CHESTER P. TUTTLE AMERICAN LEGION POST 279

AUBURN — On Sept. 6, the Chester P. Tuttle American Legion Post 279 held a ceremony to recognize Vietnam veterans from their post, and from the town of Auburn.

To begin the event, everyone was asked to go outside to a memorial tribute to the fallen Vietnam veterans. Surrounding the Traveling Vietnam Wall, owned by the Vietnam Veterans for the Community, Commander Rich Larson led a dedication of the memorial with the Star Spangled Banner, a prayer by Chaplain Don Legasy, a dedication of the monument representing Soldiers that never made it back, and then Taps.

When that was finished, everyone reentered the banquet hall for the rest of the program. Senior Vice Commander Steve Gallant introduced Ray Robidoux to read a poem by Red Burnette. Gallant introduced the speakers for the event, leading off with Massachusetts State Senator Michael Moore followed by Massachusetts State Representative Paul Frost. After that was the Town Manager Dori Vecchio. Following was a speech by Vietnam Veterans for the Webster selectmen delay Swinging Chicken decision

BY GUS STEEVES
CORRESPONDENT

WEBSTER — The selectmen put on hold a decision regarding the Swinging Chicken's plan to have outdoor concerts, sending it to the Planning Board for site plan review first.

That was pretty much what the proponents, owner Sergio Manzi and attorney Mike Jalbert, were hoping to avoid. Jalbert argued the site already has noise control in the form of an eight-foot fence "out of respect and courtesy to existing abutters."

The long-extant bar on Lake Street wants to have bands on its back patio on "a limited number of Saturdays from 2-6 p.m.," with one this year and about 12 every year going forward, Jalbert said. He later noted he sent out 54 abutter letters, but only got four responses.

Residents, however, said noise there already "disrupts to a great extent the enjoyment of our property," in Carolina Cooper's words. She said this is her second summer living here, and described it as already being "a noisy background" she can hear with closed windows, curtains and the TV on. Although noise is not always an issue, she said she often hears it "after the venue closes," with people hanging out nearby "late into the night" and sometimes from arriving or departing vehicles' loud engines.

Debbie Jolin said her house faces the bar's back end, so she "can hear when there are people on the back porch area talking and laughing in our bedroom." She's concerned concerts there will result in "outdoor partying until I don't know what kind of hours."

Another woman claimed she sees "one guy out there smoking all the time" who can see into her house despite the fence. She also cited on-street parking issues where she's had to wait more than an hour for people to move their cars that were blocking her driveway.

Parking seemed to be a contention, with Jalbert saying Manzi wants to add spaces and is willing to call police on errant parkers. But Planner Ann Morgan said the site plans reduce it, and there was "a lot of concern" about parking when they added that back patio several years ago. To her, it's likely the bands will use some of the parking, reducing it further for customers.

Morgan said the bar is a "pre-existing non-conforming use" in that residential district (meaning it predates zoning) and urged the board to delay until the Planning Board reviews it.

Earl Gabor agreed, saying he's "lived next to a bar in Webster for 40 years" and has seen numerous issues. To him, the basic need is for "mutual respect for one another."

Mark Rogers noted he wants to hear from Fire Chief Saad about safety. Although the town has a noise bylaw, "the decibel limitations aren't that effective because the bands are at the highest level constantly," he added.

Tom Klebart agreed, saying there also needs to be a clear

Dudley, Charlton receive state dam grants

BY JASON BLEAU
CORRESPONDENT

DUDLEY/CHARLTON — Dudley and Charlton have both been awarded funding through the Executive Office of Energy and Environmental Affairs Dam and Seawall Repair or Removal Program that will allow each community to perform much needed work on dams and structures essential to water control and public safety.

The two towns are among 23 municipalities awarded the state funding. Dudley is receiving $250,000 for the rehabilitation of the Lower Gore Pond Dam, while Charlton will receive $89,900 to fund a feasibility study for the removal of the Lower Sibley Pond Dam. The grants are intended to help communities address structural issues that could put local homes and roads at risk if the waterways were to overflow.

Dudley Town Administrator Jonathan Ruda broke the news during a Board of Selectmen meeting on Sept. 8, calling the Lower Gore Pond Dam project long overdue after several years of applying.

“(Former Town Planner) Bill Scanlon put in the original application and it follows our strategy to pursue grant funding to mitigate all of the many town dams that are on their way out around town, repair them, in some cases we can engineer them down to have them removed altogether,” said Ruda.

In Charlton, Town Administrator Andrew Golas said the funding will be essential determine designs and costs for resolving the Lower Sibley Pond Dam situation.

“This dam had been identified as structurally deficient by the Office of Dam Safety (ODS) last year. The dam was previously identified as a privately owned dam by ODS. Further title search of the property found that the dam was located on property owned by the Town. Since this discovery, we have been working with our consulting engineers and the Executive Office of Energy and Environmental Affairs on opportunities to address this hazard through the Dam and Seawall Repair or Removal Program,” said Golas.

In a press release announcing the grants, the Healey-Driscoll Administration called the overall investment of $10.9 million in funding an important step forward in protecting neighborhoods from disaster. The Dam and Seawall Program provides funding for the design, permitting, and construction of these infrastructure projects which the administration noted are often the first line of defense for communities against flood risks and storm damage. The Dam and Seawall program has provided nearly $146 million in grants and loans since its inception in 2013.

Kipper is a gentle soul with a big personality, searching for a loving home to enjoy his golden years. Sweet and affectionate, he thrives on companionship and adores being around his people. He's the perfect mix of calm and playful—happy to join you for a walk or romp with his stuffed toys, and just as content to curl up beside you for a snuggle.
Fully housetrained and crate-trained, Kipper already knows all the basics—"sit," "down," "paw," "place," "off," and even "roll over!"—and he's still learning new tricks!
Kipper would love a loving home (no cats, please!) where he can lounge on a soft bed, enjoy tasty treats, and bask in all the love and attention he deserves. Despite everything he's been through—including arriving at Baypath underweight—Kipper's resilience shines through. He's ready to embrace this next chapter with his trademark charm, strength, and gentle heart.

Plant this fall for beautiful spring bouquets

A bouquet consisting of unique daffodil varieties found in one of Longfield Gardens' daffodil bulb collections.

