Southbridge breaks ground for new fire station

BY GUS STEEVES
CORRESPONDENT

SOUTHBRIDGE — “Decades in the making,” the fire station project officially kicked off last week with the formal groundbreaking of gold-painted shovels tossing dirt around.

Of course, the real work has already begun, with dump trucks hauling tons of dirt around the 129 Worcester Street property that will be its new home for a few weeks now.

As Fire Chief Paul Normandin noted, this project came about because of “the dedication of many individuals,” some of them no longer alive, over “countless meetings and hundreds if not thousands of hours.”

Town Manager Jack Jovan said that began in 1999 “because they saw a vision that a new station was needed.”

At that time, the council didn’t support it, and over the years, the plan was sidestepped to prioritize other key projects, including a new police station and middle/high school. But nobody forgot, and the building committee was recreated in June 2015, with most of its members still involved.

One, John Szugda, has done it for 25-plus years. Regarding another, Joe Hulyk (now building committee chair), Jovan said he “has truly been my partner as we’ve continued this journey” and praised his “leadership and dedication to this mission.”

“The last time something like this happened was over 100 years ago,” Hulyk replied, referring to when

First phase of #2 Schoolhouse renovations on schedule

BY JASON BLEAU
CORRESPONDENT

CHARLTON — Charlton is seeing progress on Phase 1 of a restoration project for the #2 Schoolhouse Building on Northside Road, a historical staple of the town dating back to the 1840s.

The current phase of the project is funded through a $50,000 Preservation Projects Fund grant from the Massachusetts Historical Commission as well as additional authorized town funding in Charlton’s capital budget. Bids for the project were opened in February and work began later in the year. The town partnered with Cirrus Engineering and Crocker Architectural Sheet Metal for structural shoring, slate roof replacement and exterior repair work with the structural shoring and roof replacement well underway.

Town Administrator Andrew Golas said the renovation is pro-

Bay Path Practical Nursing students attend prestigious Women’s Leadership Conference on scholarship

CHARLTON — Seven students from Bay Path Practical Nursing Academy — Elizabeth Achayo, Rachel Anane, and Natasha Rovon of Worcester; Chali Desrosiers of Oxford; Ashley Rincon and Giselle Rosario of Southbridge; and Delene Sarsfield of Charlton — attended the esteemed 2025 Worcester Regional Chamber of Commerce and Worcester Women’s Leadership Committee (WWLC) Conference on scholarship. Stefanie Silva, Programs and Events Coordinator for the Worcester Regional Chamber of Commerce, personally congratulated the students via email upon their acceptance to the event. “We are SO excited to see you all at the DCU Center to celebrate our Sweet 16!” Silva wrote, referencing the conference’s 16th anniversary.

Held on Thursday, June 12 at the Worcester DCU Center, the one-day conference drew more than 700 attendees, primarily women professionals from across the region. Now in its 16th year, the Worcester Women’s Leadership Conference is the largest event of its kind in Central Massachusetts, offering participants invaluable opportunities for business networking, professional development, and personal growth.

The conference aims to empower and inspire women by addressing issues that impact both their personal and professional lives. “Thank you to our Presenting Sponsors, The Hanover Insurance Group Inc. and UMass Memorial Health, for their continued support, along with all of our incredible sponsors who help make Central MA’s largest women’s conference possible,” added Silva.

The scholarship opportunity provides an inspiring platform for the Bay Path nursing students to broaden their leadership skills and connect with a diverse network of women leaders throughout the region.

QCC Math Team scores double victory

WORCESTER — Quinsigamond Community College has secured two first-place victories in regional mathematics competitions. The QCC math team has been awarded the Lois A. Martin Student Math League Award for placing first among all New England Mathematical Association of Two-Year Colleges (NEMATYC) Student Math League teams, while simultaneously claiming first place in the entire Northeast Region of the American Mathematical Association of Two-Year Colleges (AMATYC) Student Math League competition.

