Charley of Thompson finished 1,000 books before kindergarten in August 2023. Congratulations!

Woodstock Academy junior pitcher/outfielder Brady Ericson committed on Sunday to play Division I baseball for the University of Connecticut come 2025-26.

“I’m very excited,” Ericson said. “It’s an opportunity that not too many people get. I’m proud of it. I know it’s still two years away so I’m not going to let off the gas. I have to finish high school first but I’m very excited to go there.”

Ericson said the reason why he decided to commit so early was the opportunity that was offered was just too good to be passed up.

A chance to play Division I baseball and attend school on a scholarship.

“It was very good. It helps my parents save a lot of money, helped me save a lot of money and it just works out very well,” Ericson said.

Ericson had a phenomenal sophomore year for the Centaurs.

He finished with a 6-0 record with an earned run average of 0.70.

In 39 2/3 innings, the southpaw allowed only four earned runs, gave up only 15 hits and struck out 76 hitters while issuing only 19 walks.

He opened a lot of eyes when he pitched a no-hitter with 20 strikeouts against Ledyard.

His success carried into the AAU season over the summer.

“First of all, I want to congratulate him and his family,” said Woodstock Academy baseball coach Brian Murphy. “Brady is a unique talent. I think this is a great move on his path. UConn is in the top 20 (in college baseball) every year. Making a commitment to your home state and home state school is just tremendous.”

Ericson is not a one-trick pony. He also hit .343 for the Centaurs with three homers, five doubles, two triples and 19 runs batted in. He expects to be both a pitcher and an outfielder in Storrs.

Ericson said Jim Penders, who will enter his 21st season as UConn head coach in 2024, was a big reason why he chose to be a Husky.

UConn showed its interest early and often.

“I do like Coach Penders. I’ve talked with him over the phone a couple of times. He has come to watch a couple of games and I got to meet him. He’s very genuine, a good coach. He does it for the team. He’s not selfish, doesn’t do it for the money and I really feel like he can help me go in the right direction,” Ericson said.

In addition to the attraction of the coaching staff and the school itself, UConn does offer Ericson another advantage. He will be close to home.

“I think that matters. When you can play the high-level, caliber of baseball at home and don’t forget, UConn travels. One of those trips is usually to Hawaii. He will get around and see the best teams but I think it will be good for the family and good for Brady to be local. Coach Penders runs a Class A program so I think it’s a great fit for Brady and his family,” Murphy said.

It also means it takes the pressure off as far as finding a school after high school.

It doesn’t relieve the pressure of “the grind” as Murphy calls it – the work that is needed for a Division I college player to prosper.

“I’m able to compete at the high school level now, but I have to make sure I keep getting better. If I stay at this same skill level, I will not be able to compete at the college level. I have to keep improving, working hard, and just not giving up on the work I’m putting in,” Ericson said.

There is also good news for Woodstock Academy boys’ basketball coach Donte Adams.

Ericson plans to continue to play hoops for the Centaurs.

“I’m still playing. I’ve talked to the (UConn) coaches and they have told me that basketball is good, just to work on being part of a team, being a leader. Basketball will be good for my athleticism and gives me a break from baseball. I’m going to keep on playing,” Ericson said.

Two years is a long time.

“It might feel like a long time but people always say high school is the best time of your life so I’m going to try and enjoy every part that I can whether it be baseball, basketball, academics, anything, but I’m excited to be going to UConn,” Ericson said.

THOMPSON — Empty Bowls returns with a new look later this month continuing a longstanding history of helping fight hunger in Northeastern Connecticut. The annual fundraiser, hosted by Sawmill Pottery, allows guests to purchase a hand-crafted bowl and enjoy a variety of soups made by restaurateurs and chefs from throughout the region. The 2023 event will have a new look and location, moving to TEEG in Thompson for the first time with proceeds benefiting the agency’s Thompson and Pomfret Food Markets and the Woodstock Mobile Market.

TEEG Executive Director Anne Miller said she was approached by Sawmill Pottery owner Dot Burnworth in the spring about partnering with TEEG to continue the Empty Bowls tradition. The event has been a staple of the region for 18 years, but for 2023 the event will have a new home after being paired with Putnam’s Savor the Flavor event since the COVID-19 pandemic. Miller and Burnworth issued a joint statement about why TEEG was chosen as the new partner for the event.

CorePlus Credit Union appoints Raymond J. Currier as next President, CEO

NORWICH — The Board of Directors of CorePlus Credit Union (CPCU) is announcing the appointment of Raymond J. Currier as its new President and Chief Executive Officer. Currier replaces retiring CEO Nicholas K. Fortson, who will be retiring after nine years as President and CEO. Currier will assume the role of CEO on January 1, 2024.

Upon the announcement that Fortson planned to retire at year end, the CPCU Board of Directors conducted a CEO search with assistance from The Credit Union League of Connecticut to identify a qualified candidate to lead the nearly ninety-year-old federally chartered, member-owned, not-for-profit cooperative. After considering several worthy candidates, the board determined Currier’s dedication, exceptional leadership, and significant contributions as Chief Operating Officer and overwhelmingly approved Ray’s promotion to the role of CEO. Currier has been with the credit union since 2005 and has close to 30 years of experience in the credit union industry.

“We are extremely pleased that after performing our due diligence to find the most suitable leader, our own Ray Currier emerged as the best candidate to take the reins and carry on Nicholas Fortson’s legacy,” said CPCU Board of Directors Chair Jean Swift. “We believe Ray possesses the strategic vision, business acumen, and commitment to lead CorePlus Credit Union into a prosperous future. His demonstrated ability to drive innovation, foster collaboration, and deliver exceptional results made him the ideal candidate for this important position.”

Currier said he is excited by the challenge of his new role and looks forward to a continuation of the success he and Fortson shared with the growth, expansion of service offerings and financial achievements the credit union has experienced over the last decade. “I am incredibly honored to have been appointed President / CEO, and I am excited to lead our talented team in continuing to bring exceptional service and innovation to our membership. CorePlus is well positioned for continued growth and success in the coming years,” said Currier. “I am also very fortunate to have the support and guidance from such an incredible leader as Nicholas Fortson to assist in the transition.”

Fortson, who has been CEO of CPCU since 2014, announced his retirement effective December 31, 2023 — in January 2023. As part of the transition, he is committed to working closely with Currier throughout the rest of the year to ensure that the transfer of leadership is seamless and that the new CEO is in the best possible position to guide CPCU into the future.

“Nicholas Fortson has been and continues to be an amazing leader and mentor,” Swift said. “The board wishes to recognize Nick for his remarkable leadership, particularly throughout the pandemic, as well as his ability to select and develop a stellar management team. He will be greatly missed, but we know he leaves us in Ray’s very capable hands.”