This fall plant an array of spring flowering bulbs to brighten your garden and bouquets. There are plenty of daffodils, tulips, hyacinths and alliums that will delight with an assortment of flower colors and sizes that will bloom throughout the spring.

Include animal resistant double, bicolor, and split cup daffodils that provide unique beauty and impact in floral arrangements. Create a simple bouquet with just a few stems of daffodils or an elegant arrangement of single and double flowered varieties.

Harvest daffodils when the buds show color and are perpendicular to the stem like a goose's neck. Don't worry about the sap daffodils exude, shortening the life of the other cut flowers in the arrangement. Properly conditioning the daffodils will eliminate the risk to your other spring

favorites

Consider wearing gloves as some people report itching or rashes when handling these plants. Use your hands to harvest daffodils for the longest stems possible and to reduce sap released from the stem. Reach into the base of the flower stem, thumb pointed down and pull up. Cut the stems of freshly picked daffodils to the desired length for conditioning. Place them in a clean container of cool water and floral preservative. Leave them in the water for three to six hours when the sap stops flowing. Do not recut the stems before adding them to mixed flower arrangements.

Tulips have long been a favorite of gardeners and floral arrangers. Grow some taller varieties like Finola, Foxtrot, Silver Parrot Tulips and Negrita Double (longfield-gardens.com).

Gardeners growing tulips strictly for cutting will plant the bulbs in trenches and treat them as annuals. The first-year bloom is always the biggest, but you can enjoy them cut and try for a second and third year of flowers. Just cut the stems short and leave at least two to three leaves on the plant to create and store energy for next year's bloom.

Harvest tulips when the buds are just starting to show color for the longest vase life. Wait for double and parrot type tulip buds to be fully colored but not yet open. Remove the whole plant, bulb and all, if you do not plan on saving the plants for the following year. Store the tulips upright with the bulbs attached. Cut and rehydrate the stems in water just before arranging.

Wrap the stems in brown paper if they are cut in the garden or when you rehydrate the stems and set them in several inches of cool water for 12 to 18 hours. Keep in mind tulips continue to grow after cut so plan for this when creating your arrangements.

Harvest hyacinths for cutting as you did tulips. Pull the whole plant, bulb and all, out of the ground if you are growing them as annuals for cutting. Otherwise, cut only the stem and leave all the leaves behind if you want the bulbs to bloom again next year.

Include a variety of alliums in your planting plans this fall. Alliums' long and sturdy stems make them easy to harvest and arrange. Purple Sensation, Mount Everest, drumstick allium and Allium atropurpureum make excellent additions for floral bouquets.

Cutting and arranging flowers is a wonderful way to bring the beauty of your garden indoors. The more you do it, the easier it gets, and you'll soon be sharing your flowers with friends, neighbors, family, coworkers, and everyone who stops by to admire your gardens.

*Building
stronger communities through
purpose*

It doesn't take long to see the strength of our towns when neighbors come together with a common goal. In the past few weeks, we've seen it in classrooms, churches, and on athletic fields. From Long Subaru's generosity at Park Avenue Elementary, to the Dudley Woman's Club launching its 18th year of service, to Shepherd Hill students organizing a 5K to fight mental health stigma, the theme is the same: when people invest in one another, good things grow.

This is what makes our local communities resilient. They are not defined only by their borders or their budgets, but by the willingness of residents to give time, talent, and support. Volunteers baking for festivals, businesses donating supplies, students stepping forward to address issues bigger than themselves — all of these efforts weave a fabric that keeps towns strong even when challenges mount.

It is worth noting that these contributions don't come from any single group. They come from teenagers with a vision for change, from retirees offering quiet guidance, from local businesses putting people before profit. Each act, no matter how small, sends a message: this place matters, and the people in it matter.

At a time when many towns across Massachusetts wrestle with questions of growth, development, and how to preserve their character, these everyday examples of shared purpose are reminders of what is most important. A thriving community is not built overnight, and it cannot be bought. It is built in classrooms, on playing fields, at local libraries, and in volunteer halls. It is built when people decide that being part of a town means giving back to it.

As we head into the fall, let's take inspiration from our neighbors who have already shown what's possible. Whether it's cheering at a school event, offering to serve on a local board, or simply showing up to support a fundraiser, we all have a role to play.

Strong communities don't happen by accident. They are the result of shared purpose, repeated often, across generations. That is the tradition in our region, and it is worth protecting.

Letters to the Editor must include the author's name, address, and a daytime phone number for purposes of verification in order to be considered for publication. THE DEADLINE to submit letters to the editor and commentaries for next week's newspaper is Friday at noon. SEND ALL ITEMS to Editor Brendan Berube at The WEBSTER TIMES — news@stonebridgepress.news

The antidote in a divided, angry and violent world

Our country has been shaken once again. The assassination of Charlie Kirk. Another school shooting on the very same day. Violence that fills us with shock, anger, fear and even numbness.

"I cried all day when I heard that Charlie Kirk was killed," one parishioner lamented to me. Another depressing stated, "It's so disturbing how a death causes more division instead of unity. It's getting scary how much hate exists between the different political sides in our country."

Do you feel it? That weight? That heaviness in our society?

We live in a time when political violence is rising on all sides. People are angry and afraid. Tragedies no longer shock us but fill us with fury because they happen so often. When the death of people —whether a political figure or children in a school— do not lead to mourning and unity, but instead sparks more arguments, more hatred, more division, something is wrong!

In the middle of this, however, I look around our Saints Constantine and Helen Church Family in Webster and see something different.

Here in our church, we are not all the same. We don't all vote the same. We don't all watch the same news. We surely don't all hold the same political opinions. We have passionate conservatives sitting next to committed progressives! And somehow—somehow—we remain one community, one family. And we actually love one another!

How is that possible?

It's not because we're all naturally patient or kind. It's not because we've found the perfect political balance. It's not because we always agree. No! It's because in this community of faith, we try to focus on the Good News of Jesus Christ and not on our politics.

A dear friend, Fr. Nicholas Halkias wrote a provocative and powerful reflection on social media:

"The soul of America is dying. Not because Charlie Kirk or students in Denver or a Ukrainian refugee or innocent victims in Gaza were killed, but because there are people who are happy that these deaths took place."