Under the guidance of Professor of Mathematics Ibar Delacruz, who served as the team's moderator, QCC students tackled complex mathematical challenges throughout the competition. The team's success reflects not only the students' mathematical abilities, but also the supportive learning environment of QCC.

"It's fun. I enjoy solving math problems," said Ben Carpenter, one of the top-scoring students.

With a background in IT, Carpenter found that math courses at QCC provide good practice for how computers operate and hopes to pursue a career in cybersecurity. He shared how his mathematical talents were recognized by Professor of Mathematics Steve Zona, who invited him to help outside of class, eventually leading Ben to become a peer tutor.

"Now people I have tutored are becoming tutors as well," Carpenter noted.

Isabel Thies, another top performer, shared a different journey. She didn't enjoy math in high school and came to QCC as an undecided major. But Theis's professors noticed her abilities and encouraged her to explore mathematics. She ended up joining the Liberal Arts-Mathematics program and sees a future in scientific research and innovation.

For Thies, the competition provided unexpected opportunities.

"It was really exciting to represent QCC and our math program, especially because we were going up against some big competitors," Thies said, adding, "I've found a math community here, which I was not expecting."

Team member Quoc Le, who "really loves math and talking to people about math," expressed a similar sentiment of belonging between math-focused students. He plans to pursue mechanical or electrical engineering but expressed interest in keeping in touch with other QCC students.

Fellow team member Vijay Kesavan noted the alignment between their QCC coursework and what's offered at other renowned institutions.

"MIT (Massachusetts Institute of Technology) has open tests available. Looking at them, I saw a lot of overlap with Professor De La Cruz's class," he said.

All of these award-winning students have been accepted to Worcester Polytechnic Institute (WPI) for the fall semester, demonstrating how QCC's mathematics program serves as a foundation for continued academic success.

Bay Path nursing students volunteer at blood pressure clinic

CHARLTON — Michelle Drumm, C.D.P., Director of the Charlton Council on Aging, recently expressed her appreciation for the Practical Nursing student volunteers from the Bay Path Practical Nursing Academy's Class of 2025. The Academy has concluded its free blood pressure screening initiative for the academic year, which was held monthly at the Charlton Senior Center.

Throughout the school year, Practical Nursing students volunteered their time on the last Wednesday of each month, from 10:30 to 11:30 a.m., at the Charlton Senior Center located at 37 Main St. These screenings provided seniors with valuable insights into their cardiovascular health.

"It is wonderful to see our Practical Nursing student volunteers complete another successful year of service at the Charlton Senior Center under Michelle's leadership," said Gretheline pressure. Often, there are no warning signs or symptoms."

According to the American Heart Association, one in three U.S. adults has high blood pressure. Of those, 22 percent are unaware of their condition, 69 percent are receiving treatment, and only 45 percent have their blood pressure under control. The free screenings aim to promote awareness and encourage seniors to make regular blood pressure monitoring part of their healthcare routine.

The final student volunteers for this academic year were Bobbie Jo Smith of North Brookfield and Katelyn Smith of Charlton, both members of the Practical Nursing Class of 2025. Bobbie Jo has served as a Shift Supervisor with the Commonwealth of Massachusetts for over eight years, working in the North Central Group Homes. She was recently inducted into the National Technical Honor Society. Katelyn, a 2018 graduate of Bay Path Regional Vocational Technical High School's Cosmetology program, is also a proud member of the current nursing class.

Both students are certified in Mental Health First Aid and Dementia Care and have completed specialized training in Domestic Violence, reflecting their commitment to comprehensive, compassionate care.

This is your brain on fun

When’s the last time you had some real, stupid, joyful fun?

Not the kind that’s scheduled on a calendar or costs $85 a ticket. I mean the kind of fun that sneaks up on you and reminds you life isn’t all stress and headlines. A kitchen dance-off. A late-night ice cream run. A ridiculous game of charades where everyone ends up crying from laughter.

We forget how much we need that.

The world’s heavy enough. People are tired. Disconnected. But fun, real, low-stakes, no-reason fun brings us back to life. It connects us and reminds us we’re human.

