QUINEBAUG — Elizabeth Margaret Walker “Betty” Bourbeau of Quinebaug recently celebrated her 104th birthday with family and friends. Betty was born in Fabyan, Connecticut in 1914. The family moved to Quinebaug in 1916 so that her sister, Mary, could more easily go to school at the Fabyan/Quinebaug school. For the past 102 years, she has lived in Quinebaug with-in one-quarter mile of her father, George Walker’s farm. She and her late husband, Arthur, moved into her current home on Walker Road in 1950. Her birthday party was celebrated with family members: children Kathleen Walker and Paul Bourbeau and his wife, Susan; grandchildren Heidi Wilson and her husband, Justin Wilson, Jonathan Frechin, James Bourbeau, and Andrew Bourbeau; and great grandchildren, Jude Wilson and Blaise Wilson. Also in attendance were friends and caregivers.

Betty is certainly a true part of Quinebaug’s history. In her younger years while living on her father’s farm, she rode WOODSTOCK — East Woodstock Congregational Church’s Reverend Dr. Susan J. Foster will be hosting a book launch at the church on Sept. 16 for her new book, “Retreats to Go.” This is Foster’s first published book, and she is hoping it will shed some light on the importance of retreats.

“Retreats to Go” features a collection of 12 retreat outlines. Foster provides crafts, scriptures and worship ideas for reach retreat, giving people some quick ideas if they don’t already have experience leading a retreat.

“I love to lead retreats myself,” she said. “It’s a great way for people to take a little bit of time for themselves. Slow down. Think and refresh.”

Foster has been in ministry for over 30 years, so she has a lot of experience to share. I spoke with the new author about the inspiration and passion behind “Retreats to Go.”

Rain garden at B’nai Shalom

BY OLIVIA RICHMAN
NEWS STAFF WRITER

PUTNAM — Congregation B’nai Shalom is one of the first recipients of the Eastern Connecticut Conservation District’s Rain Garden Project. Funded by the National Fish & Wildlife Foundation and the USEPA through Long Island Sound Future Fund, the project is an effort to help people understand that individual home owners can help protect water quality. The grant will be paying for 100 rain gardens in 100 rain barrels to be installed throughout Eastern Connecticut.

Congregation B’nai Shalom was honored to have their building chosen as one of the sites, especially since the temple is heading into their 100th year anniversary. President Sue Stern noted that this garden will be part of their celebration.

What is a rain garden? A rain garden is a garden that’s planted in a depression, instead of a mound. The purpose is to collect storm water run-off and soak it into the ground, where it will be naturally filtered by plants, microbes in the soil and mulch. The cooler and improved quality water will then enter the earth and soon make it to the town’s river.

“It’s safer to come into contact with this water on the Quinebaug River,” said Eastern Connecticut Conservation District’s Jean Pillo, who helped install the rain garden with Stern and her husband Jordan, and other synagogue members. “This is one step towards that. People are kayaking, fishing... We want them to have cleaner water to enjoy. It’s also better water quality for insects and fish, improving their habitat.”

Towns like Putnam in particular, said Pillo, benefit from these rain gardens because they have a permit for storm water run-off that they are supposed to abide by. Putnam will have to continue to fund a lot more rain garden projects to meet these permit requirements, said Pillo, and this will help them get started.

Woodstock colonial militia wants recruits

BY OLIVIA RICHMAN
NEWS STAFF WRITER

WOODSTOCK — The Woodstock Connecticut Colonial Militia is looking for recruits. Woodstock resident Peter Woodbury has formed the reenactment group in hopes of spreading a passion for colonial era reenactment in the area and helping people find out more about the town's history.

Woodbury decided to form the group after getting a lot of attention at the East Woodstock Congregational Church's Fourth of July Jamboree, where he went dressed as a militia-man. Many people wanted to simply take his photos. Others wanted to know more about the get-up.