Think about that. The real tragedy, the real death is that human hearts are celebrating when others die. We've turned our enemies into monsters instead of seeing them as human beings.

There is no defense for what is going on in our country right now, and if anyone is going to point the finger to someone else besides themselves, then we're not even looking at the problem. The only thing that will begin our country's recovery are four words: "I am to blame."

Not the news. Not the government. Not the other side.

BEYOND THE PEWS

SAINTS CONSTANTINE AND HELEN GREEK ORTHODOX CHURCH, WEBSTER

conciliation in the face of division. The Cross is compassion and grace in the midst of rigid legalism.

From the Cross, our Lord cried out: "Father, forgive them, for they do not know what they are doing." God expects us to embrace this spirit of mercy and grace toward our enemies.

Every time we make the sign of the Cross, or whenever we feel the cross around our necks, we need to remember to forgive, to love, to reconcile, to act as peacemakers. Every time we kiss the Cross, we are kissing the way of mercy, the way of compassion, the way of sacrificial love.

But how does this look in practice?

When someone posts something on social media that makes your blood boil—we don't respond with anger, sarcasm, mockery but choose patience, understanding, and restraint. When a conversation at work or with family turns heated over a difference of opinions, we don't raise our voice and add to the chaos but we choose to listen respectfully and try to understand. When our society tells us, "Your political opponent, all democrats or all republicans, are your enemy" we choose to see the other as a fellow human being, a child of God created in His image whom we are called to love.

Our faith does not allow us to demonize others. Our faith does not allow us to rejoice in the suffering of others. Our faith does not allow us to give up in fear or become numb and say, "This is just how things are."

Christians follow the crucified and resurrected Lord Jesus. Saint Paul tells us that "the word of the cross is folly to those who are perishing." God expects us to be different from the world. He expects us to act as a light in the darkness. He invites us to serve as His ambassadors of love and mercy and grace to society.

And the good news is—we already have a beautiful witness to offer here in our Church Family in Webster. We surely do not agree on everything. Far from it. But here, week after week, we stand side by side as brothers and sisters. We offer the same prayers. We sing the same hymns. We embrace one another and give the kiss of peace at each Divine Liturgy. We approach the same chalice "with the fear of God, with faith and love." Yes, we hold extremely different political views, yet we choose to remain a loving Family!

That is a miracle in today's America. The world outside is fractured, divided, angry, fearful. In this church, however, we show another way. In here, we live out the reality that Christ has broken down the wall of division between us. We cannot underestimate how powerful such a witness can be to the world.

When people see that our Church Family embraces conservatives and progressives, immigrants and lifelong citizens, people who loved Charlie Kirk along with people who rejected his message—when they see that, they see the Kingdom of God breaking into the world.

I challenged my parishioners not to let this spirit stop at the church doors. How we respond in times like this shows who we are. What we post on social media shows who we are. How we speak to our neighbors and coworkers reflects our true spirit.

Will we ignite the fires of division, or will we put out the flames of hatred? What will you choose? The way of anger, the suspicion, and hatred or the way of the Cross – following a path of forgiveness, mercy, compassion, reconciliation?

Yes, the world is angry. The world is afraid. The world is divided. But the Cross stands before us today as the antidote. The Cross shows us that love is stronger than hate; forgiveness is stronger than vengeance; reconciliation is stronger than division; life is stronger than death.

May we all take up the Cross by saying "I am to blame." And each time we want to blame and attack the other; let us each decide: "This ends with me. Nobody else. I am to blame." And then let us live differently.

*When investing,
one of the best abilities is

FINANCIAL FOCUS

DENNIS ANTONOPOULOS

You've probably heard about "genius" investors or those who got in on the "ground floor" of a company that grew to be a huge success. These stories may be interesting, but they are also rare — and sometimes not even true.

The truth is that successful investing isn't glamorous, and it isn't necessarily quick. Instead, a well-founded investing strategy is a durable one — one that can withstand the test of time.

Here are some actions that can help you build durability.

Take your time: Most individual investors make their money over time, not overnight. Despite stories about fortunes made on one or two trades, you're more likely to be successful making money over time. You'll want to own a well-diversified portfolio of quality investments — and plan to own those investments for the long term.

A long-term perspective can help you ignore the constant noise in the markets and stay invested. When you hear about the latest "hot" investment tip, especially if it's already performed well, the best advice is this: Ignore it. Although it may be tempting to buy a popular investment, it may not fit with the rest of your portfolio, it may have already peaked, and it may be riskier than you expect. If it sounds too good to be true, it probably is.

Invest in quality: When building your investment portfolio, quality should be a top priority. For stocks, quality is frequently measured by the steadiness of earnings and dividend growth over time. For bonds, one measure of quality is an investment-grade credit rating, which indicates that the borrower has a good track record of making its promised interest and principal payments and the bond has a relatively low risk of default.

Quality investments are more likely to overcome temporary challenges, which is why a good track record can be an indication of quality. Don't reach for yield by looking for investments offering the highest dividend or interest rate without considering the risk. Remember, there is no perfect investment — a higher rate generally means higher risk.

Stick to your strategy: Building a long-term strategy can anchor your decisions and provide a roadmap for your investment choices. Your strategy should consider your goals, tolerance for risk and the time needed to save toward each goal.

Within that strategy, you can be flexible. Buy and hold, for example, doesn't mean buy and forget. Over time, your goals may change, or you may choose to hold more conservative investments. But it's important to make changes for the right reasons, not simply because stocks or your other investments may have dropped in price.

Perhaps one of the biggest mistakes you can make is trying to time the markets, moving in and out in response to short-term declines or the latest prediction. This often results in getting into and out of the market at the wrong times, costing time and money — and resulting in lower returns over time.

Remember that investments don't all move up or down at the same time but portfolio diversification can help smooth the ups and downs of the market. A long-term perspective can help you see past short-term fluctuations in some investments.

Successful investing isn't about making dramatic moves or chasing the latest trends. It's about developing a durable strategy personalized for your life, then sticking with it through market ups and downs. In investing, as in life, slow and steady could help win the race.

Auburn and the American Revolutionary War, Part 6: The Bancroft Men

BY HELEN POIRIER
AUBURN HISTORICAL SOCIETY

The Bancroft name is a very prominent name in the history of the town. The Bancroft family was one of the original families that helped to form Worcester South Parish which is what Auburn was called in the beginning. Bancroft family names included in the General Court order that allowed for the forming of the South Parish of Worcester were William, Pheobe, Daniel, Jonas, and David.