In honor of his tremendous leadership and commitment to his community, the board has approved a gift of $10,000 to support two non-profits. A gift of $5,000 will be made in Fortson’s honor to the Otis Library to fund a multi-lingual financial literacy program. Fortson is the former board president of Otis Library, and he and his late wife, Peggy, have been avid supporters of the library. A second gift of $5,000 will be made to the Community Foundation of Eastern Connecticut, where Fortson is also a board member.

Putnam volunteers launch global campaign offering message of hope

PUTNAM — At a time when the desire for better government is on the minds of people the world over, Jehovah’s Witnesses will launch an international campaign to bring attention to a universal solution. The Witnesses will feature a special edition of “The Watchtower” magazine, available in over 780 languages in print and online, with the theme “What Is God’s Kingdom?”

Local volunteers from Southern New England will distribute this special-edition magazine during the month of September. “I think it’s important for people to have an answer to the challenges they face in the world, both locally and globally. There is obviously a desire for good government,” said Benjamin Swain, a resident of Putnam. His wife, Bethany, added, “We have something to share with people – the hope that there will be a perfect government that will soon solve all their problems. I’m excited because we have that information and I want to help others.” Throughout the centuries, millions of Jesus’ followers have prayed the words “thy Kingdom come” but wonder what that Kingdom is, what it will accomplish and when it will come. To answer those age-old questions, the Witnesses’ special-edition magazine will reference key Bible passages. The clear and simple explanations have been designed to appeal to both new and experienced Bible readers.

Understanding what that Kingdom is and how it will solve this world’s mounting problems is a message that provides a solid, realistic hope. We look forward to bringing this message to our neighbors.”

During the height of the COVID-19 pandemic, Jehovah’s Witnesses distributed millions of this special-edition magazine through letters, even sending copies to thousands of government officials worldwide. Now that they have returned to their door-to-door public ministry post-pandemic, this will be the first in-person campaign where they will have the opportunity to discuss the important and very timely subject with their neighbors.

A free digital copy of this special issue of “The Watchtower,” as well as information about the activities of Jehovah’s Witnesses, is available at jw.org. The Witnesses’ site offers practical Bible-based content for people of all ages and beliefs in over 1,070 languages.

Fifty years is a long time. Much of what inspired action, hard work and creativity of those involved along the way is forgotten. Happily, such is not the case with Opera New England of Northeastern Connecticut, now Performing Arts of NECT. The name was changed to reflect the broader reach of the volunteer group, which is devoted after half-a-century to the same fundamental mission: bringing professional arts events at affordable prices to people in northeastern Connecticut. Free performances for area children were a cornerstone then as now with a total of about a quarter of a million kids attending a show over the years! But what remains in our memory and the archives Betty Hale stored in her commodious attic all these years? What can we learn from a group that has survived and thrived through countless changes of membership, leadership, funding, parties, performances, contracts, ups and downs? Not to mention Covid, when schools were closed. The original organization was started by a cast of lively local characters, who wanted to bring more culture to our area. Back then, Annhurst College, a Catholic women's school in Woodstock, was thriving and had a fine auditorium that seated 1,018 people at a performance. The founders met over lunches at the Golden Lamb in Brooklyn, and drinks in private homes to chart a course: What could we present here? How much would it cost? Who would pay? The stars aligned.

Sara Caldwell had taken the helm of the Opera Company of Boston. She was a powerhouse at the podium and in person. Her deep voice, talent as a musical impresario, forceful personality and singular spot as the first women to direct and conduct opera created enormous publicity. Caldwell, whose charm brought in donors, directors and singers, wanted to expand the reach of opera from the confines of the city. She created Opera New England, starting programs in five states. Northeastern Connecticut was ready and soon hosted two adult operas and one children's opera every year. Hundreds of area residents saw live opera for the first time. Countless singers found comfort as guests in area homes, creating friendships and connections that lasted for decades. Soon Caldwell declared northeastern Connecticut the real home of Opera New England. The affection was mutual. Caldwell spent holidays in the area. Local representatives trooped to Boston to rub elbows with donors to the Opera Company and get in-depth looks behind the scenes. Lunches at private clubs and children's fashion shows added to the excitement. Through it all, the organization functioned due to the talent and hard work of countless volunteers and a committed board of directors. In the pre-internet age, meeting notices, agendas, invitations, posters, sign-up sheets and school commitments flowed on paper as members sat down, generally at someone's home to collate, stuff and mail endless pieces of paper. Friendships were formed that lasted for lifetimes. Children who as youths may have played under the dining room table later became ushers and set loaders. A few embarked on careers in the arts.

Connections and conversations passed from person to person and town to town. No credentials were required to be part of the group, just an interest in the arts, a little time to share, a check for a fundraising party, often less than dinner for two at a restaurant, and the purchase of a ticket for an opera. Costs were relatively low back then with one contract season for two adult operas and two children's opera booked at the rate of $13,000. Bill St. Onge did the legal work to formally incorporate the group pro bono. Nonetheless, it was not easy to fill the house and one year the coffers offered up the grand total of $3.85. Betty met with Cy Harvey and QVCC's Bob Miller. The show must go on, they agreed. It did by adapting and expanding along the way. The group obtained a grant for $50,000 over two years for Dancing in the Schools, including a training program for teachers at Duke University. Teachers, parents and children got involved. A long-term spinoff, The Three C's brings live shows to schoolchildren at the Loos Center. It began through the efforts of Mary Patenaude, Bob Miller, Mary Fisher, Fran Stevens and Betty Hale. It continues to serve area children. There were no secrets to the fundraising formula. Parties in private homes or in new restaurants were the standard. Donald Froelich and his family, talented caterers from Woodstock, made the food, brought the dishes, cutlery and cloth napkins and served up good, traditional meals that everyone liked. When the parties were over, the hosts exclaimed that their kitchen was cleaner than ever. Invitations to an ONECT or P/Arts party were tied to themes in the operas and often included entertainment by performers. The Hospitality Committee, originally composed of Elsie Neumann, Phyllis Smith and Doris Harper, created gigantic floral arrangements and merrily reorganized tables and registration to everyone's delight. Later, Edith Rotival and currently Susan Horn and her team arrange for these wonderful parties. Central to it all was the professional eye of Bob Sloat, who worked with the professionals from Boston, hired local people as set loaders, operated all the technical aspects of stagecraft while singing the entire libretto under his breath. Of course, the financial operation didn't operate solely on parties. John Ostrout, Executive Director of the CT Commission on the Arts, and his staff reviewed yearly fundraising requests for the opera. Often the appeals were met, at least in part. Other foundations were approached as well. Annual gifts were sought from individuals, local businesses and corporations as is the current practice. Private support is the mainstay, but as with every non-profit, all gifts are needed. Through the years there were fashion shows, spa treatments, poster contests and raffles for travel excursions. Variations on the traditions continue. From the beginning when Jimmie Booth from Brooklyn and Kay Holt from Mansfield Center formed a committee that included Phil James and Betty Hale from Pomfret, the group blossomed. Betty's drive, innate leadership and commitment to the arts and children led to a dynamic group that could grow and change. There are scrapbooks recording special moments, countless photographs and newspaper clippings, but the most important legacy is that ONECT— now P/Arts goes on with its mission to “enrich, engage, inspire.”

