Local Scout brings Little Library to TEEG

Photo Courtesy

Anne Miller and Boy Scout Shane Yurkevicius show off TEEG's new little library.

THOMPSON – TEEG has added a new feature to its campus with the installation of a “little library” courtesy of local boy scout Shane Yurkevicius of Troop 66. Yurkevicius collaborated with TEEG to create the little library as his Eagle Scout project designing, building, and installing the structure with the help of his father, John Yurkevicius. The library is one of several throughout the region where readers can take and leave books to inspire literacy in the local community. Shane Yurkevicius said the project was a complicated one that involved a lot of minor details and planning to achieve, but the result was rewarding. “I’m excited and proud that it’s done. I’m happy with the result,” Yurkevicius said. “It was a tedious and long project trying to make sure everything fit together and that all the parts coincided. We had to custom build the doors and find the right hinges. Those are just a few challenges we had to figure out. These libraries allow kids a chance to get a book and read and explore a new pastime, maybe learn and explore something they didn’t know before. We know not everyone might be able to go to a library, so to add another source of reading to the community is a good thing.” The little library is built with two shelves in the main section for larger books and literature for higher reading levels. A unique element of the TEEG little library is the smaller lower section designed to be at perfect height for younger readers like elementary and middle schoolers to pick their own books. The paint scheme of the library was inspired by the colors of the TEEG building with weather-resistant material on both the roof and doors. Anne Miller, Executive Director of TEEG who at one time worked as assistant director of the library at Pomfret School, said TEEG is excited to add a little library to the campus especially considering the organization is located on the same property as the Thompson Public Schools. “I think it will allow people to share the joy of reading. A lot of people have clicked into reading more deeply during the pandemic. I also think this will allow

Killingly High School to remain on well system

BY JASON BLEAU
CONTRIBUTING WRITER

KILLINGLY – It appears the town of Killingly will not be moving ahead with connecting Killingly High School to public water any time soon. Town Manager Mary Calorio discussed the matter with the Town Council in early February as a follow-up to a request by the Board of Education to explore the option of ditching the well system currently in use by the high school and connecting to a local water source instead due to ongoing issues with the well on the property. Calorio said that in years past, weather events have caused problems with the well sometimes forcing the school to close as a result. “The system itself has been struck by lightning a number of times causing cancellation of school for periods of time,” said Calorio. “The Town Council turned this over to the Permanent Building Commission for investigation to determine if it was feasible to connect and how that connection would happen.” The town hired CPH Engineers to examine to potential for connecting the school to public water. Calorio brought their report to the Town Council which indicated such a move could cost in the area of $1.8 million. However, when adding in the expected annual costs the concept was deemed too costly or the town to consider. “Based on the ongoing costs that would still be required, because you’re then paying for water, it doesn’t make financial sense for the town to pursue that,” Calorio said, later adding that the book isn’t necessarily closed on the issue. “If grant funds were to become available for that installation then the town may want to reconsider that, but at this point there’s no grant funds for that infrastructure.” The Town Council didn’t move on the matter during the meeting as it was simply the Town Manager forwarding information to the councilors. However, it was confirmed that the recommendation to maintain the use of the well system for the time being was recommended by not only CPH Engineers, but the Permanent Building Commission as well after the received their copied of the report.

Killingly girls excited at chance to defend ECC title

After winning its first-ever Eastern Connecticut Conference (ECC) Division II Tournament Championship in 2020, the Killingly High girls’ basketball team has its sights set on repeating the feat in 2021.

KILLINGLY — With no Connecticut Interscholastic Athletic Conference (CIAC) state basketball tournament being held for a second straight year because of COVID-19 and the global pandemic, the Killingly High girls’ basketball team is focused on one thing — successfully defending the Eastern Connecticut Conference (ECC) Division II title it won exactly a year ago. On Feb. 26, 2020, Killingly rallied from an early 7-0 deficit to defeat Putnam High, 55-49, at Mohegan Sun Arena in Uncasville, to capture the crown. That title came just days after Killingly won its first ECC Divisional title in 22 years. Killingly finished the 2019-20 season 19-6. “I would love to see us not lose in the tournament and go back-to-back. That’s our goal,” fifth-year Killingly coach Gina Derosier said hours before her team improved to 2-0 with a 64-13 home win over Lyman Memorial High on Saturday, Feb. 20. “It’s going to be a different ECC tournament, to be sure, but we’re just grateful that there is going to be one.” In its win over Lyman, Killingly was led by junior Sophia Moore and sophomore Ella Lach, who each scored 12 points in the victory. Moore added four rebounds and three steals to the winning effort while Lach also came up with three steals. Junior Emma Carpenter and sophomore Aila Gutierrez both contributed eight points to the win. Carpenter also finished with five assists and three steals while Gutierrez recorded three assists and two steals. Maddie Sumner, the lone senior on the team, chipped in seven points. Killingly opened the season with an equally impressive effort as the win over Lyman, defeating Griswold High, 43-24, on the road on Friday, Feb. 12. Players only get one varsity debut and freshman Hannah Grudzien made the most of hers, helping lead the way to the win by scoring nine points, grabbing seven rebounds, and making seven steals. The 5-foot-7 Carpenter added six points

While looking for interesting local tidbits from 100 years ago on newspapers.com several weeks ago, I came across a nice article about Byron D. Bugbee of Putnam.

Now, I'm sure the surname Bugbee brings back many fond memories of Bugbee's Department Store on the corner of Front Street (Route 44) and Main Streets in Putnam. "It was announced Wednesday that Governor Everett J. Lake has appointed Byron D. Bugbee of this city (Putnam) a member of the finance board of the state. The appointment is to fill the unexpired term of Robert Magee of Watertown, who died recently. Mr. Bugbee is one of Putnam's best known residents and represented the town in the general assembly during the session of 1899 and at the constitutional convention in 1902. He was born in Milbury, Mass. on March 31, 1864. He received his education in Webster, Mass. and during his vacations worked in drygoods stores. His father was Alonzo A. Bugbee and his mother was Aseneth Bates...Mr. Bugbee after his schooling, entered a drygoods store at Turner's Falls, Mass. in 1879 where he remained five years, and then went to Holyoke and remained there two years in the same business. In 1886 he entered the dry goods store of H. C. Murray in Willimantic, and shortly after when the later (sic, latter) started a branch store in Putnam he took in Mr. Bugbee as a partner. Soon after Mr. Bugbee bought out Mr. Murray's interest and built up one of the leading drygoods stores in Eastern Connecticut. He retired from business about a year and a half ago. While in the house Mr. Bugbee delivered the address in presenting to the state J. T.

Thurber's (sic. T. J.) oil painting of the historic Wolf Den, which now hangs in the executive chamber. His term will expire on the first Monday in January, 1925." (Norwich Bulletin, Thursday, Feb. 10, 1921; newspapers.com). In more recent times the store came under the ownership of Frederick H. Furman and his wife Eva who acquired the store in 1948. At the time of Frederick's death in April 1953, the Bugbee Corp. operated department stores in Putnam and Webster, Massachusetts. (Hartford Courant, April 4, 1953, p. 4; newspapers.com). Eva continued to operate the store until her death in April 1978 then Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Mauer, son-in-law and daughter, operated Bugbee's. (Fabiola Cutler; Date Social Security Death Index, Ancestry.com).