Reenactment is something he's been doing for a year and a half. When his wife, Penny, passed away after an accident, Woodbury retired from his job as Captain of the Fire Department at Groton's Submarine Base after 25 years of service, and began to chase his childhood dream. That's when he became part of Roger's Rangers.

Since his family arrived in New England back in 1624, Woodbury has always been fascinated by the area's history. He's been researching his family history since 1996, but never had time to fully commit to his passion.

"I found that with reenactment groups, they become a family. It's just a family event," he explained. "It's not only about reenacting battles. Everybody is working together, cooking together. The soldiers and have wives and children who follow in camp. The kids are running around in period clothing. It's just a lot of fun."

Reenacting with Roger's Rangers was something that allowed Woodbury to explore his passion for New England's history. But it's more than that. It's an adventure. An immersive experience you can't have anywhere else. There's no cell phones. Just the story unfolding in front of you.

Last May, Woodbury was captured. "The Native Americans took my musket and tied my hands together," he said. "Prior to that I was protecting some camp followers — women and children. The Native Americans ended up dragging me back up to their fort. They tried to have a parlay — a meeting between the French, Indians and British. The British said they'd take the women and children and give them tobacco and meat. But they said the Natives could keep the ranger — me. I was tortured. At the end, they killed me. Which was common back then."

For that day, Woodbury was a war casualty. One of many. Then the next day you get back up and reenact another battle, with another role. Another outcome.

Woodbury started to wonder why Woodstock didn't have its own reenactment group. He started doing some research on the town and found out there was a huge Woodstock Militia in the 1700s. In 1775, Woodstock had five large companies march up to Boston under the command of Samuel McCowen, who still has a house standing in Woodstock.

"I wanted to pull it off and recreate it," said Woodbury of his excitement. With Old Sturbridge Village not too far away, Woodbury is hoping there will be enough history buffs and people curious about reenactment in the area. No matter your age, there's a role for you. "Once this group is up and running," he said, "it'll be very interesting. The people here enjoy history and want to be involved. They'll learn a lot about Woodstock."

To learn more about the Woodstock CT Colonial Militia, follow them on Facebook under the same name. You can also reach out to Woodbury at woodstockcolonialmilitia@gmail.com.

as the Joint Opening Session and the Patriotic Celebration. During the convention, National President Dee Guillory commended the 2,000 attendees for all their hard work in honoring veterans and supporting deployed military personnel and their families. Members have spent millions of dollars and volunteer hours helping the heroes of our country. The National President also thanked members for volunteering nearly one million hours in the nation's hospitals, and donating $300,000 to VFW Veterans and Military Support Programs, which includes Operation Uplink™ to provide long-distance calling opportunities to deployed soldiers and hospitalized veterans.

Courtney applauds rejection of newsprint tariffs

PUTNAM — Congressman Joe Courtney (CT-02) welcomed the International Trade Commission's vote on Aug. 29 to overturn tariffs imposed on Canadian newsprint by the U.S. Department of Commerce. The decision came after Courtney supported efforts to urge the commission to reject the tariff proposal.

"The unanimous decision to reject tariffs on Canadian newsprint is welcome news for newsrooms across Connecticut and around the country," Courtney said. "Connecticut print media companies import percent of their newsprint from Canada, and the Trump Administration's proposed tariffs would have increased their average costs by nearly 20 percent — which would have resulted in cuts to content and employees. Adding tariffs to newsprint ad hoc creates enormous financial handicaps for businesses throughout the country, and this was the right call today by the U.S. International Trade Commission."

On Aug. 2, the U.S. Department of Commerce announced its final duty rates of up to 20.26 percent on Canadian newsprint. This was the result of a petition filed with the International Trade Commission (ITC) by the North Pacific Paper Company (NORPAC) of Longview, Wash., which alleged that U.S. producers of uncoated groundwood paper were being harmed by the import of cheaper Canadian paper. The ITC has found — and the unanimous vote rejecting the tariffs has confirmed — that Canadian uncoated groundwood paper imports do not injure U.S. producers. While the Department of Commerce's proposed tariffs had yet to go into effect, they had already caused newsprint prices to inflate 30 percent.