The current board will soon be sharing news of the latest season — with a diverse series of live performances for school students and the community, primarily at the Loos Center. First grade and kindergarten children will enjoy classroom programs on creating sounds and music. A dream by a handful of people to bring opera to our corner of the world took root and spawned decades of performances, friendships, parties, school programs, and enrichment activities that live on. In the special moment when the curtain goes up and the audience takes a collect deep breath, the joy of live music links the past to the present as it opens into the future.

‘Remembering John Noel Dempsey: A Man Who Did Good’ released today

How many of you remember when John Dempsey was mayor of Putnam during the 1955 flood? Perhaps you recall when he was governor of Connecticut. He certainly was a blessing to Northeastern Connecticut and then the State.

I was delighted recently to receive an email from his son Reverend Edward Dempsey announcing the publication of a book of his memories of his father, which is being released today, September 15th, by the publisher. I quote Rev. Ed's email, "On 9/15, Austin Macauley Publishers will release Remembering John Noel Dempsey: A Man Who Did Good. John Dempsey lived in Putnam from 1925 to 1961, where he served as Alderman, Alderman-at-Large, Mayor, State Representative, and Lieutenant Governor. In 1961 he became Governor of Connecticut, an office he held for the next ten years. He died at his home in Dayville in 1989. This book of memoirs, written by his eldest son, shares a personal side of this public figure. The author writes: 'At a time when governors have been sent to jail, presidents have been impeached, and legislatures seem dedicated to gridlock, and adherence to blind partisanship trumps all else, it's not hard to fathom why American people have become skeptical about politicians and cynical about the entire political process and downright disgusted at what is seen to be governmental shenanigans. It may come, then, as comfort to some and dubious to others to read about a politician who has been dubbed 'the genuine article,' a man who personified the adage "what you see is what you get," a person who believed that life was about giving and not about getting. That's the kind of man I grew up knowing, the kind of politician, who would no longer fit the current mold, the person I am honored to call 'my father.' As a once well known figure in The Quiet Corner, there may well be people still interested in him and in his public life, shown through a more personal lens." (email, 9/2/23). Many immigrants who came to this area already had relatives here who helped in their transition to a new country, a new culture, and a new way of life so I sent Father Ed an email about that. "They were welcomed and housed by siblings of my grandmother at their home on South Main Street. My grandfather, my grandmother and my father all worked in the former Putnam Woolen mill; they lived in mill housing right up the street." (9/7 & 8//23). I had included a short biographical sketch about Governor Dempsey when I wrote Perspectives of Putnam in 1980 so pulled that out to check a few dates. John Dempsey was born in the Irish countryside of Cahir, County Tipperary on January 3, 1915 to Edward and Ellen (Looby) Dempsey. "My grandmother always preferred the way the family name was spelled back home in Ireland., i.e. Looby, wrote Ed Dempsey." John completed his primary and high school educations in Putnam then attended Providence College-- "but only for one year. His father's illness caused him to leave college and enter the Putnam Woolen Mill." He married Mary Frey of Barrington, RI and was the father of four children: Reverend Edward, John, Jr, Margaret, and Kevin. (p.110). Governor John N. Dempsey died July 16, 1989 and was buried in St. Mary's Cemetery in Putnam. His widow Mary is still alive and has been living in Dayville since 1988. (email 9/8/23). Fr. Ed wrote, "I have not yet found a local outlet for the sale of the book. However, Remembering John Noel Dempsey: A Man Who Did Good will be available as of 9/15/23 at Amazon.com." (9/8/23). Although it's only September, The last Green Valley's Walktober events are beginning. Many of you have enjoyed walks with Nick Bellantoni, State Archaeologist Emeritus, and you are sure to find Exploring Ashford Woods--Hidden Quarries, Graveyard, and a Forgotten Community in Eastford's Natchaug Forest (#39) on Saturday, September 16th at 10 a.m. another treat. Local Historian Donna Dufresne, who has conducted many previous walks, will co-lead the walk. She provided a few details about the walk in an email. "Ashford Woods is featured in Nick Bellantoni's upcoming book about Historic Walks in CT. We will begin at the Cat Den Quarry, once owned by Daniel Griggs, and sold to Joseph Weeks in 1806. Across the road from the quarry is the Weeks Cemetery, where Sylvester Weeks, a Civil War soldier, is buried. Heading South on Fayette Rd. in the forest, we will talk about charcoal burning which fueled local foundries and blacksmith shops, and the Chester Webster/Bates homestead where Charles Webster, a CT 29th Colored Regiment and Infantry soldier is buried. Guests will learn about the people of African and Nipmuc descent who lived in a small community in what was known as Ashford Woods." (9/8/23). Mayotte-Viens American Legion Post 13 recently held their annual golf tournament at Connecticut National in Putnam

Putnam's Mayotte-Viens American Legion Post 13 held their annual golf tournament on Monday Sept. 11 at the Connecticut National Golf Course in Putnam. Despite the hot muggy conditions, about 140 golfers completed the 18 hole course just before the rains came. According to Post 13 Commander Michael Rocchetti "while the outpouring of rain may have dampened a few golfers, it did not dampen their enthusiasm - and was a fitting end to a day characterized by another outpouring - namely the support and generosity of our local community!" This year, the focus of the golf tournament was twofold - to honor the legacy of Putnam's only Congressional Medal of Honor recipient - US Navy submariner Henry Breault, and to raise awareness of the suicide problem amongst our veterans. Many of the victims unable to endure the pain of traumatic brain injuries - a hidden wound usually caused by the improvised explosive devices which were an ever-present danger during the prolonged conflicts in Iraq and Afghanistan. Proceeds from the tournament will help support suicide awareness and prevention programs for our veterans in Northeastern Connecticut. Brian Maynard, a past Post 13 Commander, served as the Chairman of the Golf Committee and put together a team that included past Post 13 Commander Michael Vassar, Eric Quinn, Edward Morissette, Traci Lefebvre, Earl Rosebrooks, Mark Brule, and Charles Mackenzie. According to Mr Maynard "This was an all-star team - highly motivated and very dedicated to making the event a success." Since the event coincided with the 22nd anniversary of the 9-11 attacks, Maynard kicked-off the event with a moment of silence in honor of those first responders who lost their lives on that day, and paid a tribute to representatives from the Putnam Police and Fire Departments. Maynard also expressed sincere gratitude for the primary tournament sponsors which included Big Gary's Discount Liquor Store in Putnam and the Supported Living Group Rehabilitation Center in Danielson. "The level of generosity exceeded our expectations. There are so many other major sponsors I would like to recognize, including Northeast Flooring & Kitchens, Roger Franklin, Gerardi Insurance, Fluid Coating Technologies Inc, RPC Associates, Downes Construction, Jewett City Savings Bank, Venture Communications, Antinozzi Associates, BW Dexter Masonry, Windham County Heating and AC, Rawson Materials, and many more tee sponsors. We are also thankful for the many donations we received for raffle prizes, and for the people who came out today to golf at our tournament. It's just overwhelming! How lucky we are to live in such a great community!" Putnam's American Legion Post 13 has been active in our community since 1919. This veteran's organization stands on four pillars - Veterans Affairs and Rehabilitation, National Security, Americanism, and Children & Youth. The Legion has a wide variety of related programs that directly support our local community.