Do you have memories of Bugbee's (the Houghton and Bugbee Block/Building) or other downtown Putnam buildings that you would like to share? Fabiola Cutler and Sandra Cutler Ames from Putnam's Aspinock Historical Society are researching a pictorial book entitled "A Stroll Thru Putnam," which will feature photos, historical tidbits, and memories of buildings, blocks and landmarks in the Front Street-Main Street area. Please email Fabiola at fabiolacutler@atlanticbb.net if you have memories to share.

The above article made mention of Putnam artist Thomas Jones Thurber who retired to Putnam Heights in the 1870's. The "Illustrated Popular Biography of Connecticut" (probably 1891) noted that he had served as a member of the Connecticut Legislature in 1882. In later years he was a justice of the peace for Putnam, an agent of the Connecticut Humane Society, and treasurer of the First Congregational Church of Putnam (Putnam Heights). As a young man, he had served as the New England agent of the Delaware and Hudson Canal Company then later represented a Woonsocket woolen manufacturer in New York City.

Byron D. Bugbee

While discussing Thurber at the Oct. 2, 2016 Walktober walk in the Putnam Heights Cemetery, Linden Whipple, a Putnam Heights resident and member of the Killingly Historical Society board of directors, commented that Thurber was the original painter of "Frog Rock" in Eastford. Thurber passed that way when going to serve in the Connecticut Legislature and was inspired to paint the rock. He also did paintings of Cargill Falls in Putnam and the Wolf Den in Putnam, one of which was hanging in the capitol in Hartford according to the "Illustrated Popular Biography of Connecticut." (Extracted from the Oct. 24, 2016 Killingly at 300 column in the Villager).

I did not move to Northeastern Connecticut until 1969 so asked Killingly Historical Society president Bernie Mitchell about department stores in Danielson in the "Bugbee" era in Putnam. Bernie said that when he was growing up the major department store in downtown Danielson was Keech's Department Store which was located in the building that later became Gil's Shoe Barn. According to Natalie L. Coolidge's "Killingly Business Encyclopedia" in the 1950's Keech's was owned by Sam Florman. The following historical summary, under the above entries, was written by Isadore Florman in November 1953 in preparation for Danielson's Centennial. "The store, under the ownership of Sam Florman, has been located in the same site since August of 1927...During this long span this establishment has catered to men, women, and children for all their needs in the fields of ready-to-wear, footwear, and accessories besides many items for the home. Originally in 1927 a store at 49 Main Street was owned by James E. Keech who had been a merchant in Danielson for about fifty years. Sam Florman purchased this store and also rented an empty store at 45 Main St. As the stores were in the same building, part of the wall was torn down and made into one large store. With permission from Mr. Keech the new, enlarged store was named Keech's Department store. Two members of the present staff of the store have been with the organization for the entire twenty years; namely, Mr. Isadore Florman, son of the owner, and Mr. Raymond Leire a well-known citizen of Danielson. At present the store employs six full time persons and extra help for the weekends. Mrs. Alice Martin has been with the store for fifteen years." The last entry for the store was taken from a May 13 1971 Windham County Transcript. According to the 1978 SNET Telephone Directory by that year the building was called Keech's Mini Mall with Gilbert Poirier as owner. By 1980 it had become Gil's Shoe Barn. (1980 SNET Telephone Directory). Please feel free to email me with memories you might wish to share about Keech's or Gil's Shoe Barn. Thank you very much.

Retirement plan and health savings contributions in 2021: What you need to know “Save more, spend less.” It’s a mantra that many of us have heard often and aspire to as well, even if we don’t always live up to the goal. But when it comes to our physical and financial health, it’s a goal that none of us can really afford to ignore.

In fact, it’s so important that the federal government offers tax breaks to those who save for their future health needs and post-retirement income. There are limits to those tax breaks, of course – but by making the most of them, you can reduce your tax bill today while making real progress in supporting your health and happiness for the future.

Here’s what you need to know to maximize your health, retirement, and tax savings this year.

Maximizing your Health Savings Account (HSA) contributions in 2021.

A Health Savings Account (HSA) allows people with qualifying health insurance plans to save money to pay for eligible health expenses tax free. The money you put into (or contribute) to an HSA is tax-deductible, and disbursements (payments) made from the HSA for qualifying medical expenses are not taxed as income either.

In order to open an HSA, you must have a high-deductible health insurance plan. In 2021 that’s defined as a plan with an annual deductible of at least $1,400 for self-only coverage or $2,800 for family coverage. Your plan must also have a limit on out-of-pocket expenses. For 2021 that limit is $7,000 for self-only coverage and $14,000 for family coverage.

If you’ve just switched to a qualifying high-deductible health insurance plan, or if you’ve had one for some time but never opened an HSA, open one now and begin making regular contributions. If you’ve already got an HSA, make sure you’re on track to make the maximum annual contribution in order to save as much as you can for health expenses while saving on taxes, too.

The maximum you can contribute to an HSA in 2021 is up just slightly over last year – up to $3,600 if your health plan covers only yourself (a $50 increase from the 2020 limit), or $7,200 if you have family coverage (a $100 increase over 2020). In addition, if you’re 55 or older by the end of the year you can contribute an additional $1,000 in “catch-up” contributions. Just remember that if your employer makes contributions on your behalf that are excluded from your income, your contribution limit is reduced by that amount.

Maximizing your retirement plan contributions in 2021.

There are a variety of retirement savings plans available, each with its own set of rules, restrictions and benefits. But they all offer one important benefit: the ability to save for retirement while also reducing the amount of income tax you’ll owe each year.

To maximize your retirement savings as well as your tax savings, make the maximum annual contribution to your account each year, if you are able. The maximum contribution allowed depends on the type of plan, and can fluctuate from year to year as tax laws change and limits are adjusted for inflation.

For 2021, the general contribution limits remain the same as in 2020 and are as follows: $19,500 for 401(k)s, 403(b)s, most 457 plans and the federal government’s Thrift Savings Plan; $6,000 for IRAs and Roth IRAs; and $13,500 for SIMPLE IRAs (a retirement plan designed for businesses with 100 or fewer employees).

In addition to these general limits, people age 50 and older are entitled to a “catch-up” contribution. This contribution amount also remains the same in 2021 as it was in 2020:

$6,500 for 401(k)s, 403(b)s, 457 plans and the Thrift Savings Plan (for a total contribution of $26,000 for people age 50 and older); or an additional $1,000 for IRAs (for a total contribution of $7,000 for IRA account holders age 50 and older).

What has changed for 2021 is that employers can contribute up to $58,000 to an employee’s 401(k), an increase of $1,000 over the 2020 limit.

Contributions to 401(k)s, 403(b)s, 457 plans and the Thrift Savings Plan are all made pre-tax, so you realize the tax savings without actually having to take a deduction. IRA contributions, on the other hand, are made with income that has already been taxed, so you must take a deduction for the contributions on your tax return each year to get the tax savings.