And there’s science to it. Research from Harvard found that playfulness, humor, and spontaneous joy reduce cortisol levels, improve brain function, and increase our capacity for empathy and resilience. Even the Harvard Law Review has noted how community and levity can improve public well-being and reduce conflict which sounds pretty good right about now. Fun doesn’t fix everything. But it makes everything easier to carry.

Harvard Study on Happiness: A long-term Harvard study on adult development found that close relationships and shared joyful experiences are the strongest predictors of health and longevity more than money or fame. Fun, especially when shared, strengthens those bonds.

Stanford Neuroscience Research: Engaging in fun and playful activities increases dopamine levels, which improve mood, motivation, and focus. It’s your brain’s natural “reward” system.

National Institute for Play: This institute emphasizes that play reduces stress, boosts creativity, and improves overall well-being, especially when it includes laughter or spontaneous moments.

American Journal of Lifestyle Medicine: Reports that people who prioritize leisure and play have lower levels of cortisol (the stress hormone), improved immune function, and reduced risk of cardiovascular disease.

More examples of everyday fun:

Hosting a “bad movie night” with neighbors and popcorn.

Setting up a spontaneous water balloon fight on a hot day.

Having a board game potluck everyone brings a snack and a game.

Organizing a “slow bike ride” zero competition, just cruising.

Creating a temporary sidewalk chalk gallery on your street.

Starting a DIY music night a few instruments, no expectations.

Holding a “try something new” night. People teach each other random skills like yoyo tricks, juggling, or how to whistle with fingers.

Mix up These “Solutions” to Your Gardening Challenges

It’s growing season and nearly every successful backyard gardener uses a few tricks of the trade to ensure success. But the average gardener is not without challenges this time of year; whether it is repelling pesky garden pets or curing black spot disease. With this in mind, the following tried and true “recipes,” made from ordinary household ingredients offer a creative solution to common garden problems.

- ****
- Flower Bed Pet Deterrent
- Made from pantry dry goods, this chemical free recipe has been used for generations of gardeners to repel pets from garden beds.
- Ingredients: one part cayenne pepper; two parts dry mustard powder; four parts flour
- Directions: Mix in a large paper grocery bag by holing the neck of the bag and shaking it. Distribute generously in the beds. Repellent must be reapplied after watering.
- ****
- Cut Garden Flower Preservative
- The theory behind this recipe is that Listerine contains sucrose and a bactericide to extend the life of cut flowers.
- Ingredients: two ounces Listerine mouthwash; one gallon water
- Directions: Mix together and pour into vase of cut flowers.
- ****
- Green Lawn Cocktail
- Give your lawn a

- healthy boost with this cocktail made from common ingredients.
- Ingredients: one cup Epsom salts; one cup household ammonia; one can beer; two cups water
- Directions: Pour into hose-end sprayer and apply. Covers and peeps up about 2000 square feet.
- ****
- Black Spot Cure for Roses
- Get roses back in tip top shape with this simple spray.
- Ingredients: three tablespoons baking soda; one gallon water.
- Directions: Mix together both ingredients and spray roses. Pick up any fallen rose leaves and burn them or take them to the dump.
- ****
- Exterior Mildew Wash
- Extinguish mold on outside garden walls and other surfaces with this powerful mildew wash.
- Ingredients: three quarts warm water; one quart liquid laundry bleach, such as Clorox; one quarter cup powdered laundry detergent; two thirds of a cup TSP (trisodium phosphate, available at paint stores)
- Directions: Mix well and apply to surfaces with a stiff broom. Let stand for one half hour. Rinse well with a garden hose to prevent damage to plants. Wear rubber gloves when handling.

Note: These recipes were collected from several different published sources. Use with care and at your own risk.

one. The victim. The almost-was.

We play them so well that we forget we’re performing until it becomes our truth.

Some would look at that Harvard study and scoff, “They were putting on a facade.” But that’s not what happened at all. I think they were peeling off the facade.

I think, for five days, they stopped pretending to be old—and remembered who they really were. They told a new story in their heads. And their bodies followed. Their minds led. And biology responded.