According to the Connecticut Daily Newspaper Association, 100 percent of all Connecticut newsprint is imported from Canada and the proposed tariffs would have increased newspaper production costs. Publications had confirmed that these costs would result in staff layoffs.

Courtney strongly opposed the new tariffs and supported bipartisan efforts to urge the ITC's rejection of the plan. He signed a bipartisan letter signed by 18 of his colleagues urging rejection of the tariffs. In addition, he led a letter signed by members of the Connecticut Delegation citing the heavy impact of the new tariffs on Connecticut newspapers.

NOW road race set for Sept. 16

DAYVILLE—For the seventh year, Northeast Opportunities for Wellness, Inc. will host a road race and walk — with the 2018 event set for Sunday, Sept. 16. Since 2012, the NOW Road Race has featured a scenic route along the quiet streets of Alexander's Lake in Dayville. The event raises funds for NOW youth scholarships and wellness programs.

The event will see some notable changes for 2018. For the first time in the event's history, the NOW Road Race will feature an altered race route. Subtitled, "Lap the Lake" the race will be a traditional timed 5K (3.1 miles), starting at The Lake Tavern on Upper Maple Street in Dayville, with one "lap" around Alexander's Lake and finishing back at The Lake Tavern. The event is inclusive of runners and walkers, with individuals of all levels of fitness encouraged to participate. This route is a change from past years, with the event previously marketed as a "3.5ish" mile race, with a 3.76-mile course. The top overall male and female runners will each receive a $100 cash prize, with the top three runners in each five-year age group to be awarded a special prize connected to the race and NOW's mission. The race day sponsor of the event Putnam Bank

"This event is meant to be a day of fun and fitness and we are pleased to report that we have over 150 people signed up already," said NOW Executive Director Sarah Wolfburg. "We are hoping to see a record turnout for 2018 and we would love to see kids of all ages running in both the youth half-mile race and 5K race and walk." The event will kick-off at 7:30 a.m. with registration and packet pick-up. The Kids half-mile will start at 8:30 a.m. with the 5K beginning at 9 a.m. Melissa Dakai will sing the National Anthem before the race begins.

Putnam Bank will show additional support with dozens of employees taking part, with 40 participants set to walk and run at the event. Pre-order T-shirt sales are closed but there will be T-shirts for sale in limited quantities at the event.

NOW is a non-profit human services organization focused on youth wellness. NOW provides children with the opportunity to participate in area wellness activities and athletics programs, offering scholarships to the youth of the community with up to 95 percent of the cost being subsidized by NOW. The mission of the organization is to provide all children, regardless of financial resources, equal opportunities to achieve and maintain youth wellness, beginning at an early age. Registration is currently available online, with walk-in registrations also welcome the day of the race. To learn more about NOW, or to register, visit: www.nowinmotion.org or call (888) 940.4669.

Art show at QVCC gallery

DANIELSON — In early summer, Artist Amy Hannum paid a visit to the Quinebaug Valley Community College SPIROL Gallery to prepare for her fall show, Migration. While on campus, she met Associate Professor of Engineering, Jakob Spjut, and learned about the capabilities of the QVCC Engineering Lab. This conversation evolved into a piece of art, which is included in the September art show.

Spjut, Hannum and Charles Baird, a 2018 graduate with degrees in Engineering Science and Biomolecular Science, worked throughout the summer on refining and producing the piece. While a student at QVCC, Baird made extensive use of the engineering lab to prototype ideas using 3D printing, laser cutting, as well as some machining capabilities from the Advanced Manufacturing Technology Center. Baird will continue his studies this fall at Columbia University studying Data Science. "I enjoyed being able to use the lab for this project and Amy really put the finishing touches on the piece," Baird said.

The final piece uses a ring of LED lights slowly fading in and out to cast changing shadows through a translucent piece of laser cut cast acrylic. Migration will run through Sept. 30, with an opening reception on Thursday, Sept. 13 from 5 to 8 p.m.