Karen Lunt earns Westview's Employee of the Month Award

DAYVILLE — Karen Lunt gained recognition as the July 2023 Employee of the Month at Westview Health Care Center. Since July 2008, she has been a highly valued member of the Dietary Department of the Dayville, CT skilled nursing facility during her duty. Upon her first few years at Westview, she performed as an evening cook—and now—she prepares meals during the daytime hours. This is Karen's second time earning this company commendation; having been declared as the Employee of the Month in May 2009. Her most recent award signals the consistency of her importance on the Westview team from the beginning of her tenure there. Karen's love of cooking exists at work and at home. She and her husband of 46 years, Michael, love to cultivate their own vegetable garden at their home in Scotland, CT so that they can provide fresh produce for themselves. Her kitchen passion extends towards others as well; often offering her home-cooked cuisine to her colleagues at Westview. A self-taught chef, Karen's abilities are described as amazing by those who have devoured her dishes and delicacies—like canning her carefully cured vegetables and preparing her own jams. She especially likes to prepare Italian-style food while using her forementioned garden harvests. The generations following Karen and her husband include their daughter Stephanie and her partner Kelly, their son Thomas and his wife Carole, and Karen's grandchildren: James, Alison, and Honora. She describes them as her pride and joy. Among Karen's recreational interests are reading, gardening, and travelling. She greatly enjoyed her visit to Iceland last year and her trip to Cuba 4 years ago. The colleagues that Karen work with truly think she deserves high praise. One kitchen teammate described her as an endearing matriarchal figure, and a strong person to have in your corner. She feels the same way about them. "There's a lot of great people down in our kitchen, I love them. Everybody is helpful. We all get along—and best of all, we have fun! What an honor to know that the people here find me worthy to be Employee of the Month!" Karen further elaborated about her occupational occupancy with her team: "All of my years that I have enjoyed at Westview are only possible because of my fellow colleagues in the kitchen and across every department." Westview Health Care Center's Administrator, David T. Panteleakos, conveyed his gratitude for Karen's work: "Karen is a pivotal player in our Dietary Department and a valued member of our team at Westview. Her service here is greatly appreciated by myself and our organization. Congratulations to Karen on her well-deserved recognition!" Westview Health Care Center is a 103-bed inpatient skilled nursing facility, which includes a distinct and self-contained 28-bed sub-acute short term rehabilitation unit and outpatient physical, occupational and speech therapies including: Sports Medicine, Adolescent/Pediatric, Adult, and Aquatic Outpatient Centers, all dedicated to providing outstanding quality health care services. The Dayville, Connecticut facility is consistently ranked among the top nursing facilities in the nation, according to the Centers for Medicare and Medicaid Services as well as U.S. News and World Report, consecutively for the past 15 years.

Masuk exacts revenge on Killingly football team

BY DEAN P. ST. LAURENT

SPORTS CORRESPONDENT

KILLINGLY —

Killingly High varsity football hosted Masuk High on Friday, Sept. 8 for a rematch of last year's state semifinals where Killingly bested Masuk 54-51 in an offensive thriller. Returning most starters, Masuk came in with high energy of revenge and got out to a quick 14-0 lead a couple minutes into the second quarter.

Despite the initial surge of energy by Masuk, Killingly fought back. They countered Masuk's scoring drive that gave them the two-touchdown lead with a scoring drive of their own propelled by a 52-yard powerful run by senior Soren Rief. The drive was capped by a 6-yard passing touchdown from first-year starter Quinn Sumner to sophomore tight end Hunter Allard. They also converted a two-point conversation to make it a six-point game, 14-8.

Following the scoring drive the Killingly defense did their job and forced a quick three-and-out giving the offense 3:30 minutes to work with. Killingly took advantage and drove down the field and capped a nine-play drive with an eight-yard beautiful fade ball to the corner of the end zone from Sumner to sophomore Payton Wallace for a touchdown as time expired in the half. Killingly with all momentum went into the half tied, 14-14, after 14 unanswered points.

Unfortunately for Killingly, the momentum didn't last long. Masuk possessed the opening second-half kickoff and returned it for a touchdown. This began a downward spiral and Masuk scored 29 unanswered points in the second half before a late Killingly touchdown. Killingly fell to Masuk by a final score of 43-20.

"That was crucial because we had momentum at that point," stated Killingly head coach Chad Neal. "We needed to cover the kick a lot better, something we work on a lot. We had a couple of key guys off the field cramping on the kick-off converge and unfortunately, they made a great play returning it, but we still drove back down the next possession. We just had a couple of plays that we just didn't do a good enough job. Just one block away. We are a young team in a lot of areas and those are going to learn from that and not make that same mistake again."

The final score does not tell the story of how close this game truly was. Self-inflicted mistakes in the last two quarters and turning the ball over on downs, on their counter drive following the Masuk kickoff return in Masuk territory was the reason for the second-half collapse.

"It is the little things," expressed Neal. "If we do that, we are going to be fine. We are 0-1, but Masuk is a great football team, let's not kid ourselves there. We played them in the semifinals and we won last year and pretty much everyone is back, and I thought we battled with them. We play a lot of sophomores and they're going to go through some growing pains, but they're going to get better."

Killingly is going to build on this loss and progressively get back week in and week out. Growing pains are going to happen when you lose six starters on offense and nine on defense. On Friday night Sumner threw for two touchdowns, to two fellow sophomores. Sophomore Hayden Allard capped the night's scoring with a 69-yard touchdown run and junior Everton Brown showed a good change of pace alongside senior Soren Rief who paced the offense with 97 yards on the ground. Brown added 59 yards rushing.

Fast start helps Killingly girls' soccer to season opening victory

BY DEAN P. ST. LAURENT

SPORTS CORRESPONDENT

KILLINGLY —

The Killingly High girls' soccer team started quickly in their season debut on Thursday, Sept. 7. Less than two minutes into regulation, senior captain Laura Farquhar made a run down the left wing, cut into New London's penalty box, and stuck a strong pass to a cutting Morgan Blanchard. Blanchard timed the cut perfectly and pierced the back of the net with a beautiful one-timer to not only give her team an early 1-0 lead but to also record her first-ever varsity soccer goal.