It’s important to note, though, that there are limits to the deductions you can take for IRA contributions. If you have a traditional IRA, the deduction gradually phases out if your income is above a certain amount. If you have a Roth IRA, the amount you can contribute depends on your income. To be eligible to contribute the maximum in 2021, your adjusted gross income must be less than $125,000 if single or $198,000 if married and filing jointly. Contributions begin to be phased out for AGIs above those ranges and are reduced to $0 once your income reaches $140,000 if single or $208,000 if married and filing jointly.

Thompson Lions Golf League trophy presented to Ron Barks

THOMPSON — The Clifford “The Dog” Svenning Memorial Trophy for the 2020 season of the Thompson Lions Men’s Golf League was recently awarded to long-time member Ron Barks.

When Barks was told that everyone in attendance at our end-of-season banquet agreed that he would be an excellent recipient for this year’s trophy, he was overwhelmed with emotion. An engraved nameplate was added to the trophy and presented to him at a luncheon at Zip’s Diner back in the Fall. He has been playing in the league for a total of 36 years.

The trophy was named in honor of Cliff Svenning after his passing in 2009. Mr. Svenning was a 35-year member of the Thompson Lions Golf League and was instrumental in recruiting players. He was an all-around great guy who always made you laugh. The trophy is awarded to a player each year who embodies that competitive spirit while still having fun.

The Thompson Lions Golf League plays nine holes on

Celluloid collectibles

Celluloid was considered the first semi-synthetic plastic. According to Britannica, “some historians trace the invention of celluloid to English chemist Alexander Parkes, who in 1856 was granted the first of several patents on a plastic material that he called Parkesine.” The Atlantic magazine attributes development to the United States inventor John Wesley Hyatt who is said to have created celluloid in 1869. Celluloid was created to replace ivory billiard balls but proved to be unsuitable for that purpose. According to the Atlantic, “because celluloid could be made to imitate expensive or rare materials – such as ivory, tortoise-shell, and mother-of-pearl – it was soon employed in the manufacture of fancy goods affordable for the growing middle class.” It increased in use during the 1880s and it was used to make post-cards, game pieces, toys, advertising novelties and souvenirs, jewelry, knitting needles, straight razor handles, and imitation linen collars and cuffs.” “In 1882, John H. Stevens, a chemist at the Celluloid Manufacturing Company, discovered that amyl acetate was a suitable solvent for diluting celluloid,” according to Britannica. The new clear celluloid was used to create flexible films. Celluloid was used in motion picture films into the 1930s.

Because celluloid was so widely used, we often find it in local estates. Dresser/vanity sets are some of the more common celluloid items we encounter. Years of heat exposure often affected the sets and they can become very brittle.

A typical set in good condition sells for around $20. A vanity set in a color other than ivory can bring a little more. Most celluloid is affordable to collect, but there are some celluloid collectibles that command strong auction prices. For example, cels (Merriam Webster: “a transparent sheet of celluloid on which objects are drawn or painted in the making of animated cartoons”) from older cartoons can be quite valuable. In 2017 a cel from 1937 of the Evil Queen from Snow White sold for $25,000 and a Charlie Brown Christmas cel sold for $50,000. Because celluloid deteriorates over time there aren’t a large amount of advertising signs in pristine condition. Three nice examples sold very well at auction. A Chancellor Cigar sign depicting a 1910 woman went for $12,000. An Ingram’s Witch Hazel Salve sign sold for $13,000 in 2012 and a 1902 hanging celluloid Coca Cola sign reached $19,000 in 2011. Rare celluloid toys can also bring high auction prices. A 1930s waddling Donald Duck toy went for $13,000 in 2014 and a celluloid Mickey Mouse on a metal scooter with the original box brought $37,000 in 2008. Older pinback buttons were also made of celluloid with metal backing. Some have brought astronomical prices. A rare “Buck Rogers 25th Century” celluloid pinback went for $2,700 in 2019. A Franklin D. Roosevelt for Senate pinback brought $3,750 in 2016. As you might expect, sports pinbacks are very popular. Few examples of a one and a half inch Mickey Mantle Fan club button are known to exist. One sold for over $23,000 last year. A pinback advertising a Detroit beer company is even more rare. The pinback is the only one known to exist depicting Babe Ruth and the 1916 World Champion Boston Red Sox. It sold for nearly $63,000 last year. I’m sure celluloid manufacturers weren’t expecting the objects they made inexpensively for the middle class to sell for five figure sums over a century later.

We will have some celluloid objects from the estate of a long-time collector in our May multi-estate auction. We are still accepting quality items such as antique paintings, gold jewelry, sterling silver and older collectibles such as coins, sports memorabilia, advertising signs, and comic books for the May auction. We are also currently running an online auction of model railroad trains, die-cast cars, pressed steel trucks, and models that ends on March 10th. Karen Warinsky of Woodstock to participate in local arts festival

NORTHFIELD, Mass. — Online Feb. 27 at 11 a.m., Rich Holschuh, spokesman for the Elnu Abenaki, a Vermont State-recognized tribe, will open the Northfield Authors and Artists Festival: Honoring Nature. Squakeag/Northfield is within the traditional Sokoki Abenaki homelands, and the festival opens with a grounding as to where we physically would be if we weren’t in cyberspace. Just afterwards, the first talk will be given by Sherri Mitchell of the Penobscot Indian Nation, followed by Christian McEwen, a western Massachusetts resident originally from Scotland; Scott Russell Sanders from the midwestern US; Gay Bradshaw from the west coast; and Patrick Curry originally from Canada, now resident of London in the UK. The poets too bring a diversity of voices from Pakistan, Israel, Taiwan, the Passamaquoddy Nation, and the US. And that’s just Day 1 of the two-day free Authors and Artists Festival. Day 2 includes Deb Habib from Seeds of Solidarity Farm; Joan Maloof of the Old Growth Forest Network; Susan Cerulean Florida bird expert; and Simon Wilson speaking on religion and the ecological crisis from Canterbury Christ Church University in south-eastern England. The speakers from both days are equally diverse in how they participate in Honoring Nature. From the practical work of protecting old growth forests; maintaining animal sanctuaries; and growing organic food with no-till methods; to the equally hard work of imagining a more respectful and sustainable way for humans to interact with the rest of Nature, the authors tell their stories and inspire others. Lis McLoughlin, one of the festival organizers, says, “We are grateful to have the involvement of so many people from around the world who Honor Nature in their own unique ways. Because so much of what we do is hard work, it is especially gratifying to have the chance to celebrate Nature, and our collaborations, in the festival. “ This year there is an additional reason to party: a book produced from authors and artists who participated in the festival’s first 2 years. The anthology Honoring Nature, published by Human Error Publishing (Paul Richmond) contains work from 40 authors and artists and is available to buy separately or with a book launch ticket. The positive power of influencing others