In the “American Guide Series Auburn 1837-1937” book, other Bancroft names appear and are given credit for serving in the Revolutionary War. James and Jonas were sergeants, William was a corporal, Jonas Jr., Rahan, and Benjamin were privates. It is not known how these people are related or even if these names are related to each other due to the naming pattern that was followed in this time period and a lack of data.

David Eaton Bancroft was born in 1718 in Reading. His first wife Eunice was born in 1719 in Lynn. She died in 1777. Their children were Nathaniel, Timothy, Jonas, Jonathan, Ebenezer, and Mary. Timothy was the great-grandfather to Enoch who married Julia F. Knowles, a.k.a. Julia Bancroft. David Bancroft was a representative to the Worcester Provincial Congress and General Assembly in July of 1775. He served as a moderator at the first meeting for South Parish of Worcester in 1773. David also served on many town committees from 1773 -1785: finding the preacher, overseer of the treasurer, committee to incorporate, leather sealer, moderator, church construction, school committee to name a few. David moved to Worcester sometime before his son, Jonas, was born in 1745. It is likely the family lived around the Pakachoag Hill area that was incorporated into the South Parish of Worcester in 1773.

Jonas did his part in the Revolutionary War as a 4th Sergeant, in Capt. John Crowl’s company. of Colonel Ebenezer Learned’s regiment out of Oxford, which marched on the alarm of April 19, 1775, and he served eight days, according to the Massachusetts Soldiers and Sailors who served in the Revolutionary War. Jonas married Sarah Blood of Hollis, New Hampshire in 1769. They had two children, Jonas II, and John. Jonas also served in the town government and was listed as “Major” Jonas Bancroft in the town minutes of the first meeting of the “Town of Ward” in 1778. He was appointed the fence viewer, and In 1782, he was appointed as a hogreever.

According to a news article dated March of 1817, Jonas’s farm was in the southerly part of Ward and was about ninety-five acres of pasture and wood lots. The farm was being sold by Jonas Jr. for a down payment of $600 and the rest on credit. It was offered as a whole package or could be broken down into house lots.

A Daniel Bancroft was listed on the first warrant for the South Parish of Worcester on July 6, 1773, and on the committee July 27. On August 27 he was moderator for the first parish meeting. There was no Daniel Bancroft in the vital records listing or in the burial grounds.

“The American Guide Series Auburn 1837 – 1937” William Bancroft was credited to Ward and was listed as a Corporal, in Captain John Crowl’s company in the Colonel Ebenezer Learned’s regiment of Oxford which marched on the alarm of April 19, 1775, and serviced 12 days. No record of this service was listed in the “Massachusetts Soldiers and Sailors who served in the Revolutionary War.” William served the town of Ward from 1778 – 1782 as sealer of lumber, on the school squadron for second district, field driver, fence viewer, warden and a bondsman for Benjamin Carter Jr., who didn’t pay his taxes in 1785. Lastly, he was a highway supervisor in 1782. In the birth vital records of Auburn there was a William married to Mary, and they had a child Phebe in November of 1782.

James Bancroft was also listed in the same book and was a 4th sergeant in the same company as William, but again no listing in the “Massachusetts Soldiers and Sailors who served in the Revolutionary War.”

As for Phoebe Bancroft being listed as one of the original families, women’s information in this is very scarce. No Phoebe was listed as married to any of the men coming from Worcester. It could be that she was a widow and was living on land that was being included in the South Parish of Worcester.

Bancroft Street runs between Pakachoag Street and Millbury Street, which might have been where the Bancroft clan had lived in the 1770s. The Bancroft name has served the town greatly through the years and rightly deserves to have a street named after them.

Motivation. We all want it, but half the time it feels like it walked right out of the front door. It has a way of slipping through your fingers. One minute you’re fired up, ready to conquer the world. Next, you’re sprawled on the couch, scrolling through your phone, telling yourself you’ll “start tomorrow.”

What is it? Testosterone? Purpose? Willpower? Is it in the food we eat, or is it some mystical force that appears from time to time?

Here’s the truth: motivation isn’t magic, and it isn’t a mood. It’s not some lightning bolt from the gods. Motivation is a pattern your brain runs, a rhythm you can learn to catch. The real question isn’t “Where did it go?”—it’s “How do you make it show up tomorrow, the next day, and the day after that?”

We’ve all started the project with lots of motivation, but it often disappears before the finish line.

POSITIVELY

Scientists recently discovered something fascinating about motivation. In September 2024, researchers hooked participants up to brain monitors while they worked on learning tasks. What they found was striking: the instant someone realized they were making progress, their brain lit up like a switchboard. Focus sharpened. Distractions faded. Engagement skyrocketed.

Think about that for a second, it isn’t about standing at the finish line—it’s about noticing that you’re moving forward. Each time you recognize progress—no matter how small—your brain tosses you a reward—effort feels lighter. Momentum builds.

But here’s where some of us get stuck. We’re so focused on how far we have to go, we forget how far we’ve come.

I’m not a mountain climber, but I have hiked some challenging trails. It’s easy to start at the trailhead with determination, but when you’re only halfway and passing out on a boulder from exhaustion, complacency can take over fast. Perhaps you didn’t want to reach the top. Still, maybe you did, and you just lost motivation. Why?

It’s called finish line fixation. When you only measure yourself against the summit, your brain feels incompetent. When you’ve been hiking for 14 hours, night is approaching, and you still have another 14 to go, it’s easy to feel inept, to think, “I thought I’d be at the peak by now!”

It’s no good to beat yourself up, especially when you’re giving it your all.

A 2018 study found that people do best when they keep two things in mind: big, meaningful goals and the small victories along the way.

So when you’re only part of the way towards your goal, and frustration sets in, look back at the ground you’ve already covered. That perspective shift turns discouragement into momentum.

There have been many studies on motivation, and the science is clear: People are far more successful when they regularly track progress. Recognize how far you’ve come.

The summit matters, but so does the trail. Looking back at the challenges you’ve overcome thus far and recognizing your progress produces the dopamine your brain needs to gather more steam.