"Laura is one of the main playmakers," explained Killingly head coach Megyn Asselin. "She makes things happen and works it up the field. That midfield in general, everything goes through them. They do a good job playing it up and working it off the three of them in there."

Killingly didn't slow down after getting an early lead and played dominating defense throughout. They focused on their game plan coming into the contest and it helped them start the season with a team-oriented 8-0 win over New London.

"It is very exciting we came from a hard season last year, so opening with a win like this is very exciting and uplifting for the girls," Asselin stated. "Our main focus was to work on maintaining possession and I think they did a very good job at doing that."

Killingly maintained possession much of the contest and it was due to methodical passing and slowing the pace of the game. The patience created many scoring opportunities and allowed many players to make a presence in the game.

"We really tried to focus, just getting the ball to feet, especially with the heat at the beginning of the game," explained Asselin. "Our main goal was to reserve our energy and work it up the field and a lot of our goals were playing it, pass, pass all-the-way up the field. That was our main focus and it worked out for us today."

Killingly had seven different goal scorers in the game, including captain Laura Fraquhar who scored twice and assisted on three others. Four players tallied their first-ever varsity goal. Those four were Molly Crabtree, Catrina Turgeon, Ella Marceau and Morgan Blanchard as mentioned above. Illy Malarkey and Spencer Chivek also scored.

Governing Beyond Faith: Elected Officials Must Serve All

In a diverse and pluralistic society, the principle of separation between church and state is fundamental to preserving individual liberties and ensuring that government serves the interests of all citizens, regardless of their religious beliefs or lack thereof. Elected officials have a solemn duty to represent the entire community, making decisions that respect the rich tapestry of religious beliefs that exist in our nation. However, there have been instances where some officials have allowed their personal religious convictions to guide their governance, raising concerns about the fairness and inclusivity of their actions.

One of the cornerstones of democracy is the idea that elected officials are entrusted with the responsibility to serve the interests of all their constituents, not just those who share their religious beliefs. Our society is incredibly diverse, with individuals from various faiths and belief systems coexisting harmoniously. It is imperative that our elected representatives reflect this diversity in their decision-making processes and refrain from imposing their own religious beliefs upon the broader population.

When elected officials allow their personal religious convictions to dictate policy, it can lead to the exclusion of those who hold different beliefs. This is not only unjust but also undermines the very essence of a democratic society that values religious freedom and tolerance. Our nation's history is replete with instances where religious intolerance and discrimination have caused immense harm, and we must not forget the lessons of the past.

Furthermore, the potential for religiously driven governance to teeter into radicalism is a grave concern. While most people practice their faith peacefully, there is a risk that individuals with extreme religious views may seek to impose their beliefs on society through the political process. Such radicalism can lead to policies that not only infringe on the rights of those outside the particular faith but also create an environment of hatred and divisiveness.

It is crucial for elected officials to remember that the separation of church and state is not an attack on religion but a safeguard for both government and faith. It ensures that religious institutions remain free from government interference and that government remains neutral and inclusive. This principle allows people of all faiths and none to coexist peacefully and participate fully in our democracy without fear of discrimination or marginalization.

To uphold the values of fairness, inclusivity, and religious freedom that our nation holds dear, elected officials must commit themselves to serving all their constituents, regardless of their religious beliefs. They must resist the temptation to govern based on personal religious convictions and instead prioritize policies that promote the common good and respect the diverse beliefs of the people they represent.

The importance of elected officials serving all people, irrespective of their religious beliefs, cannot be overstated. Our democracy thrives when it respects the principles of religious freedom, tolerance, and inclusivity. Elected officials must uphold these principles by governing without bias and ensuring that their decisions reflect the diverse and pluralistic nature of our society. By doing so, we can build a stronger, more united, and truly democratic nation where every citizen is valued and protected.

Money is power

To the Editor:

Lately there has been a little talk about term limits, ageism, but no talk of the root of the problems with government. Simply, $$$$$. It makes politics go round. From Supreme Court Justices to Congressman, Senators and companies/corporations. All need and want THE Money. You will NEVER get Term limits, simply you will be asking the people that benefit from the spigot being on to turn it off. Good luck with that. Money may not get you what you all the time but it will get into the room where all those decisions are made. Having been an intern in Washington many years ago, you quickly become aware of this fact when a call came into the office one call would go to the intern and one would go to the Legislative Aides, can you guess which call the intern got and which one the L Aide would get. The average Joe Citizen gets the intern and the lobbyist gets the L Aide. One gets to go lunch/dinner and one gets bupkis. Until there is a change in how much money and/or who contributes to a politician's campaign the status quo will remain. Putting caps on how much a Congressional, Gubernatorial or a Senator could spend on an election other than their own money, we will get what we have now. This is not to say, ask Linda McMahon, that money will not get you a Senate seat. She spent millions and got nothing. The U.S. Senate has become an old age home for people wanting power. They do very little for it. They enjoy the trappings of power and wait for it THE money.

Speaking of Senators doing nothing good, how about the Senator from Alabama, using

Coach Huhn a hero for stepping in during medical emergency

To the Editor:

On Monday, August 28, my granddaughter, Kayla, experienced a potentially life-threatening medical emergency during volleyball tryouts. Her coach, Fred Huhn, who thankfully happens to be an EMT, stepped in to help. Not only did he help to save Kayla's life, but he made the trip to Children's Medical Center in Hartford to check on her during the week that she was a patient in the PICU.

Now that Kayla is back in school, she's not sure whether she'll be cleared to play volleyball. However, Coach Huhn has told her that if she's unable to play, he'll involve her in a

Lanoue: Laura Lawrence for Killingly Board of Education

To the Editor:

I have been a resident of the Quiet Corner for 20 years, living in Killingly, Brooklyn and most recently Pomfret. I have been an educator in Rhode Island for 24 years. My most important and cherished role is as a parent, having sent children through the Killingly School District and the Woodstock Academy.

I met Laura Lawrence about 8 years ago when our children went to elementary school together and I coached soccer for Killingly Recreation. I quickly found out that Laura and I had a great deal in common as we had children the same ages and we both loved being parents.

Laura is not only a dedicated, loving parent, and an important part of the community. One attribute that impressed me about Laura upon meeting her was her love for her family.

Over the years Laura and I developed a friendship as we raised our children together in the community. We did not always see eye to eye his position to adversely affect the US military. He is holding up assignments to top military jobs, thus weakening the readiness of the services to protect our country. Remember when the Republicans were pro US defense throughout the world. He was not even a good football coach. How about US Supreme Court Justices taking trips and gifts from lobbyist friends without reporting them or paying taxes on them. Money and influence!!!! There is no oversight on this body. Job, money and privilege for life. Citizens have no vote or recall on these people. Where do sign up for that job?