That’s the power of identity.

“We are what we pretend to be, so we must be careful about what we pretend to be,” wrote Kurt Vonnegut.

Because here’s something most people never consider: every one of us is pretending. All the time. Based on what we believe. Based on what we’ve agreed to about ourselves. Based on what we were told—and accepted—about what’s possible.

So ask yourself: Are you really who you’ve been pretending to be?

Because if you want to know who you’re acting like, just look at your results. Your life is the clearest revelation of who you’ve agreed to be. And if you want new results, you don’t need to push harder—you need to play a new role.

That starts with changing your in-

Should you trust a ‘finfluencer?’

NIELSEN

In the age of social media, it’s easy to find advice on just about anything — including how to manage your money. Content creators known as “finfluencers” — short for financial influencers — use platforms like TikTok, YouTube and Instagram to share their takes on investing, budgeting, and building wealth. Many of them are charismatic and relatable, and they often speak from personal experience. But while their content may be engaging, taking financial advice from a finfluencer without digging deeper can come with significant risks.

While some finfluencers may have formal training or credentials, many do not. Instead, their influence stems from their popularity rather than professional experience. But popular advice may not necessarily be good advice. A 2025 study by the Swiss Finance Institute even found that unskilled finfluencers typically have larger followings than skilled ones.

Why be cautious?

For young or new investors, social media can make finance feel accessible. In fact, a 2022 FINRA study says that more than 60 percent of Americans younger than 35 get investing information from these platforms. But social media isn’t regulated the same way traditional financial advising is, so anyone, qualified or not, can offer financial tips.

Unlike traditional financial advisors, finfluencers don’t know your unique goals, financial situation, or risk tolerance. And likely, they’re not licensed (you can check here: Check Out Your Investment Professional | Investor.gov). Even well-meaning guidance might lead you down a risky path if it’s not tailored to your needs. And unfortunately, some finfluencers have exploited the trust they build with followers to promote questionable investments or outright frauds.

Warning signs to watch for

Here are a few signs that a finfluencer’s advice may be worth avoiding:

Unrealistic “get-rich” promises: Claims like, “Turn $500 into $50,000 in a year,” are highly improbable, and may indicate a scam.

Hurry, hurry: Be wary of advice that pressures you to act fast or plays on fear of missing out. Important financial decisions shouldn’t come with a countdown clock.

Flashy displays of wealth: Images of luxury cars, watches or cash can be more about generating views than offering sound advice. If a finfluencer is trying that hard to convince you to take an action, it often means they will profit — perhaps they’ll get paid to promote a product or service, or earn a fee for referring you, or are trying to boost clicks and followers to earn more.

What you can do

Do your own homework. Don’t take finfluencers’ advice at face value. Cross-check it with reliable sources. The finfluencer may even be under investigation by a federal or state securities regulator. Talking to a licensed financial advisor you trust can help you discern good advice from the bad.

Recognize conflicts of interest. If a finfluencer promotes a product or service, find out if they’re being paid to do so. And remember, online personalities make money by generating high viewership, not because their advice has a track record of success.

Use common sense. When something sounds too good to be true, it usually is. And of course, never disclose your bank or brokerage account numbers to a finfluencer, and never send money.

Finfluencers can make financial topics more engaging and accessible. But when it comes to your money, a social media video from someone who doesn’t know you is no substitute for informed, personalized guidance. Take the time to verify, research and, when in doubt, seek advice from a professional.

Create, plant, and maintain a pollinator garden

Celebrate National Pollinator Month this June by creating and maintaining a garden that attracts and supports these important members of our ecosystem. Pollinators are responsible for about 75 percent of the food we eat and play an important role in producing food, fiber, medicine and more. The European honeybee is the most well-known but our native bees along with moths, wasps, beetles, flies, bats, and some birds also help pollinate our gardens.

Just like the honeybees and Monarch butterflies, many pollinators are struggling with their populations dwindling due to pesticides and loss of habitat. You can make a difference by creating pollinator gardens filled with their favorite plants.

