy, reflecting a longstanding commitment to caring for others and strengthening the region's healthcare community.

Beyond nursing, Healy has remained actively involved in preserving local history. She is a past president and currently serves as secretary of the Southbridge Historical Society. A member of the Daughters of the American Revolution since 2013, she also serves as chaplain of her DAR chapter.

Through her involvement in both organizations, Healy brings together two enduring commitments: service to her community and honoring the legacy of those who came before her.

As the Southbridge Historical Society concluded its 2026 public programming, the Veterans Day observance and DAR presentation offered a fitting tribute to the nation's history—reminding attendees that America's story is preserved not only in historic documents and monuments, but also through the dedication of individuals and families committed to remembering its founders and safeguarding their legacy.

'Journey to Space' exhibit opens at EcoTarium

Explore space and life on the International Space Station at Stoddard Exhibition Hall

WORCESTER — On Saturday Nov. 14, the EcoTarium Museum of Science and Nature launched a world-class traveling exhibit, "Journey to Space," in the new Stoddard Exhibition Hall.

"Journey to Space" explores the challenges faced by astronauts living and conducting research in outer space, and celebrates their outstanding achievements in scientific research and engineering. The public is invited to join the exhibit's grand opening and ribbon-cutting and to be among the first to experience life on the International Space Station.

"Journey to Space" will be on exhibit at the Stoddard Exhibition Hall through April 25, 2027.

"Space travel is only possible because of the creative and brilliant scientists and engineers who have worked together for decades to overcome the challenges of supporting human life in space, including pioneers from Worcester such as Dr. Robert and Esther Goddard and David Clark," said Noreen Johnson Smith, President & CEO of the EcoTarium. "This exhibit offers a unique look at life on the International Space Station, where we recently spoke with Astronaut Luke Delaney in mid-flight via HAM radio from the EcoTarium. 'Journey to Space' continues the adventure for learners of every age."

The immersive exhibit "Journey to Space" is an exciting, interactive exhibit that brings space travel closer to home for adults and children to experience the incredible ways that scientists and engineers have designed environments for humans to live and work in outer space. The exhibit explores the real challenges that the Astronauts face every day such as food preparation, sleeping, showering, using the toilet, and recycling water while living in an environment that is in constant motion. The ingenuity, creativity, and perseverance of NASA engineers is on full display in this exciting exhibition as we continue to expand our understanding of what is possible. The exhibit features interactive and multimedia experiences including a full scale, climb-aboard mockup of the Destiny Lab, the primary research facility for U.S. payloads on the International

Space Station (ISS). With its rotating mechanism, the Destiny Lab will give visitors the sensation that they're floating as they get a virtual tour of the lab from astronauts who have worked there. Visitors can also launch water rockets, interact with a model ion engine, control a robotic arm, and simulate other out-of-this-world activities associated with living and working in space.

"Journey to Space" also showcases relics of space exploration including an Apollo helmet and the Canyon Diablo Meteorite. Visitors can also gaze at the beauty of Earth as astronauts see it on a large projection of images taken from the ISS, 250 miles above the planet we call home.

For more information, visit: https://ecotarium.org/exhibit/journey-to-space/

Journey to Space is locally sponsored by Bank of America.

WORCESTER — The first QCC Alumni Athletics Hall of Fame ceremony was held Saturday, Nov. 7, inducting the 2006-07 men's basketball team and former student-athletes Maurice "Mo" Horton, Rich Small and Trafficia Warburton.

"Today's event is about honoring excellence, preserving our college history and recognizing individuals whose contributions have shaped the legacy of Quinsigamond Community College athletics," said QCC President Dr. Luis Pedraja. "Student athletes are examples of the discipline, grit and commitment it takes to succeed in college."

The 2006-07 men's basketball team is one for the history books. They became the first team in school history to advance to the NJCAA national championship tournament, ultimately finishing fifth in the nation. QCC athletes earned national accolades, including Elijah Simms, who led the nation in steals and ranked ninth in assists. Additionally, at just 25 years old, coach Jon Winer became the youngest recipient of the NJCAA District 8 Coach of the Year award.