Question: does anyone remember when the United States had a surplus in the federal budget?. Google it. We are now over 30 trillion in debt. Some Republicans want to shut down the government, your social security checks, military pay and more. People serving this country will have their pay held up, wonder why we are having trouble recruiting citizens to defend our country. The reason will make you sadder. Answer below. The debt grows daily and a tax cut for the rich will take care of the deficit. History shows that it does not work. All about THE money, for a few.

Answer: Some Republicans want to open an impeachment proceeding on the President, most do not. Do something for the people not to the people. After all it is all about THE money.

We couldn't be more grateful to Coach Huhn both for his expertise and his kindness to Kayla at an extremely difficult time. This was a terrifying experience for everyone involved, but something very good has come out of it.

Laura will be an asset to the Killingly school board because she truly wants what is best for the kids in the community. She selfishly not only puts her family first, but she puts the best interest of kids first.

Laura is not only a parent and community member but a fresh voice. Laura and I have had many conversations regarding education and what should happen for our kids. Laura has always focused on what is not only the best for her kids but for all kids.

In closing, I would like to formally endorse my support for Laura Lawrence for the Killingly Board of Education. Laura's dedication, willingness to listen and her desire for wanting what is best for children makes her an ideal candidate.

‘If you don’t use it, you’ll lose it’ when it comes to the brain

POSITIVELY SPEAKING

TOBY MOORE

The maxim “If you don’t use it, you’ll lose it”—heard so often—its practically a background track to our lives. But wait! Before you glaze over, have you ever considered the gravity behind this statement? It’s not just a snappy saying—it’s a golden nugget of wisdom with far-reaching implications.

The workings of the brain are spellbinding. Picture your brain as a thriving tree in a lush forest. Each new piece of knowledge you gain is like planting a seed that eventually sprouts into branches and leaves. This isn’t poetic license; it’s backed by the science of neuroplasticity—the brain’s incredible ability to form new neural connections throughout life.

Each time you learn or practice a skill, you reshape your brain and strengthen neural pathways, fortifying those branches and leaves on your cerebral tree. In this way, your brain doesn’t just store information—it evolves, hardwiring itself to flourish when you practice or learn something over time.

I began competitive swimming as a child, which was far from natural, but I was determined, and every lap I swam was like adding another leaf to a growing branch in my “swimming tree” in the brain. Each practice session was a mental workout, a “branching out” in my neural forest, solidifying the pathways that would improve my abilities.

I was learning to cut through the water more efficiently and grasping intricate techniques that required keen mental focus. While athletics is primarily seen as a physical endeavor, the cerebral component is enormous.

If you find the “learning tree” concept captivating, you’ll be equally intrigued by the neuroscience of “pruning.”

When you neglect other learned abilities or information, those corresponding branches in your brain don’t get the same nourishment. Just as a gardener would trim away the dead or overgrown branches to let a tree flourish, your brain also conducts selective maintenance.

Pruning is when the brain cuts out extra connections between neurons. This helps the brain work more efficiently by eliminating pathways it doesn’t need.

This is one reason why we forget things that we haven’t thought about in a long time.

Every so often, I feel the urge to get in swimming shape again, but let me tell you, those first few laps? A downright battle!

So, while my brain still holds the blueprints of a capable swimmer, the lack of recent practice means those finely tuned circuits are no longer firing on all cylinders.

Have you ever had that frustrating “tip of the tongue” moment when you can’t recall a word or name?

What about long division after years of not thinking about math? It’s like trying to crack the Da Vinci code without a cipher. For me, those branches have been pruned.

If you don’t regularly engage your mind and reinforce what you’ve learned, your mental acuity in those specific subjects may decline.

Brain pruning extends beyond mere skills and talents; it touches the very core of our dreams and ambitions. Your deepest aspirations require constant nourishment and attention. Whether penning poetry, mastering the guitar, or revolutionizing digital design,

Important updates on Student Loan Forgiveness and 529 Savings Rules

If you have student loans for you or your children, recent developments in the attempt to provide borrowers with some student loan forgiveness have brought about significant changes that impact borrowers' financial planning. There's also a significant change to the rules regarding what you can do with funds in a 529 college savings fund.

Whether you're a borrower or a parent planning for your children's education, understanding these developments is crucial for making informed financial decisions.

As federal loan interest accrues again starting September 1 and payments resume in October, borrowers should be aware of the shifting landscape.

What to Know About Student Loan Forgiveness Now

On June 30, the Supreme Court struck down President Biden's student loan forgiveness plan, which had put a pause on federal student loan interest and payments and offered up to $20,000 in student loan forgiveness to qualifying borrowers. As a result, that potential debt relief is no longer available.

In addition, the pause on the accrual of interest on federal student loans was lifted, and interest began to accrue on those loans beginning on September 1, and many borrowers will need to resume making payments in October. However, the Department of Education has implemented a 12-month "on-ramp" period for financially vulnerable borrowers whose payments will resume in October, providing some relief during this transitional period.

In the wake of the Supreme Court's decision, the Biden administration introduced the Saving on a Valuable Education (SAVE) plan. This income-driven repayment plan aims to make payments more affordable for borrowers. President Biden has also announced a potential path forward for nationwide student loan forgiveness under the Higher Education Act of 1965, but further details have yet to be provided.

The takeaway here is that if you have federal student loans for yourself or your children, plan on making payments beginning in October and assume you'll be paying the entire debt off.

For more information and assistance with federal student loans, borrowers can visit the Federal Student Aid website, their loan servicer's website, or reputable third-party resources. Financial websites like NerdWallet and organizations like the Student Debt Crisis Center offer valuable resources for borrowers seeking guidance on repayment options and loan forgiveness programs.

Good News for Those With Excess 529 College Fund Savings

Funds in a 529 account can only be used for qualifying educational purposes. Any funds withdrawn for uses other than those purposes are subject to a 10 percent penalty as well as federal income tax. But what if the beneficiary of the account decides not to attend college, or doesn't end up needing all of the funds for his or her education?

Up until now, options for excess 529 funds were limited to changing beneficiaries, nonqualified distributions, or waiting for future educational needs. But that will change beginning in 2024, thanks to provisions in SECURE 2.0.

As part of the Consolidated Appropriations Act of 2023, 529 account beneficiaries can roll over unused 529 account funds to a Roth IRA, tax-free and without penalties, beginning in 2024. This encourages families to contribute more to their 529 accounts while also allowing for greater retirement savings for those individuals who don't end up using all of those 529 funds. Another important factor is that high earners, typically restricted from Roth IRAs due to income limits, can take advantage of this opportunity without those limitations.

There are rules and limitations for this new 529-to-Roth rollover opportunity though: Recipient Roth IRA must be in the 529 beneficiary's name.

The 529 plan must be open for over 15 years. Rollover amounts cannot include recent Roth IRA contributions or earnings.

A lifetime maximum of $35,000 applies to rollovers.