A few weeks ago, we spoke of the power of influence and that we become the average of the five people we spend the most time around. People often brush aside the idea that they are influenced by others. To do so is foolish. We are all influenced, and we all influence others. Today, I want to speak with you about the power of influence we have over others. Let me first break down the difference between casual influence and purposeful influence. Casual influence is the impact you have on others by just who you are. Purposeful influence is in mentoring others. Let’s focus on the power of influence you can have on others and we will call it mentoring. Mentoring is about helping another person learn through a one-to-one relationship. It’s a common practice for transferring knowledge and promoting best practices and procedures in the workplace, as well as being an effective way to develop new leaders. Serving as a mentor can play a powerfully influential role in younger generations and can benefit you as well as the mentee. We spend a lifetime learning, gathering information and experiences. My oldest son once told me, “When a person dies, it’s as if a library full of one-of-a-kind books burns to the ground. Unless shared, all your knowledge, information and experience are lost.” If we allow that to happen it’s as if a lifetime of learning is wasted. What experience and information do you have that can benefit others if shared? I don’t care who you are, what your education level is or what you do or have done for a living, you have something inside your head and heart that would benefit others to know. A few years ago, our community was desperate for substitute teachers. I have a degree in education, so I began. I continued doing so two days a week until I was diagnosed with stomach cancer. I also started a drum line and color guard in association with Youth for Christ and found weekly opportunities to set an example and share life experiences with eighth grade through high school age students. Many of those students came from broken homes and did not have a father figure in their lives. I found it to be an incredibly rewarding experience for me as well as them. What experience do you have to share? Are you a musician, athlete, business professional or tradesperson? If so, you have experience to share. Do you know how to cook or work in a kitchen? Do you know how to repair cars? Are you a computer coder or hardware tech? We all know something that will benefit others. What I’ve learned most of all about mentoring, is what young people want and appreciate most is your time. They may not express it in words, but when you connect with a young person, they benefit from the experience and are grateful whether they express it in words or not. Where can you go for mentoring opportunities?

POSITIVELY
MOORE

Your church, service club or fraternal organizations often have opportunities. I know most, if not all school districts, need substitute teachers. Organized sporting activities or community dance, theater, or musical organizations ... the list is endless. All that is required of you is to take the step to let them know you are available ... and be available to spend time. I know of no studies to verify this, but I believe those who volunteer find happiness and joy in the experience. Once I’m a little further along in my healing process, I’d enjoy starting a young writer’s group to provide mentoring and encouragement to those interested in the craft as a hobby and/or career. I don’t want my library to burn to the ground without sharing the information and experience in my head and heart. When we do so, we live on through the lives of others. What about you? Are you a “Hey you kids! Get off my lawn!” kind of person or would you like to make a positive difference in the lives of the next generation? That’s a serious question and I’d like you to answer. If you are willing to share your experience and time with others, jump in. There’s never been a time when optimists are needed more to provide positive mentoring to the next generation. Will you answer the call? Will you share what you know? Will you join me?

NCWIT awards presented for aspirations in computing

KILLINGLY — The Killingly High School Business & Computer Science Department is proud to announce that five of our computer science students have been recognized by the National Center for Women & Information Technology (NCWIT) for computing-related aspirations and for demonstrated outstanding aptitude and interest in science, technology, engineering and mathematics (STEM). Awards will be presented at an online, virtual celebration on April 14.

The 2021 Connecticut Winner of the NCWIT Award for Aspirations in Computing is senior Sophie Griffin. Sophie plans to attend college in the fall to major in Aerospace Engineering. Connecticut Honorable Mention recipients are junior Lucinda Burke, senior Julia Purcell, and senior Sarah Roberts. Connecticut Rising Star recipient is sophomore Aila Gutierrez.

Over the past two years, Killingly High School has added four new computer science courses to the program of studies including AP Computer Science Principles, AP Computer Science A, App Creators, and Introduction to Data Science. A major goal of the program is to encourage gender and racial equity in all computing and STEM fields.

For more information regarding the NCWIT and the Aspirations in Computing program, please visit their Web site at <https://www.ncwit.org/project/aspirations-computing>.

Tips for seed starting success

.....
MELINDA
MYERS

You created your wish list, ordered some or all of the seeds you will need, and they are beginning to arrive. Make the most of your investment with a bit of planning.

Starting seeds at the proper time, indoors or directly in the garden, ensures a good start to the growing season. Check the back of the seed packet for planting times and directions. Consult your local Extension Service's website for more details on the best time to plant in your area.

Organize your seeds by when they need to be started. You can create your own system or invest in one like Gardener's Supply's seed envelopes and dividers. This system allows you to organize seeds by type, planting season, color, garden location and more. Use your storage system to keep leftover seeds organized for future plantings. It will also save you money on future seed orders. Just be sure to place the seeds in an airtight container in the refrigerator.

Enter planting dates on your calendar as well. Months pass quickly and it is easy to miss important planting times. Creating a planting calendar will help you plant seeds at the proper time for the maximum benefit.

Gather seed starting equipment and supplies if starting seeds indoors. You will need a quality seed starting or potting mix and clean containers. Use yogurt and other small food containers for starting seeds. Drill holes in the bottom and clean them before planting. Avoid disease problems by sanitizing old plant containers. Soak them in a one-part bleach and nine-parts water solution for ten minutes. Then rinse in clear water before filling with planting mix.

Or try one of the new plastic-free, environmentally friendly seed starting options. Use a paper pot maker (gardeners.com) to convert newspaper into biodegradable plant pots. Consider cow pots made of composted manure that provide nutrients in a biodegradable pot. You can leave your seedlings in these containers when moving them into the garden.

Create your own pot-free seed starter with Gardener's Supply soil blocker. It presses moist potting mix into blocks that hold their shape. The blocks can be moved directly into the garden, reducing transplant shock.

Follow the directions on the seed packets for depth and care. Most seeds prefer warm conditions but do not need light to sprout. Keep the planting mix moist. Cover the containers with a sheet of plastic to conserve moisture and extend the time between watering.

Once you see any green, it is time to move the seedlings into bright light or under artificial lights. Keep the lights on for no more than 14 to 16 hours and four to six inches above the top of the plants for best results.

Once your plants are actively growing, you can begin fertilizing if needed. Check the planting mix to see if a fertilizer has been added and how long it will be effective before adding more. Follow the label directions on the fertilizer you select.

Share the fun and workload with friends and family. Perhaps you will start tomatoes for everyone, another person handles the peppers and yet another person the eggplants. Or just share extra seeds since each packet usually contains more than most gardeners have space to grow.

Most importantly, have fun.

Lannon earns Employee of the Month at Westview Health Care

DAYVILLE — Dayville resident Micaeleen Lannon was recently awarded Westview Health Care Center’s Employee of the Month distinction for January 2021.

Lannon has been employed at the Dayville skilled nursing facility since October 2019 as one of their many essential employees as a Certified Nursing Assistant.

Like so many other health care workers, “Mikey” has dealt with the COVID-19 pandemic and all of its many discomforts and challenges with patience, grace and adaptability. Continually striving to provide the best care possible to the patients and residents of Westview, her positive demeanor and “can do” attitude has been a strength not only for the recipients of her care but also with her many coworkers.

Lannon is extremely family-oriented, and can often be found surrounded by her family including: Edward T. Murphy, father; Maureen Lannon, mother; Murphy Lannon, daughter; Michele Craig, sister; and her dog, Tyson “Chalupa” Craig. Her other interests include the Grateful Dead, car and bike racing, playing pool and following the Pittsburgh Steelers.