Start helping all pollinators and the environment by reducing or better yet eliminating the use of pesticides. If you opt for a chemical solution, look for the most eco-friendly product and as always read and follow label directions to minimize the negative impact on the environment and pollinators.

As you create your pollinators' paradise include shelter from predators and the weather. Include trees and shrubs, if space allows, providing you with year-round interest and nectar, pollen, and tasty leaves as well as nesting sites and safe havens for the various life stages. Leave patches of open soil for ground nesting bees and some leaf litter to shelter some butterflies, bumblebees, and other pollinating insects.

Plant a variety of native plants, herbs and other pollinator favorites that provide nectar and pollen throughout the season. Spring bulbs, early blooming wildflowers and perennials provide essential food that is often in limited supply early in the season. Fall flowering plants provide needed energy supplies as the bees, hummingbirds, and other pollinators prepare for winter.

Include plants with different colors and shaped flowers to attract and support a variety of pollinators. Plant flowers in mass. You will enjoy the display, the garden will require less maintenance, and the pollinators will use less energy when they can gather lots of food from a smaller area.

Plant masses of flowers like columbine, sweet alyssum, annual and perennial salvia, cupheas, cosmos, phlox, zinnias, bee balm, liatris, sedum, asters and more to help attract these beauties to your landscape. Fuchsias, begonias and impatiens are perfect for shady locations. And don't let a lack of space dissuade you; even a window box of flowers can help.

Bigger flowers are not always better. Double flowers may be showy, but they have less nectar and pollen. The multiple layers of petals may hinder access to the nectar and pollen they contain.

Grow some herbs in the garden and containers for you, the bees, and other beneficial insects. Let some go to flower and watch for visitors on thyme, borage, oregano, and other herb flowers. Tolerate a bit of damage on parsley, dill and fennel as the swallowtail caterpillars dine on the leaves. These vigorous plants will recover once the caterpillars transform into beautiful butterflies.

Add some native plants to your gardens whenever possible. They are a richer source of nectar and pollen than cultivated plants. Pollinators and other beneficial insects have evolved with these plants, providing a mutual benefit.

Puddles, fountains, birdbaths and even a damp sponge can provide needed water. Include water features with sloping sides or add a few stones for the visitors to sip without getting wet. Sink a shallow container of sand in the ground. Keep it damp and add a pinch of sea salt for the butterflies and bees. Add a flat stone for warming and be sure to watch for and snap a few photos of visitors as they sip and sun in your garden.

If you create it, they will come. Be patient, make note of their favorites, and keep growing to attract, support and enjoy these important garden visitors.

I Am.
From "I'm too late" to "I'm right on time."
From "I'm stuck" to "I'm growing." From "I'm not enough" to "I'm becoming."

It's not about faking it 'til you make it. It's about embodying what's already inside you. Athletes do it. Performers do it. Therapists teach it.

Visualization. Rehearsal. Mental reprogramming. To the brain, there's little difference between real and vividly imagined experiences—when you're fully immersed, your biology plays along.

So, who you imagine yourself to be—over and over—becomes your lived experience.

Do you have the courage to be yourternal self?

Or have you been playing a role for so long you forgot there was a difference?

You don't need to wait for someone to recreate your environment. You don't need to wait for permission. You can create the shift now. Change the channel in your mind. Step into the role you were born to play. Speak differently. Walk differently. Believe differently. And soon, you'll see that your results follow your role.

If five days of pretending to be younger changed the lives of elderly men... imagine what six months could do for you.

"Live out of your imagination, not your history," wrote Stephen R. Covey

The question isn't whether it works. The science is there. The results are real.

The real question is: Who have you been pretending to be?

And more importantly—Who are you ready to become?

Because in the end, identity isn't something you find.

It's something you choose.

Because your identity isn't written in stone—it's written in action. And today is as good a day as any to begin the rewrite.