Roth IRA contribution limits still apply, requiring staggered rollovers within annual limits.

beneficiaries based on educational needs or expense disparities.

The ambiguity surrounding the 15-year rule may be addressed by guidance from Congress or the IRS. However, due to past delays and uncertainties, resolution might not come before the rule's 2024 implementation. While awaiting the introduction of 529-to-Roth IRA rollovers, understanding the new rule's implications and limitations is vital for effective financial planning.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Chloe Markley to run for Town Council in Killingly District 4

To the Editor:

I would like to introduce myself and tell you why I am running for Killingly Town Council in District 4. I'm Chloe Markley and I grew up in a rural western Massachusetts. I moved to Killingly in 2015 when I married Joe Markley, whose family has lived in the area for generations. Together we have one daughter, Madelyn, who attends St. James (a family tradition). I've worked in the tech field as a user researcher for 15 years. I intend to bring my extensive skills in user research to my work on the town council. My job, in addition to managing a team, involves listening to users of software and services to understand what is not working and then fix those issues. As a town council member, I pledge to listen to the people of District 4 and solve the issues they care about.

I'm not much for politics, but I've been fairly unhappy with the direction that the town and school district has taken in the last few years. I strongly believe that we have a great community. We live in a wonderful area that's the best of both worlds: it's rural and quiet; but we also have easy access to lots of great small businesses, shops & restaurants. Our town also hosts many fun events throughout the year.

I'd like to see Killingly continue to grow and thrive; attract new families and businesses to the area. This sort of growth will not only boost stagnant tax revenue, but act as a fly wheel for the success of the town. If we can improve the image of our school system, provide support for our children, encourage new families to settle here, and ensure the retention of our teachers and administrators – we will entice new businesses to the area, which will serve the community. It becomes a virtuous circle that continues to feed itself and support positive growth.

I know I'm relatively new to this area and to the community development scene. However, I am a fast learner and a hard worker. I've been working since high school, and I self-funded two graduate degrees. I am confident that I will learn from those around me on the town council and come up-to-speed quickly on the work we need to do. I am passionate about this community and dedicated to helping the people of Killingly.

If you are in district 4, I humbly ask for your vote. And to everyone, please vote on November 7th and make your voice heard. Thank you!

The real reason

To the Editor:

Here's a question that probably never crossed the minds of all the die-hard Trump supporters: How many of you would love to see your sons grow up to be just like Donald Trump? He who brings out all the worst in human nature. Do his "rallies" bring the mind back to 1930's Germany?

A few years ago I read the book "With the Old Breed." It was an account of one United States Marine and his experiences in the invasions of the Japanese held islands of Peleliu and Okinawa in the South Pacific Theatre during World War 2. A most painful read for me since the horrors that he recalled were actually being lived by my father who was there as well with The 1ST Marines.

Dad left a new bride and baby son,

Tetreaults will vote for Dombkowski for Killingly Board of Education

To the Editor:

As we enter the election season, we should note the importance of casting our votes. Voting, not only for state and federal officials, but especially our local boards of education, is how, we, the people, can make our voice heard.

Laura Dombkowski filled a vacancy on the Killingly Board of Education 15 months ago and is running for re-election this November. She grew up in Killingly, today resides here with her family, and her children attend Killingly schools. She will have our votes for several reasons.

In the short span of time served, Laura has prioritized our children's and staff's safety in Killingly by providing armed Security Resource Officers in the schools. Laura help negotiate pay raises for staff district-wide to ensure Killingly was competing with surrounding towns. She has help provide mental health support at KHS and took an oath to defend The Constitution of the United States, and fought to fulfill that oath. Why? For the freedom of my mother, brother, his country, and, if he survived, the freedom of his children yet unborn. This is the same oath Trump took and spit on. Of all the reasons to despise this person, this is my deepest.

There is a series on Amazon Prime TV called "The Man in the High Castle." It's a fictional account of what might have been if we had lost WW 2: Nazi Germany controlling our country west to the Rocky Mountains, Imperial Japan occupying the Western States. A chilling reminder of what another Trump Presidency might hold.

RICK ROCHELEAU DANIELSON

KIS for students as well as maintaining parental rights. Laura also introduced "Rachel's Challenge" which will address and curb bullying and promote empathy for others.

In closing, a vote for Laura Dombkowski will mean that our children will receive a robust education in civics, history and economics ensuring they will become productive, well-informed and engaged citizens. And, she will help maintain parental rights and authority which is extremely important today.

Please vote for Laura Dombkowski for the Killingly BOE this November. Her presence on the BOE will ensure that things actually get done with transparency, and, most importantly, the welfare of everyone in our school system will be first and foremost.

each dream has its dedicated neural pathway that thrives on focus and diligence.

Another way to think of it is that our brains are like librarians, constantly deciding which books—skills, memories, abilities—deserve prime shelf space and should be stored in the attic.

When you choose not to follow your dreams, you're pruning a part of yourself that once flourished. Keep those neural pathways strong and connected, and watch them grow into full-fledged realities.

The lesson here is to actively nurture the pathways in your brain that matter most to you, whether that's your dreams, goals, or cherished friendships. If you neglect them, your brain might prune these connections away, making it seem as if they never existed.

The "use it or lose it" principle is life's ultimate maintenance guide. It's a nudge to action. Your skills, your relationships, your dreams—think of them as a cherished garden. Left unattended, even the prettiest rose bushes turn to weeds.

So? What are you waiting for? Exercise that grey matter! You've got nothing to lose but everything you don't use.

ic, it has rebounded and thrived. Lead Pastor Riley Prather said he took a chance moving from Oklahoma to Putnam to spread the word of the Bible. While religion is a staple of many communities in Oklahoma, Prather acknowledged New England is one of the least religious parts of the country so many of his friends and family initially questioned his move. However, Prather followed his heart knowing he had something special to bring to the Quiet Corner.

“I wanted to go somewhere to make a difference for people who have never encountered Jesus the way that I have. Our whole vision here is five words: ‘Encounter Jesus, Live Him Daily’. It’s printed on our wall for everybody knows that’s what this church is about. If we truly believe what the Bible says, that Jesus is alive and that we can have a relationship with him then that changes things. That’s a different dynamic than most people encounter,” said Prather. “We’re preaching a message that’s really old and has stood the test of time for 2,000 years, we’ve just only been doing it here for ten years.”

While the Family Party was a celebration of 10 years in Putnam, Prather stressed that it wasn’t all about the church. It was also about giving the community a place to celebrate and to have a little fun on possible the last summer weather weekend of the year. “It’s not for ourselves. It’s kind of a reverse birthday.” We asked, “what can we do to bless the community?” and we just wanted people to have fun. Jesus was fun. He said some very fun things when you look at the scriptures - We asked how we could be a picture of how Jesus would have fun and do things to bless the community around him and show people a good time. What better way to do that than having a celebration here,” said Prather.