“It is a great honor to receive this award,” remarked Lannon. “I truly love what I do and the patients and residents at Westview bring so much joy to my life. I feel like it is a duty of society to care for their elderly and I am very proud to be a Westview Warrior!”

“Ms. Lannon’s amazing work ethic is laudable and her innate ability to connect with the patients, residents and staff at Westview is to be commended,” stated David T. Panteleakos, Administrator. “We’re very grateful for her high level of dedication and unyielding Westview Warrior spirit, as we have learned over the past year that when the going gets tough, you want people just like Mikey on your team!”

Westview Health Care Center is a 103-bed inpatient skilled nursing facility, which includes a distinct and self-contained 28-bed sub-acute short-term rehabilitation unit and outpatient physical, occupational and speech therapies including: Sports Medicine, Adolescent/Pediatric, Adult and Aquatic Outpatient Centers, all dedicated to providing outstanding quality health care services. The facility is located in Dayville, Connecticut and is ranked among the top nursing facilities in the nation according to the Centers for Medicare and Medicaid Service; and U.S. News and World Report for the past 13 years.

Eastern student participates in Kennedy Center American College Theatre Festival

WILLIMANTIC — Eastern Connecticut State University’s theatre students and faculty recently attended a virtual version of the Kennedy Center American College Theatre Festival (KCACTF), where they presented their work, attended workshops, watched productions, listened to keynote speakers and attended an award ceremony.

Among the participants was Emma Kellermann, a senior from Eastford majoring in New Media Studies. Kellerman was recognized for being a Tech Trivia Team host for the Eastern 2020 Tech Olympics. The Tech Olympics are a series of timed technology-based challenges.

While the online setting did not allow for the conference’s traditional in-person performances and presentations, it opened up opportunities that students would otherwise not have been able to experience, said Professor Anya

Sokolovskaya, who also serves as a board member for the conference. “It gave our students possibilities to mix with people who usually aren’t available.”

One of those people was keynote speaker Paula Vogel, an American playwright best known for her play “How I Learned to Drive,” which received a Pulitzer Prize in 1998.

Along with multiple networking opportunities, students and faculty received recognition for their work during and before the COVID-19 pandemic. Eastern’s last in-person performance before the pandemic, “The Brothers Size,” for instance, received several awards and acknowledgements. The play was directed by Professor DeRon Williams.

Along with awards and accolades, Eastern students and faculty were able to showcase their talents in other ways. The most telling was the “Tech Trivia” game, planned and produced by several Eastern students and Sokolovskaya.

The event, which became the responsibility of the students after they won the 2020 KCACTF Tech Olympics, presented some challenges for adaption to a virtual setting.

While Eastern students and staff faced challenges this year adapting to a new setting and situation, Williams thinks this year’s KCACTF brought a new light to theatre. “I think it lit a fire under our students and gave them endless possibilities. More broadly theatre has expanded.” He also stated that this event, coupled with COVID, presented new possibilities for productions in the future. “Many new versions and iterations will be coming to Eastern theatre,” he promised.

“The conference showed students the resilience and drive of the theatre community,” concluded Sokolovskaya. “They are trying new ways of doing theatre. We saw students experimenting, trying new things, which is remarkable.”

Little League registration ending soon

REGION — Little League registration for the 2021 Spring season is close to closing soon. All local leagues end registration at different times. It is highly recommended to register now. We expect to have a regular Little League season this year and look forward to getting back on the field.

Little League Baseball was founded in 1939, and is the world’s first community-based, volunteer-operated youth sports program. The inaugural Little League season was played in Williamsport, Pa., and since that fateful year, countless neighborhoods and tens of millions of children and volunteers have proudly been members of the program.

Touting and appreciating the importance of providing a challenging and enjoyable youth sports experience for females, Little League Softball was founded in 1974. Structured similar to the baseball program, softball players are offered a variety of opportunities to participate and benefit from the Little League experience.

All leagues offer T-Ball (4-6), Coach Pitch Baseball & Softball (6-8), Minors Baseball & Softball (7-11), Majors Baseball & Softball (10-12) & Seniors Baseball & Softball (13-16). Each league is always looking for volunteer coaches and umpires too.

Crash claims life of Thompson woman

BY JASON BLEAU
CONTRIBUTING WRITER

GLOCESTER, R.I. - A Thompson woman has died following a motor vehicle crash in Rhode Island that resulted in one arrest.

Details provided by the Gloucester Police Department revealed that on Sunday, Feb. 21 at around 7:12 p.m. members of the departments assisted by members of the Chepachet and West Gloucester Fire Department responded to a serious motor vehicle crash in the area of 2953 Putnam Pike on Route 44, just east of the Connecticut State Line. The reports indicated that an individual was trapped in a vehicle at the scene.

Police investigating the crash concluded that a 2006 Ford F-350 was traveling eastbound over the posted 50 miles per hour speed limit. The vehicle travelled into the left lane into the west-bound travel lane to pass several vehicles in the eastbound lane. As a result, the Ford made head-on contact with a 2013 Volkswagen Beetle in the left lane killing the operator of the Beetle who was pronounced dead at the scene by emergency responders. The victim was identified as 65-year-old North Grosvenordale resident Yvonne Cote in the police report. A dog in Cote’s car was also injured in the crash and later died as a local animal hospital.

Police released the name of the suspect in the crash, 25-year-old Gloucester resident Travis Beaulieu who, along with passenger 20-year-old Jakob Burns also of Gloucester, were transported to a Rhode Island hospital after the crash. Both were evaluated and later released. Beaulieu however was taken into custody and held overnight. The following day Beaulieu was transported to the 3rd District Court for arraignment on the charge of Driving So as to Endanger Resulting in Death. Judge Elaine Bucci ordered bail set at $25,000 with surety. Beaulieu will appear in court again in late April. The accident remains under investigation with any witnesses urged to contact the Gloucester Police Department at 401-568-2533.

How about this weather?

“How about this weather?”

If ever there was an easy, non-challenging conversation opener, this is it. You can be in line at the grocery store, serving jury duty or pushing papers around at work – it doesn’t matter where you are - this line never fails.

Everyone seems willing to talk about the weather. It’s a built-in, slam-dunk, easy topic that allows complete strangers to either commiserate or celebrate, depending on the daily meteorological situation.

So, what is it with the weather? Why do we love to discuss, comment and re-hash it?

Weather is complicated, frustrating and ultimately uncertain. Weather breaks our hearts and lifts our moods and forces daily choices for everyone. Weather drives our decisions, affects our attitudes and makes fellow survivors out of strangers.

Weather is our most true common denominator. No matter what our life circumstances - student, professional, retiree – when you live in the same geographic area, you and your fellow community members have the weather in common.

Weather doesn’t care about politics or sports teams or vacations or the date on the calendar. It is an equal opportunity annoyer and a great equalizer – everyone has to drive in snow, or dash to the car in the rain, or stand in long lines at the fair in the hot sun. Almost everyone has had a picnic cancelled, a vacation spoiled or a ball game rained out.