Putnam Rotary donates to The Arc

PUTNAM — Putnam Rotary Club provided a check in the amount of $500 to The Arc Quinebaug Valley on Aug. 28. Putnam Rotary Club has continuously shown support towards The Arc's mission.

"Community clubs, such as Putnam Rotary Club, help our agency thrive by their kindness and generosity time after time. We truly appreciate this donation, as we understand there are many non-profit organizations in need, so we are grateful to have their help," said Susan Desrosiers, Executive Director of The Arc Quinebaug Valley.

This gift will help to enhance services provided by The Arc for individuals with intellectual, developmental, and other life-affecting disabilities. Vocational, residential, recreation, day and retirement services offer opportunities for people with disabilities to reach their goals and be integral members of their community.

Thompson Speedway back in action

THOMPSON — After nearly one month off, NASCAR Whelen All American Series engines will come to life again on Sunday, Sept. 9, at Thompson Speedway Motorsports Park. The third annual For the Fans event and the fifth annual Sunoco Modified 20/20 sprint will headline the afternoon of racing that is scheduled to get underway with qualifying at 1:30 p.m.

With their annual 20/20 sprint, the Sunoco Modifieds will compete in two, 20-lap races, followed by one, 10-lap sprint at the end of the afternoon. Entering the day of racing, only one driver has been able to knock Keith Rocco off the top this season.

Drivers will be awarded points for each race, and the competitor that has the best total at the end of the three events will be declared the overall winner for the day.

A full slate of NASCAR Whelen All-American divisions are on hand, with the Limited Sportsman, Mini Stocks and Late Models also set to compete in qualifying and feature action. With just two races remaining in the Limited Sportsman points battle, Shawn Monahan leads, while Nick Johnson is trying to hold off a pack of drivers in the Late Model title chase. Eric Bourgeois finds himself at the top of the Mini Stock standings.

trains from the Quinebaug passenger station into Webster, where she'd then walk to a bank to deliver farm income in what she described as an "all wrapped up" package. She is no doubt the last surviving person to ever ride a train out of Quinebaug. It is worthy to note that passenger service was discontinued on that line in 1930 and the station was torn down in 1936. And being that the family farm and her current residence were located on opposite sides of the (now removed) rail line that once crossed Walker Road, you could say that Betty came from both sides of the tracks. Her late husband, Arthur co-owned Quinebaug's first gas-line station. Also, Walker Road, Walker Drive and its connecting streets of George Avenue and Paul Avenue were all named after her family members. Former next door (Walker Road) neighbor Harvey Thompson remembered Betty as an avid baker, a most generous person and the blueberry bushes that thrived on her property. He and his wife, Judy attended the party. He said, "she was always baking something with them and sharing the stuff with the neighbors," as for the blueberries he added, "not only did she just give them away, she would also pick them for you." And she still enjoys a good blueberry muffin to this day.

Blood donors sought in conjunction with Krom race

EASTFORD —The seventh annual "5K We Never Stop Fighting in Loving Memory of Marilyn T. Krom" will kick off from Eastford Town Office Building on Sept. 15 at 10 a.m., followed five minutes later by "Owen's Run," a fun event for children and all ages that wish to participate.

Those supported this year are Lennox Brodeur, who never stops fighting pancreatic cancer, Lincoln Budd who has kidney disease and needs a transplant, and Barry Lathem. The Eastford races have raised $30,000 for local families.

Advance registration for the 5K is $22; Day-of-Race Fee is $30. Advance registration for Owens Race is $10; $15 on race day. For either race, register and donate online at: runsignup.com. Group are discounts available-contact Sean@marilyntkromfoundation.org. To register offline or donate by check, make check payable to The Marilyn T. Krom Foundation, and mail to: Rec Commission, Town of Eastford, PO Box 98, Eastford, CT 06242. (Offline applications are available in the selectmen's office.) Volunteers are needed. For information, contact Valerie at 860-933-8012.