Day Kimball Health’s Hospice Agency earns second Five-Star CMS Rating

PUTNAM — Day Kimball Health (DKH) announced today that Hospice & Palliative Care of Northeastern Connecticut, a service division of Day Kimball Healthcare at Home, has achieved a prestigious five-star rating by the Centers for Medicare and Medicaid Services (CMS) for a second time. The CMS star ratings for hospice agencies are based on the Consumer Assessment of Healthcare Providers and Systems (CAHPS) Hospice Family Caregiver Survey.

As the sole organization in the state of Connecticut to receive a five-star rating, Hospice & Palliative Care of Northeastern Connecticut has demonstrated its commitment to delivering exceptional care and support to patients and their families.

The Windham County chapter of the National Alliance on Mental illies. This accomplishment places the agency among the top 11 percent of all hospices nationwide. Of the more than two thousand eligible hospices, only 236 were awarded the five-star distinction.

“We are immensely proud of the exceptional care and support our hospice team provides, and this five-star rating from CMS is a reflection of our commitment to excellence in end-of-life care,” said Renee Smith, vice president, Post-Acute Services, Day Kimball Health. “We remain committed to ensuring that every patient and family we serve receives the highest level of comfort, dignity, and compassion during their hospice journey.”

The star ratings are calculated from data collected through the CAHPS

Hospice Survey, a comprehensive 47-question survey administered via mail and telephone and completed by family caregivers of patients who received hospice care before their passing. The survey assesses various aspects of care and support provided by hospice agencies for eight publicly reported CAHPS measures including communication with the family, timeliness of help, and treating the patient with respect amongst others. CMS updates the star ratings every other quarter to ensure the information remains current and relevant.

“Receiving the five-star rating from CMS is a testament to the dedication of our exceptional team at Hospice & Palliative Care of Northeastern Connecticut,” said Kyle Kramer, CEO of Day Kimball Healthcare. “We are honored to be recognized as a top hospice agency, and this achievement confirms our commitment to providing compassionate and comprehensive end-of-life care to our patients and their families.”

Hospice & Palliative Care of Northeastern Connecticut is a program of Day Kimball Homecare, a Medicare certified home health care agency licensed by the state of Connecticut and accredited by The Joint Commission. Its mission is to enhance the lives of individuals and families through a personalized plan of care that meets physical, psychosocial, spiritual and emotional needs throughout the end of life.

Nearly 10 years ago, on December 7, 2013, a fire destroyed the historic meetinghouse of the First Congregational Church of Pomfret. Thanks to the love, support and encouragement of the Pomfret community, a new house of worship now stands in place of that earlier one. Quite naturally, as those familiar with the grief precipitated by such a loss and the rigors of the efforts expended to rebuild during the next several years, the hearts of the entire congregation in Pomfret were touched deeply this past April when their friends and neighbors at the Congregational Church of Eastford faced the devastating fire that destroyed their building.

On Saturday, September 30, from 9:00-2:00, First Congregational Church of Pomfret will sponsor a sale of quilts fashioned by the late Judy Black to raise funds for the rebuilding of the Congregational Church of Eastford. Judy Black, who passed away in February of 2022 left behind a large collection of finished pieces including handmade quilt squares, table runners, wall hangings, and quilted stuffed animals. In the same way that Judy worked tirelessly during her lifetime to touch the lives of countless children who attended Paul Newman’s Hole in the Wall Gang Camp in Ashford as each child was sent home at the end of their visit with a full-sized quilt, Judy wished that the works she left behind would continue to provide a blessing and be of benefit to others in need.

As far back in history as ancient Egypt, quilters have labored to meet practical needs with works of extraordinary beauty. Quilts are more than scraps of material pieced together with a needle and thread. They are works of art born out of love, creative kindness and a desire to capture memories and dreams in a form that often becomes a lasting legacy and cherished heirloom. With the advent of the Fall season and as thoughts turn naturally to the holiday season ahead and the giving of gifts, you are invited to gather in the Fellowship Hall of First Congregational Church of Pomfret on September 30 to enjoy the artistry of Judy Black’s quiltings and to find something unique and beautiful that will become a cherished heirloom for that special person on your gift-giving list. As you do so, you will also be benefiting our extended community as all proceeds from this event will go directly to the Congregational Church of Eastford to assist them in their rebuilding process.

Economic gardening in Thompson; 65 Main St. planning project launches in October

The Town of Thompson Department of Planning and Development has been awarded funding from the USDA Urban Agriculture and Innovative Production (UAIP) grant program to develop a Small Business Support Center with a focus on food system and agriculture start-ups at the Town-owned building located at 65 Main Street in the North Grosvenordale neighborhood. Public input is a critical component of the planning process for the planned facility and the adjacent 3.2-acre parcel. Thompson will be holding 12 monthly public workshops, the first being held on October 4, 2023. The planning grant project will be underway as the building is renovated under a separate grant from the U.S. Small Business Administration. All activities related to the 65 Main St project are fully grant-funded, with no matching requirement from local tax dollars.

For some time, Thompson has been poised at the threshold of opportunity. As with many comparable communities in Northeastern Connecticut, recovery in Thompson from the collapse of the mill-based economy has been slower than in more tech-oriented regions; and the economic drain was exacerbated when construction of I-395 diverted much of the traffic away from the traditional village center. Despite these challenges, Thompson is not without its assets. The community has an agricultural history that has always run parallel to the boom-times of the mill era and has since outlived those industrial giants. Several family farms persist within the town, which is designated by the Connecticut Department of Agriculture as a Farm-Friendly Community. At the same time, the bones of the mill area remain and are ripe for redevelopment to meet 21st Century needs. The UAIP planning project will capitalize on these traditions and local resources.

A key component of the planning process is a year-long public workshop series, meeting monthly, to determine the specific needs of Thompson’s small business community, identify deficits in local food security and imagine ways in which the future facility at 65 Main Street can show the highest community utility. The workshop sessions will present all aspects of the project and solicit input from residents and stakeholders to be considered as part of the final master plan for the facility.

Four of the project partners will appear on the WINY Talk Show on Friday, 15 September at 9 a.m. to discuss their roles in the project. Joining the host in-studio that morning will be Tyra Penn, Director of Planning & Development for the Town of Thompson; Anne Miller, Executive Director of TEEG; Jocelyn Leahy, Executive Director of CT Resource Conservation and Development; and John Guskowski, Co-Founder and Principal of Tyche Planning and Policy Group.

The public workshop will launch on Wednesday, October 4, 2023 from 6-8PM at the Thompson Public Library/Louis P. Community Center, 934 Riverside Drive, North Grosvenordale, CT 06255. Project partners will discuss all elements of the project, answer questions, outline the schedule for the workshop series and solicit participants for the year-long process. All are invited to attend. Registration is encouraged but not required: <https://tinyurl.com/65Main-Meeting1>