But weather is also the unexpectedly warm, sunny, sweet-smelling spring morning that causes smiles and banter with co-workers. It’s the light snow flurries that add sparkle to early December and prompts holiday greetings between shoppers. It’s the crisp, snappy feel of fall football games and the slow, sultry, humidity of summer evenings spent on backyard patios. It’s the backdrop of every day of our lives.

So, what is it with the weather? Maybe we love the topic because it’s universal. Maybe we love the excitement of something that will change – either for the good or the bad. Maybe it’s that it is temporary and fleeting and some- thing to either be withstood or enjoyed, knowing that it will not last. Maybe it’s simply because weather is always with us... whether we like it or not.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

The way forward is hard enough to find

To the Editor:

Some people don’t get it, or they do get it and they just don’t care. Yes, we have free speech in this country, but we don’t have free “hate speech.” No, we are not on the playground anymore, but one thing we were to learn in school and on the playground was how to use civil discourse. Let me break that down for you: the use of coherent, calm arguments to make you points.

Unfortunately, we have just been assaulted for the last four years by a president who used insults, slurs, lies and just plain meanness to make his points. His great disrespect for women was unveiled almost daily. He has no respect or appreciation for anything but himself and his family and friends. If you voted for him, you were misguided and used.

Remembering Rush Limbaugh

To the Editor:

I am truly saddened to hear about the passing of Mr. Rush Limbaugh. He was one of the greatest and most influential voices in American politics, and if you didn’t listen to his show it’s definitely your loss; especially if you consider yourself to be at all open-minded. The conservative world will miss his genius, and the «golden EIB microphone» will never see another one like him. A truly deserved tribute came from Jordan Levy who said: «He made you think.»

Some will say that Limbaugh’s show only made you follow, but those who called in there often criticized the past and current actions of republicans. You can say what you want about that, but if you want to listen to a bunch of totally one-sided, liberal puppet followers - which includes the shows hosts - tune into the Braude/Eagan radio program that’s on WGBH (Boston). Try it and get back to me if you disagree!

In-person learning will return at Woodstock Academy

To the Editor:

We hope this letter finds you and your loved ones safe and healthy.

As we all know, this year has been challenging on many levels, and we truly miss having the students on campus. Our primary goal has been to provide all of our students with the healthiest and most educationally-sound experience we can during this pandemic.

Throughout this process, we have been working with our area health professionals, looking at specific transmission rates, following protocols, using CDC Guidelines, and soliciting feedback from families. The most frustrating part for us lately has been that even as we tried to increase the frequency and numbers of students learning on campus, the weather has not been cooperative.

After reviewing the new CDC Guidelines, seeing downward trends in the positivity rates, and feeling optimistic about the increase in vaccinations, we are finally more comfortable moving toward returning students to an in-person educational experience for the last three months of the school year. While we cannot guarantee complete success given the guidelines we are still required to follow, we feel that ending the year with our students in school is extremely important for our community.

While more specific information will be coming out as we get closer to each step in this process, we wanted to provide a basic outline for what it will look like.

For the remaining days of February and the month of March, we will remain with the current schedule of providing two days of on-campus learning. We will also be continuing with all current activities (music, athletics, etc.) and the Intensive Learning Lab. The current virtual program will remain the same for all students.

Effective Monday, April 5, we will have four days of on-campus learning (Monday, Tuesday, Thursday, and Friday). Students will be assigned to either the Monday/Thursday group, or the Tuesday/Friday group. Wednesday will be a virtual day for all students. Each student will be assigned to one group. Those students/families who decide they do not want to return to in-person classes will need to opt-out. Virtual learning options will only be offered on Wednesdays

Biden is our President

To the Editor:

The election has been over for nearly four months now. Biden is our President. Nevertheless, there are 75 million people out there who did not vote for Biden. Many, if not most of these people, feel the election was somehow stolen. However, they did not and do not today have sufficient rock solid proof to base their stolen election claim on. Still their faith in the integrity of our election system has reached a new low.

What, then, are we to do as a nation to heal this unease and restore faith and creditability to our election process for all voters? I believe we need to tighten up the voter process similar to many other things citizens are required to

His actions leading up to the insurrection on Jan. 6, and his behavior on that day, should be your final proof. If you have decided to model yourself after this man and his ilk, please rethink your plan.

We have many, many challenges facing all of us in our nation and world. Name calling and berating one another will not lead us to decisions and compromises we must make on these important issues. Everyone is feeling the pressure and weight of these times, but we must strive to be kind and explain our positions calmly and rationally. If not, we have lost much, and the way forward will be even harder to find.

KAREN WARINSKY
WOODSTOCK

Kudos to Mr. Limbaugh’s guest-hosts, Mark Steyn and Todd Herman, who filled in for Rush while he was undergoing cancer treatments. Kudos also to «Bo Snerdley” for his behind the scenes work. (Snerdley, actually producer and engineer, James Golden, worked for Mr. Limbaugh for the past 20 years, and is a black man if that matters).

The liberal media (and other haters) of course took their measly shots at Rush Limbaugh’s passing, but they can only dream to ever achieve the same iconic status that he did.

Thank God that there is still conservative radio in the liberal states of Connecticut, Massachusetts, Rhode Island, as well as throughout the country, and I sincerely thank those stations and their hosts who will carry on in Mr. Rush Limbaugh’s absence.

ED DELUCA

and during scheduled office hours between students and teachers. More specific information will be forthcoming as we finalize these plans.

After April break, we will continue to offer the four-day schedule but will begin to phase in additional students. So, starting on Monday, April 26, all ninth-grade students will return to school four days a week. As long as the current trends continue, our goal is to have everyone back on campus four days a week by early May.

We are very aware that our community views students returning to in-person classes very differently at this time. Each time we take steps to expand student access to in-person learning we typically see about 30-35 percent of our day student population choose to remain fully virtual. We also frequently hear from another segment of the population that believes we should return the entire school population to in-person learning immediately. Navigating this reality is not easy; as our mission states, everyone deserves an equal educational experience.

We plan to have many of the traditional activities for students throughout the last few weeks of school, as allowable by the state. Conversations are underway about proms, class night, Freshman Scholar Breakfast, and several other events. Although they may appear different than in the past, we are committed to making these special events memorable.

Our 133rd Commencement will be held on Saturday, June 12 at 10 a.m. While I can’t speak to every detail of the event, the date and time have been set to celebrate our senior class.

Although this year has been far from typical, we are hopeful that we can end the school year with some normalcy for our students who have been impacted by so much. We want to thank everyone for their patience and support of their students. We are confident that ending the year in person honors our commitment put students first.

Stay safe and be well.

be qualified for, before being able to actually do them.

As an example, my recent experience renewing my CT CDL license comes to mind. This license enables me to legally drive trailer trucks. In order to originally get this license years ago, I had to provide two forms of identification (birth certificate and marriage license is typical) my social security number, two forms of proof of Connecticut residency and proof of legal presence in the United States (passport in my case). All of which remains in the DMV record files.