The brain doesn’t hand out dopamine for nothing—it’s a survival mechanism. Progress signals that you’re learning, adapting, and moving closer to a reward, which is exactly what kept our ancestors alive. That same wiring still runs the show today: every step forward tells your brain, “This path is working—keep going.”

Your brain doesn’t reward perfection—it rewards progress. That’s why some people quit inches from the breakthrough—not because they weren’t moving, but because their brain couldn’t recognize how far they’ve come. No receipts equals no motivation.

Of course, there will still be days when even focusing on your progress feels like it’s not helping. That’s when you pitch a tent, take a break, and start climbing again the next day.

So, here’s my challenge. Don’t wait for a spark. Don’t wait for the mood to hit. Today, write down one thing you’ve already done that proves you’re moving. Then take another step forward. Track it. Tomorrow, repeat it.

Do this long enough, and you’ll stop wondering where motivation went.

Because motivation doesn’t reward the dreamers. It rewards the doers.

A Medley of Seasonal Tips

Summer is winding down and as we’re trading in long summer nights for brisk autumn mornings, the focus shifts to the simple pleasures of the season. Read on for a potpourri of tips and tricks to make life a little easier during autumn and beyond.

Just because the bugs are waning doesn’t mean you have to ditch your stash of citronella. Before you toss or pack away this season’s supply of citronella oil, consider keeping it in the medicine cabinet. Citronella soothes aches and pains because it produces a subtle sensation of warmth when diluted in a massage oil and applied to the skin.

Why not repurpose your skin grade citronella oil? You can dilute citronella in unscented lotion or cream (up to 15 drops per ounce for normal skin; or up to six drops per ounce for sensitive skin, according to National Association for Holistic Aromatherapy)

Or try this tip for relieving arthritis pain: Try adding three drops of skin grade citronella essential oil per teaspoon of massage oil. Using this natural mixture in a friction massage can help bring relief to painful joints.

Note: Always dilute citronella before applying to skin. Clear its usage with your physician.

Has your indoor plants taken a back seat to the garden? Now’s the time to give them some TLC. To make your lackluster indoor plants glow try this trick: When watering your plants, simply mix tablespoon of castor oil to the water to rejuvenate them.

Also, did you know dusty leaves can be stunting your plant’s growth? Simply dusting the leaves exposes them to more beneficial light!

Want to pick a perfect apple this season? Make sure it’s firm and bruise free with a smooth skin. If you’re buying apples, keep in mind a green stem means it’s been freshly picked and not stored.

Every fall, I repeat this mind boggling fact, and here it is again: Apples stored at room temperature becomes soft ten times faster than if its refrigerated! So while it’s tempting to pile red apples in a bowl to display, keep in mind the fruit will only last about a week out of the refrigerator.

Herbs are still producing in the garden – when cooking with them, try these tips: When chopping fresh herbs such as basil and tarragon, sprinkle the leaves with a few drops of olive oil. This effectively slows the darkening of the chopped leaves.

If your dried herbs aren’t passing muster, simply chop up parsley with them to freshen up the flavor.

Cleaning out your spice cabinet prior to the holidays? Here is a recipe for a proven fish bait enhancer that recycles old spices:

Mix together four ounces ground fennel seed and one ounce ground allspice in a covered jar. Sprinkle

“We want to measure our customer relationships in decades”

CORRESPONDENT

Tucked into a small strip mall off James Street, Worcester, is a bookstore with an unassuming name and unassuming storefront – Annie’s Bookshop.

Inside, though, it’s fairly unique, and that’s what’s kept it going for decades. That uniqueness is not in appearance – densely packed bookshelves look the same pretty much everywhere – but what’s around and atop those shelves. A lot of them are Doctor Who related, with toys, models, video series, tons of off-shoot books and various related things all over the place.

Annie’s also highlights book series for other sci-fi, horror, and fantasy universes, including Star Wars. Pern and Dragonlance, and shelves lots of older sci-fi, going back into the early 20th century “pulp” material. Behind the register, they display just some of their collection of comics, and, of course, have a wide range of other genres of fiction and non-fiction to select from.

Most of the time, the person at that register is owner Patty Cryan, sometimes her partner Michael Salvo or employee Joshua Young.

“I make a joke that if you ever want to cure you’re reading addiction, buy a bookstore,” Cryan said. Of course, when she said that, she’d just looked up from a book, and notes she particularly likes talking to customers about books “I should be bringing in.”

Patty Cryan and Michael Salvo handle some of the copious paperwork that goes into running Annie’s Bookshop.

Gus Steeves

She’s owned it since 2007, and it’s been in this site since 2009, but started in Auburn’s Drury Square. While Cryan came to bookselling by way of editing and bookstores in New York and Worcester, Salvo came to it by running a mail order business he began in 1976. Over that time, Cryan and Salvo have come to know what their clientele wants, and the publisher representatives they’re in touch with know it too. That can be quirky.

While I was there, one man came in seeking a rather specific thing – maps of fantasy worlds. They didn’t have one at the moment, but led him right to the far corner where it’d be if they did. (I have seen them there before.)

Given how tight her space is, Cryan notes she has “to pick and choose” what goes on her shelves, especially for nonfiction. Although the stock is mostly fiction (lots of historical fic and mystery besides sci-fi), the nonfiction (history, politics, self-help etc) is literally right in the center of the store. There’s also a room for kids’ books.

Space plays a role in the fact she used to host many events (writing groups and book readings among them), but has had to scale them back to fit more books. Salvo also pointed to the city’s recent establishment of a 25 mph limit city-wide as suppressing traffic to the store and other nearby businesses.

Despite those things, Cryan doesn’t want to move. She’s seen that hurt bookstores, citing one that had a “cute little funky space and was booming,” then moved into a “sterile mall across the street” and died.

Nor does Salvo, who said many of their customers come to Annie’s “as a destination” anyway.

“We want to measure our customer relationships in decades, not 30 seconds on a website,” he said. “... We learn what they want.”

Young likes that view, saying the store “feels more like a community service” than retail to him. Part of that comes from the fact it’s mostly used books. With new ones being “so expensive,” he noted people on Social Security and disability can afford used ones, and he’s seen some buy a month’s worth of books and return them the next month for store credit to get more.