A woman paced the other side of the street with signs that carried complementary messages against fascism and tyranny. The right one’s phrase, slightly misspelled, is Latin for “Thus always to tyrants,” and is interpreted as meaning tyrants will always fall. It was allegedly first stated regarding the assassination of Julius Caesar and is Virginia’s state motto, per Wikipedia.

Several canines joined the protest, including this one objecting to some “DOGE-y” behavior in Washington.

CHARLTON — Despite the drizzle and fairly chilly weather, hundreds of people came together on Charlton Common for last Friday’s “No Kings” protest. It was just one of roughly 1,500 across the nation, with others nearby in Douglas, Oxford, Leicester, West Brookfield, Worcester and Killingly, to name a few.

The entirely peaceful protestors sported signs objecting to President Trump’s policies favoring the wealthy, ruling by executive order, threatening large cuts to social services, targeting immigrants, and other issues. Many made references to 1776 and the nation’s revolution against the King of England, while some expanded their target to include Congress, Elon Musk and other figures.

Large and small US flags were numerous, with several people wearing something with those colors, reinforcing the concept that dissent is what ensures democracy survives. As one occasional chant noted, “What does democracy look like? This is what democracy looks like.

Local student named to Fairfield University Dean's List

“This event is a really fun way to uplift the important work Wellstorm does every day,” said Cornerstone CEO Todd Tallman. “We know the high cost of housing has left some families in crisis, and the emotional impact can be devastating. Wellstorm offers a lifeline.”

FAIRFIELD, Conn. — Samuel Bailen of Charlton received the Spring 2025 semester Dean's List Honors for at Fairfield University. In order to be placed on the Dean's List, students must have completed a minimum of 12 credit hours in a semester, have no outstanding or incomplete grades for that semester, and have attained a semester grade point average of 3.50 or better.

Local residents earn degrees at Clark University's Commencement exercises

According to Wellstorm, the Christmas in July event is a crucial fundraising platform allowing for the expansion of its services, including “the bridge fridge,” a well-stocked community refrigerator full of pantry essentials for both humans and pets. The organization also provides mental health services, peer support programs and educational support for underserved populations such as those in BIPOC and LGBTQIA+ communities, the elderly, veterans, people with disabilities and those facing homelessness.

Worcester — Clark University awarded 468 undergraduate degrees and 1,014 advanced degrees during two ceremonies as part of the University's 121st Commencement exercises, held at the DCU Center in Worcester on Monday, May 19.

Ryan P. Bonja, of Sturbridge, graduated cum laude with a Bachelor of Arts.

Sean Thomas Keane, of Sturbridge, graduated with a Master of Public Administration. Keane is a member of the Alpha Epsilon Lambda honor society.

President David B. Fithian '87 urged the graduates to celebrate their accomplishments.

"For this day, smile upon yourself, applaud your achievements, reflect upon your growth, celebrate your friends and classmates and, perhaps most importantly, bask in the love of those here with you and for you," President Fithian said.

"All of us up here representing the trustees, administration, faculty, staff, and alumni are so proud of you, especially for overcoming all that you have had to in the past four years. We are smiling upon you, we applaud you, we celebrate you, and we thank you for sharing these years with us."

Esther Dufflo, the Abdul Latif Jameel Professor of Poverty Alleviation and Development Economics in the Department of Economics at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, delivered the Commencement Address during the bachelor's degree ceremony and was presented with the degree of Doctor of Laws.

"I have no advice for you as you embark on this task, but I have one plea. Do not let anyone convince you that the world is a Hobbesian dystopia where everything is zero-sum and wealth is the ultimate metric of success. It's not a place where there is a concentric center of caring, and beyond some radius, the value of others is zero. Think about this day, about how you got here, remember the kindness of many, and ask yourself what you can do to keep that going," said Dufflo.

Temera De Groot, a first-generation college student who emigrated from Guyana when she was 10 years old and plans to pursue law school, spoke to her peers at the undergraduate ceremony.

NPR journalist Ari Shapiro spoke to the students receiving master's and doctoral degrees, and encouraged them to prioritize connecting with and helping those around them.