Fast forward to now. First, I got a letter from the Connecticut Department of Motor vehicles

Turn To HULL page A11

Conversations about COVID

The conversations are nearly the same. Whether I am “meeting” with my book club, poetry class, church service or writing seminar, the first few minutes are spent with everyone weighing in on where they are in terms of their vaccine shots. We cover locations, a pharmacy or a health center or even Foxboro stadium, Pfizer or Moderna, side effects and first or second appointments. Concern, anxiety and relief hang in the air.

Many of my friends are eligible for the 65 and over category, but among those who are younger, there are questions about when they will get the shot. What about teachers? Or the workers at supermarkets? Should one hang around a site toward the end of the day to see if there are no-shows or extra doses?

The questions, the hypotheticals, the true stories and the worries bubble up. Most people whom I talk with think Gov. Lamont has done a good job. Somehow, we act as if this is a surprise. I guess we assume that our leader in Hartford is probably not good. It’s refreshing to see that a wealthy businessman with a quavering voice is in fact capable of getting the job done. Good for us, I say.

I listen to Boston radio stations. In my mind, the city is the gold standard for research, innovation and pure concentration of brain power, but neighboring Massachusetts isn’t doing a great job vaccinating. It is twice as large as Connecticut, but something seems to be off. Neighbors are important and I hope the Commonwealth and Rhode Island forge ahead and catch up to us quickly.

I haven’t hugged my grandchildren, my children or my friends in over a year. I’m ready for that to change. We may never return to the exuberant kissing, inspired by the French and Hollywood, that was rife before the pandemic. More than once I was smacked on each cheek by people I had just met. Kissing nearly replaced the handshake, which is done for as well. I’m ready to bump elbows or do Namaste hands when I meet people. If a safer form of greeting comes along, let’s embrace it.

Our behaviors show how we deal with risk, which may be as inborn as it is learned. I’ve known risk takers, who were first in line to sky dive or bungee jump. My husband’s best friend from his days at an all boys’ high school still scares us. Whether flying a small plane or not wearing a mask, he feels perfectly safe.

In investing, my husband says, there is a system to analyze how much risk an investor wants to take. The right mix might be 60 percent in stocks and 40 percent in bonds and cash or something a bit different. When stocks are bubbling up, people might want to increase their holdings, even though the prices are higher. The choices are based on many factors but tolerance of risk matters.

Our doctor assures us that once we have received both shots and waited the prescribed number of days, we will be well protected. We will still wear masks in public places, but our personal sense of risk will be low. As the vaccine becomes more universal, people will feel better, but it will take a long time for everyone to adapt to low, but probably not completely, risk free life.

The Governor just announced the vaccine roll-out will be based solely on age except for educators and school workers. By, May it will cover 16 year olds. Whew! Life is risky, but it will be good to stop talking about it.

Here's How It Works:

Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

Sonja L. Healey

Sonja L. Healey went home to be with her Lord on February 4, 2021. She was born on July 20, 1930, Sonja Lindgren Healey grew up in New York City and Öland, Sweden. Her Swedish heritage was important to her. She moved to Woodstock, Connecticut as a teenager and graduated from Woodstock Academy in 1948. Sonja's life revolved around farm, family, and faith.

Sonja married Kenneth Healey in 1950. They farmed together for more than 60 years, milking cows at Echo Farm until 1973 and then raising vegetables and flowers at Woodstock Farms.

They were a committed team. Sonja was well-known for her hospitality and home-cooking.

Sonja was a devoted mother and best friend to her four daughters, Ruth, Joy, Heidi, and Amy. When her children moved away, she wrote to them every day until technology enabled them to connect via Skype each morning.

Sonja was adored by her grandchildren. Ruth and Joe Mauk's children are Martha Goebel, Rachel and Shane Stevenson, Elizabeth and Dominick Marandola, Priscilla and Andrew Leighton, and Miriam and EJ Bongolan. Jimmy and Joy Ng's children are Suzanne and Matthew Jensen, Jenny and David McEwen, and Sarah and Jason Brazel. Sonja lived with Amy and Rick at Woodstock Farms after Ken passed away eight years ago. She picked beans and strawberries, watered flowers, manned the stand, and was a consultant. She enjoyed visiting with customers, who quickly became friends. She was honored on her 90th birthday last summer when many friends and loyal customers stopped at the stand to wish her well.

Sonja's faith in Jesus Christ was her foundation. She was an avid student of the Bible, a faithful church member, a prayer warrior, and a mentor and inspiration to many. She had a heart for missions. She and her sister, Linnea Kallgren, taught a Bible Study together for more than 30 years.

Mormor is greatly missed. Her shoes cannot be filled, but her example and legacy will continue to inspire and encourage us.

Frances Jean Pittman

Frances Jean (Blanchette) Pittman was born March 24, 1949 in Putnam, Connecticut to Larry and Aline (Johnson) Blanchette, who preceded her in death. Fran attended Putnam High School, transferring to Killingly High her senior year. She enjoyed coming north to attend reunions and catch up with friends from both schools. Fran married Donald “Donn” Pittman on February 14, 1969. She and Donn celebrated 52 years of marriage this past Valentine's Day. They lived in Columbus, Ohio for many years before finally settling in Mt. Pleasant, South Carolina. Fran always enjoyed hosting her northern family from Ohio and Connecticut. She was happy to give her visitors tours of Charleston, walk the beach at Isle of Palms, or picnic in the park under the Ravenel Bridge. Her many nieces and nephews adored her and loved the creative ways she found to make them feel special.

Fran had many hobbies, including selling swap meet treasures on eBay and working on the family genealogy. She was a member of the DAR and had traced her maternal side back to the Mayflower. She was working on the Blanchette side as well. She loved connecting with relatives to share old family photographs.

While Fran will be missed by all, she will truly be missed by her best friend and partner, Donn. In Donn's words; he was so fortunate to have her in his life. We have all lost one of the most caring, kind, and devoted people. Fran is irreplaceable.

Her memorial service will be held Sunday, March 7, 2021 at 3:00 pm at J. Henry Stuhr, Inc. Mount Pleasant Chapel, 1494 Mathis Ferry Road, Mt. Pleasant, SC 29464. Friends may call one hour prior to the service. A second service, a celebration of life, will be held at a later date.

Fran is survived by her husband, Donn; her greatest (and only) sister, Anne Milliard (Jim); nieces, Carrie Blackmar (Richard) and Catherine Bazinet (Rob); great nieces, Morgan and Lauren Blackmar; great niece and nephew, Iris and Asa Bazinet; and so many more cousins and nieces and nephews, all of whom she truly loved.

In lieu of flowers, Fran would want to be remembered with donations made to any local food bank.

that was my notice to renew CDL. The notice stated that prior to coming to DMV, in person,

I needed to provide proof of holding a valid medical certificate which needed to be on file with DMV. These cost about $150 to secure and requires a doctor’s exam. They can be issued for either one or two years, and must be carried on ones person along with your license. Having completed that, I then had to go to a Connecticut DMV Web site and do what DMV calls a self-certification. If OK, this is approved online, and I had to then print out a copy of that approval and bring it with me to the DMV office. Next, I had to make an appointment, well in advance, to appear only at a certain day and time at only the Willimantic DMV to renew my CDL license. I can happily report that the DMV office in Willimantic was well run, on time, and efficient. I paid my $70 renewal fee and was out of there in less than 20 minutes. My faith in the Connecticut license renewal program is high.