Cryan notes the internet plays a fairly big role in how she connects to her customers. It also played a key role in keeping Annie’s “afloat during the pandemic, when many stores had to learn it from scratch.”

“I’m a bit more internet-involved than many of my compatriots my age, with a lot of social media communication,” she said.

Middle school starts quiet reading time

BY GUS STEEVES
CORRESPONDENT

WEBSTER — Webster Middle School will give students some quiet reading time as the new school year commences.

According to Principal Heidi Peterson, it's "a very important piece that's missing from our students' lives" because it's "the basis for all learning" and affects life in myriad ways.

Specifically, the new ROAR "Reading Offers Awesome Rewards" program will set aside 20-30 minutes daily for fifth and sixth graders, and four days a week for seventh and eighth graders (due to other scheduling issues), for them to read anything that's printed – books, poetry, magazines, newspapers, etc. – but not electronic materials.

Talking to the Sept. 9 School Committee meeting, Peterson said the idea's rooted in 2023 data showing "only 14 percent of 13-year-olds read for pleasure ... that's very, very low." Even the UK has seen significant reading declines, but not nearly as much as here. There, just 43 percent of eight- to 18-year-olds read for pleasure, so "we're well below what's below their normal," she said.

Part of the problem stems from the curriculum. She noted it mostly "does not allow for novels anymore – it's pieces of novels or short stories – and that doesn't build the skills that are needed."

Various studies have credited long-form reading, especially of fiction, with numerous benefits, including promoting empathy, long-term mental health, brain maturation and problem solving. One, by Gregory Burns and others in 2013 (<https://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pmc/articles/PMC3868356/>), explored how kids' brain connections changed from reading a novel over time. They found "On the days after the reading, significant increases in connectivity were centered on hubs in the left angular/supramarginal gyri and right posterior temporal gyri [parts of the brain]. These hubs corresponded to regions previously associated with perspective taking and story comprehension, and the changes exhibited a time course that decayed rapidly after the completion of the novel," but "persisted for several days."

Later, they observed something many readers have experienced: "One possibility for increases in somatosensory cortex connectivity is that reading a novel invokes neural activity that is associated with bodily sensations."

That's a very neurological exploration; psychology has shown such brain activity has real world impact. One 2008 paper by Raymond Mar and Keith Oatley (<https://dixitciencia.com/wp-content/uploads/pdf-c8vBXO7Maa.pdf>), found "Engaging in the simulative experiences of fiction literature can facilitate the understanding of others who are different from ourselves and can augment our capacity for empathy and social inference," in part because of the emotions and sensations the text evokes.

In the schools themselves, Peterson said 2016 study found readers choosing their own books saw improvements in English, math, science and history performance. Her own student survey found 56 percent like reading, but 28 percent don't do any for pleasure and 54 percent don't use the public library.

Chair Kelly Seddiki said she's "impressed with this" and agreed with reading's importance to "life in general," not just academics. She later noted she likes the fact that some events have requested "gently used books" as their admission fee.

Lauren Koleros agreed, saying reading "opens a ton of possibilities. ... Even math has so much reading involved."

"I hope the outcomes are exactly what the research shows," and "gaps close a little bit in terms of the deficits our children are coming up to the middle school with," Peterson replied.

She noted her school has no librarian, but some students have helped organize the books there. She said she'd like to see more parents come forward to help there.

Webster schools start year seeking grants

BY GUS STEEVES
CORRESPONDENT

WEBSTER — To Superintendent Monique Pierangeli, the school year kicked off "remarkably well," with numerous new things and ongoing projects to keep track of.

Many of them are grants, as the district tries to ensure funding for its various needs. Patty Mackay said the total is currently lower than last year, in part because this will be the phase-out of the 21st Century grant (previously $200,000 a year, now $180,000) "but we knew that was coming." To compensate, she's applying for an "increasing student voices grant" that will provide $60,000 for seven kids to be paid interns within the 21st century program.

She's also seeking a "Rethinking Discipline" grant of $75,000. Because a recent state review found "a disproportionality of students on IEPs that were suspended more than 10 days," the state's requiring Webster to look at how its practices might be "exclusionary" and to replace them by promoting social-emotional wellbeing, among other things. Another $25,000 grant aims to help fund the district's family liaison, and at least four others totaling nearly $100,000 do a range of other things.

Pierangeli said some of the money is offsetting the increasing cost of sending some special education students to private schools. The state requires public districts to pay a "proportionate share ... for our homeschool and parochial students," but Mackay said how it calculates them changes depending on the grant source and whether they're "coded as economically disadvantaged," among other things.

To add to the ripple effect, federal poverty program guidelines can change the local budget significantly every year, forcing the district to "figure out what we're going to fund and how we're going to make up the lack of funding" in other areas, the superintendent said. This year's cuts in SNAP and other programs will affect Webster's Chapter 70 funding, reducing the official numbers but actually increasing the need for services and support staff, she noted.

This school year began with higher enrollment at Bartlett and Park Avenue, but lower at the middle school. Speaking of Bartlett, Business Manager Lisa Kontoes said the renovation project is on schedule; the contractor found some roof leaks from the phase two section and are tracing them.

She also noted an increase in participation in the Summer Eats program, especially at the library. In related news, the farm to school program's raised-bed garden and hydroponics project has seen participation from all three schools, which are trying to incorporate the gardens into the curriculum.

Chair Kelly Seddiki thanked Kontoes for her focus on the Bartlett work. She noted she often hears complaints in public about it, but it's "on time and on budget, and really, actually going extraordinarily well despite some of the challenges you have all worked through...As much as we want it done yesterday, we want it done well."

The committee voted to shift a vacant half-time nurse's post to make the existing half-time nursing assistant full-time, as well as to hire four special education aides to help deal with the 43 new IEP students enrolling this year.

Pierangeli noted the special ed PAC, which has been "struggling" for years, seems to be starting this year well. She also noted middle school kids will see additional English and math testing in January and March, as part of a federal pilot program; Park Ave kids saw something similar last year. Peterson said the feds aren't sending the district the results.