The list of accomplishments for inductees was long, but most took away more than records and trophies.

"This goes far beyond sports. You guys see me in a light where sometimes I don't see myself. I'm great, because Quinsig told me I'm great," said Dennis "Duke" Williams, a player from the 2006-07 team.

A key contributor to the team's success, Maurice "Mo" Horton helped lead the 2006-07 squad, led the nation in scoring in 2005 and remains the only player in program history to surpass 1,400 career points.

"We didn't just build a winning basketball team, we built a family, and that's something I'll carry with me forever," Horton said.

Horton recalled how becoming a student-athlete changed the trajectory of his life. He credited Winer for believing in his talents yet holding him accountable and keeping high standards. Both Winer and Horton expressed how their relationship with each has left a lasting impact.

"Community colleges like QCC are so important because not everybody has a traditional path to higher education. Sometimes people need someone to open the door…and help them recognize their potential," Horton said. "QCC did that for me, and I hope it continues to do that for generations of young people in our community."

While Horton reflected on the mentorship that shaped his future, Warburton spoke about perseverance and determination.

"QCC taught me how to overcome. Just keep moving forward no matter the pace," Warburton said. "People should definitely support community colleges, especially Quinsig. It's a stepping stone to where you want to be."

Warburton remains one of the most accomplished women's basketball players in program history. In her second season, she led NJCAA's Region 21 in both scoring and rebounding. Beyond her statistics, she was known for her work ethic on and off the court.

"You managed academics, practices, road trips, social life and, most importantly, being a mother to your son. That kind of commitment is extraordinary," Director of Athletics & Fitness Center Lisa Gurnick said to Warburton. "You demonstrated that being a great athlete is much more than accomplishments on the court. It's about character, resilience, sacrifice and the example you set for others."

Small's connection to QCC began as a member of the men's basketball team and deepened when he returned years later as a college employee before eventually becoming a coach. Today, Small remains an athletics ambassador, promoting and documenting QCC sporting events through his photography and community engagement.

"Athletics are necessary," Small said. "Some people come up just to play ball first…but it might keep them here to get that degree and then move on."

"Pete the Cat" comes to Mechanics Hall Dec. 10

WORCESTER — Mechanics Hall will present TheaterWorksUSA's family musical, "Pete the Cat," based on the popular series by Kimberly and James Dean. "Pete the Cat" will be presented live on stage on Dec. 10 at 10:30 a.m. at 321 Main St., Worcester. Tickets are $16 and can be purchased by visiting MECHANICSHALL.ORG/tickets or calling 508-752-5608, ext. 209. This live performance is open to the public and school groups. The show is recommended for pre-K - 3rd grade / ages four to nine.

When Pete the Cat gets caught rocking out after bedtime, the cat-catcher sends him to live with the Biddle family to learn some manners—and boy, are they square! But for the groovy blue cat, life is an adventure no matter where you wind up, so the minute Pete walks in the door, he gets the whole family rocking.

The whole family, that is, except for young Jimmy Biddle — the most organized, uptight second grader ever. But when Jimmy draws a blank in art class during the last week of school, Pete is the perfect friend to help him out. Join Jimmy and Pete as they set off on an adventure in Pete's VW bus to find inspiration, magic sunglasses, and friendship!

Pete the Cat is written by Sarah Hammond (book and lyrics) and Will Aronson (music, Broadway: "Maybe Happy Ending" – Tony Award), based on the book series by Kimberly and James Dean. Original direction and choreography by Dan Knechtges (Broadway: "Lysistrata Jones," "Xanadu" -Tony Award Nom), set design by Rob Odorisio (Broadway: "Joseph and the Amazing Technicolor Dreamcoat"), and costume design by Jennifer Caprio (Broadway: "Falsettos," "The 25th Annual …")

THEATERWORKSUSA (Barbara Pasternack, Producing Artistic Director; Tegan Meyer, Managing Director) has led the Theater for Young and Family Audiences movement in New York City and across North America for over half a century. At TWUSA, we believe that access to art—and theater, in particular—is vital for our youth.