Now let’s compare my license renewal process to the voting process. There can be no real comparison as most states allow same day voter registration and automatic voter registration.

This can lead to multiple registrations by the same individual as well as registration of non-citizens and others ineligible to vote. Same day registrations don’t give election officials any/ enough time to verify registration information. Additionally, no one should be automatically registered without being asked if they want to do so.

There are five things states can and should be doing to restore integrity to our election process;

Clean up the voter rolls. Computerized statewide voter registration lists should be interoperable, allowing them to communicate seamlessly with other state data bases, exchanging and comparing information frequently.

Verify citizenship. Only US citizens are allowed to vote. Therefore, proof of citizenship should be required in order to register to vote.

Require voter ID. Whether voting in person or by absentee ballot, a government issued photo ID should be required.

Limit mail in ballots. Mail in ballots are vulnerable to being altered, stolen, or forged. Past experiences in New Jersey and New York indicate as many as one in five of mail in ballots are rejected as deficient in some way.

Ban vote harvesting. This process allows third parties to collect and deliver completed ballots. This opens the door for unscrupulous operators to alter, lose, change or coerce at home voters to fill out ballots as the operator wishes with no oversight by any election officials.

In conclusion, our country’s voting process is so riddled with holes that significant damage is being done to our democracy. Yes, very vote needs to be counted but the above is also needed so that we know every vote is legitimate. Only then will peoples trust in our election process be reaffirmed.

people to get that feeling of taking and giving, that you can take a book and leave a book. I just think this will be a great community sharing opportunity,” Miller said. “We are right here on the school campus and I really hope it will engage people and inspire them to come down and join us in our mission here and feel like these campuses blend, which they really do. We hope the entire public will come down and this will be a good source of joy for people for many years to come.”

Jason Bleau, TEEG’s Volunteer Coordinator, said he was impressed by the result as well having assigned the project to Shane Yurkevicius in late 2020.

“When Shane came to us asking to bring something new to TEEG as part of his Eagle Scout project this was the first thing that came to mind. Anne had brought up the idea of a little library before and Shane was more than happy to make it happen for us. I think the result is fantastic and I can’t wait for the community to see the great work he put into this. It’s such a cool addition to TEEG. We also plan to add a plaque to the library ourselves thanking Shane for his hard work,” Bleau said.

In addition to donations by TEEG staff, TEEG also stocked the little library with books purchased through a partnership with the Scripps Foundation which includes material for readers ranging from beginners to middle schoolers and young adults. Shane Yurkevicius and TEEG would like to thank Chace Building Supply, Harrington Healthcare Systems, Webster Lake Sporting, Inc., and The Hanover Insurance Group for their assistance in making the little library possible.

Video game ratings rundown

Video game ratings suggest age appropriateness so consumers can be confident that the games they purchase are suitable for the person who will ultimately be playing the game. These ratings are developed by the Entertainment Software Rating Board, or ESRB, and can be especially valuable to consumers purchasing games for children and adolescents.

- E: This rating means the content of the game is generally suitable for gamers of all ages. Games rated “E” may contain minimal cartoon, fantasy or mild violence and/or infrequent use - of mild language.

- E10+: An E10+ rating means the game is generally suitable for everyone ages 10 and up. Games that earn an E10+ rating may contain more cartoon, fantasy or mild violence and mild language than games rated E. Games that fall into this category also may contain minimal suggestive themes.
- T: Games rated T are generally suitable for players age 13 and up. These games may contain violence, suggestive themes, crude humor, minimal blood, simulated gambling, and/or use of strong language.

- M: An M rating stands for “Mature 17+.” An M rating indicates that the content is generally suitable for gamers ages 17 and up. These games may contain intense violence, blood and gore, sexual content, and/or strong language.
- AO: This rating signifies that a game is suitable only for adults ages 18 and up. The ESRB notes that games in this category may include prolonged scenes of intense violence, graphic sexual content and/or gambling with real currency.
- RP: An RP rating means the ESRB has yet to assign a final rating to the game. An RP rating will not appear on games in a store. The RP rating will only appear in advertising, marketing and promotional materials related to a physical video game that is expected to carry an ESRB rating. Consumers concerned about the age-appropriateness of games with RP ratings can wait until the ESRB assigns a rating before purchasing the game.

Recognizing the meanings behind video game ratings is a great way for consumers to ensure young gamers do not play games deemed inappropriate for their ages.

Signs your tools may need some TLC

A do-it-yourselfer is only as good as his or her tools. Without the proper tools, even the handiest men and women may struggle to complete jobs well within their abilities.

It doesn't take a seasoned do-it-yourselfer to recognize when hammers and screwdrivers need to be replaced. And such tools are generally so affordable that replacing them, even when they still have some utility, won't affect too many DIYers' budgets. However, power tools are considerable investments that do not necessarily need to be discarded when the first signs of trouble pop up. In fact, sometimes power tools just need some TLC to become useful once again. The following are some common symptoms of power tool problems, and what may be behind those problems.

Difficulty starting

A power tool that won't start can delay a project. But a tool that won't start should not be immediately written off, especially not before DIYers employ a multimeter. The cost of digital multimeters varies widely, with some retailing for less than $20 while others sell for hundreds and hundreds of dollars. Serious DIYers who spend every weekend working on one project or another may find the more expensive multimeters more to their liking, but many weekend warriors can get by with less expensive alternatives. Multimeters are useful because they can measure voltage on a power tool to determine if power is effectively moving through the tool.

Dust and dirt also can compromise power tools. This may be especially likely in spring, a time synonymous with home renovations, when many homeowners pick up their tools for the first time in months. Inspect a power tool that's not starting to see if dust or dirt is the culprit. If so, clean the tool and then try to start it again.

Loss of power

Some power tools may start but still lack the extra muscle that make power tools more beneficial than manual tools. In such instances, the carbon brushes might need to be replaced.

The online resource ereplacement. parts.com notes that heat damage to brushes can reduce the overall conductivity of the brush, resulting in less power reaching the tool's motor. In such instances, replace the carbon brushes. In addition, chipped or damaged brushes can result in inconsistent power output. Replacing the brushes in such instances may be all that's necessary to restore a tool to its powerful self.

Burning smell

Many a DIYer has dealt with a power tool that emits an odor of burning. The power tool experts at Grainger notes that tools like sanders contain drive belts, and these belts should be the first place to look when tools produce a burning smell. When the drive belt is to blame, the tool will typically stop working even when the motor is running. Capacitors may be behind the burning smell when using tools without drive belts. Sometimes tools have simply overheated. Whenever DIYers get a whiff of that burning smell, turn off the tool immediately and let it sit for 30 minutes before trying to diagnose the problem. Replacing these parts can restore them to full usefulness and get rid of that unwelcome aroma.

Replacing worn or damaged power tool parts as opposed to the tools themselves is often the most budget-friendly way to get these must-have DIY accessories back on track.