OBITUARIES

Barbara A. Szamocki, 77

AUBURN – Barbara A. (Boyea) Szamocki, 77, died Wednesday, September 3, 2025 at home after a long illness. She leaves her husband of 31 years, Michael Szamocki; a son, Christopher L. Wells of Clearwater, FL; a daughter, Melissa L. Paranto and her husband Tony of Webster; five grandchildren, Devin Wells of San Francisco, Brady Wells and Abbyrae Wells, both of Foxborough, Colby Wells of Dudley, and Logan Paranto of Webster; a brother, Edward Boyea and his wife Shannon and a sister, Debra Boyea, all of Malone, NY; several nieces and nephews. She was preceded in death by a brother Craig Boyea, by two sisters Andrea Maiorana and Francesca Chesborough, by her stepfather Gary Champagne, and by her first husband Richard L. Wells. She was born on April 3, 1948 in Malone, NY and raised there, a daughter of Walter and Luella (Cooley) Boyea and graduated from Saint Joseph Academy in Malone. She lived in the Webster, Dudley and Oxford area before moving to Auburn 15 years ago. Mrs. Szamocki first worked as an office clerk at the former Simplatrol Dana Industry in Webster and then was a nurse’s aide at Shepherd Hill Regional

High School in Dudley for over 10 years. She enjoyed crafts, painting, drawing, sewing and decorating homes to make them cozy and inviting for her family. She loved to cook for her family. She was very fashion conscience and took great care to look her best. Most importantly she changed her career to take care of her grandchildren. Nothing meant more to her; they were her pride and joy. All she wanted out of life was to make people happy and feel loved. If Barbie loved you, you knew and felt it. Her husband Michael loved her very much and stood with her through all of her illnesses. For better or worse, in sickness and in health, “her rock”. Her funeral will be held at 11:00 AM on Saturday, October 11, in the First Congregational Church of Dudley, 135 Center Road, Dudley. The family will greet relatives and friends beginning at 10:30 in the church. Another celebration of her life will be held on November 1 at the PAV, 30 Ray Street, Webster, from 2:00 to 6:00 PM. Donations in her name may be made to either Feeding America, 161 North Clark Street, Suite 700, Chicago, IL 60601 or to Saint Jude Children’s Research Hospital, 501 St. Jude Place, Memphis, TN 38105. Arrangements are under the direction of Scanlon Funeral Service, 38 East Main Street, Webster. www.websterfunerals.com

Carolyn A. Smith, 79

NEW SMYRNA BEACH - Carolyn A. (Cozzens) Smith, 79, died on Friday, August 22, 2025, with her family by her side. She leaves her husband of 58 years, Roger E. Smith; 2 daughters, Christine Marrier and her husband Brian of Dudley, MA, and Susan Jean and her husband Stephen of Oxford, MA; 3 grandchildren, Jacob Marrier, Allison Marrier, and Madeleine Jean; her sister-in-law Alice Daly and her husband David of Sutton, MA. She was preceded in death by her brother Charles C. Cozzens. She was born in Webster, MA on May 10, 1946, the daughter of Charles C. and Mabel I. (Blanchard) Cozzens. She was a 1963 graduate of Bartlett High School in Webster, MA. She was a life-long learner and had a thirst for knowledge. After she ensured that her children completed their own college education, Carolyn then went back to college herself. She was proud to have earned a Bachelor of Science Degree in Business Administration from St. Joseph’s College, Standish, ME at the age of 51. Carolyn worked in the Human Resources Department at Hubbard Regional Hospital, Webster, MA and ultimately became the Director of Human Resources. She retired in 1998. Upon her retirement she enjoyed being “Nanny” and lovingly cared for her grandchildren. She often said that her happiest days were spent playing and laughing with her grandchildren. Carolyn loved the beach and was a “snowbird”, spending her winters in New Smyrna Beach, FL. She moved to Florida in 2020. Carolyn always put others before herself, never hesitating to go the extra mile. She was a parishioner of Saint Louis Church, Webster, serving as both a Eucharistic Minister and Lector. She was a member and past president of both the Saint Louis League of Catholic Women and the Tuesday Club. She was a member of the Serra Club of Southern Worcester County. In addition, Carolyn was a member of the Fairgreen Garden Club and the Volusia Reads Book Club, both in New Smyrna Beach, FL. Carolyn loved animals and she had 3 beloved dogs of her own: Tippy, Duffy, and Clancy. She befriended dogs wherever she went and she looked forward to caring for her neighbor’s dogs when needed. Carolyn had a “can-do” spirit, and once she put her mind to something, nothing stopped her. She enjoyed crafts and she could make anything with her hands. She was an avid reader, an expert gardener, and enjoyed the challenge of the weekly crossword puzzle in the Sunday paper. She never missed her favorite TV show, Jeopardy. She was proud of her original first car, a 1965 Corvaire, which she had the opportunity to buy back 30 years later. She enjoyed showing her car at local car shows, winning several trophies. Carolyn enjoyed traveling and she took several cruises and bus trips with her husband and close friends. Her favorite trip was traveling to Ireland and visiting the beautiful land where her family originated from. Carolyn’s greatest joy was the time she spent with her family, especially her 3 grandchildren, whom she cherished. A calling period will take place on Saturday, September 20, 2025 from 9:00-10:30 AM in Scanlon Funeral Service, 38 East Main Street, Webster, MA. A memorial Mass will follow at 11:00 AM in Saint Louis Church, 14 Lake Street, Webster, MA. Burial will be in Lakeside Cemetery, Webster, MA. Donations in her memory may be made to St. Jude Children’s Research Hospital, 501 St. Jude Place, Memphis, TN 38105. www.websterfunerals.com limit on the number of shows. (Some residents expressed concern that the proposed 12 could grow over time.)

In other business, the board approved selling 46 Granite St., a property it took in tax title some time ago, after Accountant Tim Bell summarized recent changes in federal law regarding taken properties. Specifically, he said a

US Supreme Court case called Tyler v Hennepin County ruled that communities cannot keep any excess funds a sale might generate beyond what it cost them to clean, demolish, sell or otherwise handle the property. Now, towns are treated as “fiduciaries” who have to pay any excess money to the previous owner, and cannot just auction parcels in groups, but have to actually hire realtors and formally sell them. Bell estimated that if 46 Granite sells for $75,000,

Webster “will break even and the prior owner would get some [money].” So far, the town’s costs have been about $56,000, and the property’s estimated value is $45,000, he said.

The town can keep properties if they have a “good municipal purpose,” but he didn’t see one for this parcel, he added.