"All of us carry a baton that our ancestors handed us. And all of us will pass it to those who come after us. Wherever we are in that relay race, there are people we can help. So the question we need to ask is, 'How can I be helpful?'" Shapiro told the crowd.

Shapiro was presented with an honorary Doctor of Letters degree at the afternoon ceremony.

Kumar Gaurav, a first-generation college student from India who received his MBA, also spoke at the graduate ceremony.

President David Fithian concluded the day's celebrations and told the graduates, "I applaud you. I congratulate you. And I urge you to put to work - anywhere in the world you find yourself next - the knowledge you have developed and the skills you have honed here to address the challenges and opportunities we face as global citizens."

The University conferred 975 master's and 39 doctoral degrees to a class that included graduates from 41 states and 35 countries.

For more coverage of Clark's Commencement ceremonies, visit the web.

Founded in 1887, Clark University is a liberal arts-based research university that prepares its students to meet tomorrow's most daunting challenges and embrace its greatest opportunities. Through 33 undergraduate majors, more than 30 advanced degree programs, and nationally recognized community partnerships, Clark fuses rigorous scholarship with authentic world and workplace experiences that empower our students to pursue lives and careers of meaning and consequence.

gressing nicely, and will eventually lead into other planned projects as part of a full renovation of the building.

“Future project phases will look to complete the exterior paint work, re-point the foundation and additional exterior wood repair around the ground level of the building,” said Golas.

The first phase has also included some bio-hazard remediation in the attic space. As part of the grant parameters, much of the work for Phase 1 needs to be completed before the end of June and Golas said they are well on their way to meeting that deadline.

The #2 Schoolhouse remains one of Charlton's most notable historic landmarks. Housed on the site of the former Baptist Meetinghouse and constructed in 1848, the building served as one of Charlton's last remaining one-room schoolhouses until 1950. Today, it is enshrined on the State Register of Historic Places. Renovation is being handled in accordance with the Secretary of the Interior's Standards for the Treatment of Historic Properties and Rehabilitation.

the Elm Street station was built. “... I’ll be much more excited when we’re doing the ribbon-cutting in 18 months.”

Hulyk has “spent over half my life in the current fire headquarters,” and described getting this project to this point as “an amazing ride.” But he noted it “would not have happened without the work of everyone,” praising the collaboration it took to achieve.

Council Chair Scott Lazo agreed, saying, “the team concept was the priority, not a choice.” To him, the whole effort was evidence of the attitude “Act like you’ve been there, never let them see you sweat, and never quit. ... What makes us durable here in Southbridge is we never quit.”

That was most notable when the town rejected the first bid as being too expensive (nearly $4 million over the voter-approved $25.7 million total) and had to re-bid it earlier this year. Lazo described that process as “biting our nails, but the team never broke.”

He was referring to the April 28 council vote to accept a $20 million contract with PDS Engineering & Construction Inc, the lowest of five bids. That figure does not account for some things. One is the “soft costs” including furniture, equipment, architecture and project management. Some of those are in the $5 million already spent, some are being covered by a $913,000 USDA grant and some of the land costs are being reimbursed by a $1 million congressional earmark at the end of the project. There’s also $1 million from Free Cash being applied to contingency that may or may not be needed. It also doesn’t include interest, which will add millions over the 20-year payback period.

The speakers thanked the state and federal governments for assistance, and some of those officials took turns at the podium themselves. All noted they’d repeatedly had local requests for financial aid to fund it.

“You deserve a government that works at all levels, and for this one, it did,” said State Rep John Marsi, who noted “keeping it local is key.”

Sen Ryan Fattman agreed, observing he’d

Behind the ceremony, the project’s real work rolls on.

received frequent communication from local leaders that were “a testament to your commitment to this project.”

US Rep Richard Neal said the fact the town approved a debt exclusion was a “courageous thing to do” when many of them fail, and he noted “I appreciate how difficult it is to undertake this.”

This year, seniors from all corners of Worcester County attended the June 7 program at SAC Park in Shrewsbury. Many guests from Spencer, the Brookfields communities, and surrounding towns drove through the park to receive a free barbecue lunch and many other giveaways.