VETERANS

Community Phil Madaio.

Our keynote speaker of the day was the Massachusetts Commander of the American Legion, Scott Conner, who spoke about the committee that repatriates service members lost in battle. After the opening speeches, the name of each Vietnam veteran was read out and the American Legion Auxiliary from the post went to them and pinned a Vietnam Tribute Lapel Pin on them and gave them a Proclamation from the President of the United States. You could see the gratitude in the faces of each vet as they were pinned.

Next, there was another pinning ceremony. The host asked if there were any wives present that supported their spouse while they were in service. They were asked to stand and the Auxiliary members approached them with a special Veterans’ Spouse lapel pin. This was an unexpected bonus that was well received. Following that was a light lunch. Thanks to the committee for their hard work in putting the event together. They were Chair Steve Gallant, Committee Members: Millie Larson, Lorie Zybus, Marsha Robidoux, Mike McNamara, Ray Robidoux, and Steve Conway. This was the conclusion of our event, titled ‘Welcome Home.’

Stop overwatering your lawn this season. Proper watering can be the key to a fantastic fall lawn. Lawn experts claim a healthy lawn with a good root system doesn't require watering more than one to three times per week. The bottom line? Your lawn needs about an inch of water once every seven to ten days to grow strong roots.

Auburn DPW announces Water Street lane closure

AUBURN — Starting Monday, Sept. 15, a portion of Water Street in Auburn will be reduced to one lane just south of the Webster First Federal Credit Union's driveway due to a deteriorated culvert. The portion of this roadway will be converted to one-way, allowing vehicles to travel westbound from Central Street to Southbridge Street. The eastbound traffic from Southbridge Street will be detoured via Sharon Ave and Meadow Street.

Based on the findings of a recent Massachusetts Department of Transportation inspection a portion of the southbound lane must be closed to traffic due to deterioration of the culvert. The town's Department of Public Works will place signage and barriers to safely close this portion of the road. The Town will seek funding at the Special Town Meeting in October for the design and replacement of the culvert.

Wildcats secure first win of the season against Auburn Middle School WEBSTER — The Webster Middle School Wildcats opened their 2025 campaign with a solid team win over a tough well-coached Auburn Middle School football team.

The Wildcats wasted no time setting the tone, jumping out to a 14-0 lead in the first quarter and adding one more touchdown in the second to take a 20-0 half-time lead. First half highlights included a stingy WMS defense, tough offensive line play, and explosive runs from the running backs.

"Defensively, we played outstanding and had some key stops early in the game," added Coach Adam Stawicki, praising the entire unit's discipline and hustle.

The third quarter saw Webster extend their overall lead. A late touchdown in the fourth quarter helped the Wildcats to secure their first victory of the season.

"Since the start of the season, we emphasized and will continue to stress what it takes to be a winning team. Today, we showed what hard work and dedication can do for a team like ours," said Coach John Bsouami.

With the win, the Wildcats now turned focus to their Week 2 matchup: Thursday, Sept. 18, at 5:30 p.m. against Knox Trail at the Memorial Athletic Field in Webster.

All Saints Academy commemorates Sept. 11 attacks

WEBSTER — On the 24th anniversary of the tragic events that occurred on Sept. 11, 2001, All Saints Academy opened the school day with a prayer service followed by individual classes spending time learning about the events that struck our country. Students also watched a video about the Survivor Tree, a pear tree at the 9/11 Memorial that is a symbol of hope and resilience and our ability to recover and bounce back after a challenge.

allowing them to express their deepest thoughts and emotions—to turn remembrance into something tangible. When you look at the ASA Strong Pear Tree, adorned with every message, you see more than paper. You see resilience, compassion, faith and a promise that we will never forget. Each symbol hanging on the tree carries a voice, a memory, and a hope for peace.

Attigah reminds us of the power of perseverance: “Even through the toughest of times, hope and perseverance will get you far.”

The lesson continued on Sept. 12 – National Day of Encouragement. In a world where so many things come at a cost, encouragement is absolutely free — yet it can be priceless to someone who needs it. Students were encouraged to take the lessons they learned about 9/11 and carry them into today and beyond with purpose and kindness and that each one of us has the power to make our environment more supportive, prayerful, welcoming, and kind — one word or action at a time.

Following the age appropriate discussions, classes completed a project to honor the strength, courage, and unity that followed these horrific attacks. Students created a leaf, heart, or badge

Jackson Dunkley, Grade 7, encourages us with compassion: “Stay strong and keep your faith. It’s okay to still mourn.” Benjamin Mukuha, Grade 8, draws strength from scripture, quoting Philippians 4:13: “I can do all things through Christ who strengthens me.” And Alanna Yelu-

All Saints students celebrate new canonizations

WEBSTER — All Saints Academy marked the canonization of St. Carlo Acutis and St. Pier Giorgio Frassati with a series of joyful and meaningful events that engaged the school community.

about the saints, creating a booklet for each saint, decorating their classroom, and enjoying canoli in honor of both saints’ Italian heritage. Students also received holy cards and prayed for intercession through St. Carlo Acutis and St. Pier Giorgio Frassati.

online. After selecting their favorite concepts, the students showcased their final decisions by creating a laptop Google Meet session—symbolizing their commitment to using digital tools for Christ.

Throughout the year in Kindergarten, students are introduced to many saints. To help remember them, the class creates a special Saints Booklet. The students were excited to add two new saints to our booklet this year: St. Carlo Acutis and St. Pier Giorgio Frassati, who were canonized by Pope Leo on Sept. 7.

In addition to celebrating the canonizations, Grade 3 also celebrated the nativity of the Blessed Mother with flowers, cards, decorating her statue and singing Happy Birthday to her.

Ideas included creating a secure app/digital platform to connect children with specific childhood illnesses with other children their age who are experiencing similar challenges and need someone to talk to, developing a website that will help children with a problem that then shares a Bible passage for them to reflect on, and a video game for acting out the lives of saints.

The celebration of St. Carlo Acutis, the Patron Saint of the Internet, continued with the seventh and eighth grade students exploring how technology can be used as a force for good. Through thoughtful discussion and brainstorming sessions, they shared creative ideas on how to live out their faith

This was a perfect way to recognize the first saints canonized under Pope Leo XIV in 2025!