"The Senior Picnic is one of my favorite days of the year, and we strive to provide the best experience possible for attendees," said Worcester County Sheriff Lew Evangelidis. "In addition to the numerous treats and giveaways that we hand out, we also have over a dozen vendors on site to speak with seniors about programs, products, and services that they may benefit from."

The program is made possible by teamwork from the WCSO, the Worcester County Reserve Deputy Sheriff's Association, and various vendors and sponsors.

"Sheriff Evangelidis and his team have honored Worcester County's senior citizens for over a decade," read a statement released by the WCSO. "Each summer, more than 100 volunteers prepare barbecue boxed lunches and hand out other raffle prizes, goodie bags, Massachusetts state lottery scratch tickets, Chick-fil-A gift cards, and more. For all involved, it's a special time filled with fun and community spirit."

This year, Janet Morin, Carolyn Boucher, Gen Cook, and Diana Perron—who live in the Brookfields communities and attend the picnic each year—enjoyed an opportunity to step out of their vehicle and take a photo with Sheriff Evangelidis. They even wore custom T-shirts celebrating the picnic.

Officials thank all volunteers who support local seniors each year at the event, helping to distribute products while also connecting guests with resources.

"It is the dedicated group of volunteers who make this event possible year after year. Despite the unfavorable weather forecast, Mother Nature granted a nice morning, which encouraged seniors to attend," read the statement issued by the WCSO.

This year's picnic was sponsored or supported by several community partners, including Table Talk Pies, Mercadante Funeral Home, Massachusetts State Lottery, Chick-Fil-A, Automatic Rolls of New England, JV Mechanical Contractors, Inc., Diamond Auto Group, Falcone Enterprises, NEPBA Local 550, the Savickas Family, and the Worcester Housing Authority.

Vendors at the picnic included Worcester County District Attorney Joesph Early, Central Mass Housing Alliance, Vickstrom Law Office, CareOne at Millbury, Rockland Trust Bank, The Overlook, the Worcester Red Sox, Tri-Valley, Inc., Saint Francis Rehabilitation and Nursing Center, Senior Connection, and Heart to Home Meals.

Students and staff members from Worcester Technical High School are also thanked for volunteering their time to help make the day memorable for attendees.

Bay Path Practical Nursing students sharpen interview skills through mock sessions with healthcare leaders

CHARLTON — Dana Aspero, Director of Hospice at The Overlook, recently conducted mock interviews with the Practical Nursing (PN) Class of 2025 at Bay Path Practical Nursing Academy. This annual tradition allows students to engage in realistic job interview simulations with actual members of the healthcare community, providing essential practice before they begin their careers.

Each year, members of the graduating PN cohort participate in these mock interviews — a “trial by fire” designed to replicate the experience of interviewing for an entry-level nursing position. This year, Aspero was so impressed with the students that she remarked, “They are all so nice — I would hire them!”

The interviews are held on campus and are a key component of the Transition into Practice course, led by Professor Melissa Zeien, BSN, RN, WCC. Professor Zeien not only prepares the students for the interviews but also manages the logistics — from scheduling volunteer interviewers to guiding students in refining their résumés and cover letters.

“The idea is that when our graduates walk into their first real interview for that coveted new grad position, they’ll feel more confident and prepared because they’ve already experienced the process,” explained Dr. Gretheline Bolandrina, DHA, MSN Ed, RN, CRRN, Academy Director.

Preparation for this moment begins as soon as students enter Bay Path. Over the course of the program, students build a comprehensive academic portfolio that documents their clinical experience, observations, volunteer service, and participation in initiatives like the Mock Code Team.

The mock interview experience is made possible thanks to generous volunteers from the healthcare field. These professionals see their participation not only as a way to give back but also as a vital part of strengthening the nursing pipeline and supporting the continued growth and reputation of Bay Path Practical Nursing Academy. Their involvement is deeply appreciated by faculty and students alike.