Budd has lost one kidney to cancer, and the remaining kidney is struggling due to Chronic Renal Failure. Lincoln's son, 9-year-old Owen, has appealed for a donor (blood type B or O; anyone interested may call Azzy at Hartford Hospital (860) 972-4632. Lincoln is one of Eastford's faithful, serving in the Eastford Independent Fire Co. for 30 years and always helping with children's activities and major events and fundraisers.

Students returned Thompson public schools last week.

Thompson students, faculty and staff returned to school last week with some changes. At Mary R Fisher elementary school, students, parents and guardians were greeted and introduced to their new Assistant Principal, William McDonald along with other new faculty and staff.

Students attending Thompson Middle School could not help but notice the freshly painted hallways and lockers. The library media center has been transformed into an ideal learning space due to the generous furniture donation from UConn and the art work created by Dave Laabs.

Tourtellotte Memorial High freshman enjoyed their first day learning about extra curricula opportunities that are offered at their school. TMHS Leadership team members facilitated informational sessions about each group or club encouraging students to become involved in one or more of the programs at TMHS.

In addition, all students in grades five through twelve were issued a Chromebook thanks to Alliance grant funding. The students will use Chromebooks to access the curriculum, enhance presentations and personalize their learning to master content and skills at their own pace.

Rules for safe school bus passage

DAYVILLE — With the increase in Killingly children walking, crossing the street and exiting their buses during this school year, it is extremely important that anyone driving within these areas obey all safety rules/regulations in order to ensure that they arrive there and home safely.

Below are a few tips motorists should obey while traveling along our local streets: Watch for children traveling to school when driving through local neighborhoods with school zones. Drive slowly.

Watch for children walking in the street, especially if there are no sidewalks in the neighborhood. In addition, be on the lookout for children playing and gathering near school bus stops. State law prohibits vehicles from passing a school bus while its lights are flashing.

Many busses are now equipped with cameras to record those individuals who fail to comply with this law. Always observe the no-passing law and expect the unexpected while traveling near school buses in school driveways.

Here are a few tips you can share with your children: Be waiting at your bus stop at least five minutes ahead of the scheduled pick up time. Wait approximately 10 feet back from the road. Try and wear clothing with colors that can easily be spotted by motorists. Always wait until the bus driver tells you to cross the street before you actually do. That way you can be sure that he/she has safely verified that no motorists are coming. If you drop something in the road leave it. If it is important, make sure the bus driver knows you are about to bend down and possibly disappear from his/her sight. If an important item ends up underneath the bus leave it alone. Do not retrieve it unless the bus driver gives you permission to do so. When it's time to board the bus, do so quickly and safely.

If you have additional questions or concerns, please contact State Representative Anne Dauphinais's office at (800) 842-1423, or email Anne.Dauphinais@housegop.ct.gov.

School safety initiatives at Woodstock Academy

WOODSTOCK — A recent press release from The Woodstock Academy stated an integral part of the school's mission is to provide a safe learning environment. In addition to the annual review and updates to the school's emergency plans and procedures, the press release said the school was able to complete upgrades across the north and south campuses. Many of these initiatives were made possible through the support of gifts and grants.

The press release continued: A safe environment means more than a secure campus with armed guards, it also means being a community where students trust each other, teachers, staff, and other adults on campus. This includes mental health support from on-campus, full-time social workers, and school psychologist. The press release said the school is fortunate to have many staff members with experience and expertise in security. This led members of The Woodstock Academy campus safety team to organize and host a school safety conference this July. Over 100 law enforcement officers, emergency responders, and education professionals attended from all over New England. Staff members were able to share their knowledge base while also learning from guest speakers.

Many of the exterior and interior doors on both campuses were replaced with more secure doors that are compatible with a key fob system. The press release said one of the most notable changes on campus is the new sidewalk, sign, and retaining wall that welcomes guests to North Campus on the corner of Cemetery Hill Road and Academy Road. Carving away part of the hill and extending the sidewalk will make it safer for students to get on and off buses and has improved visibility for drivers, especially during the busiest times of the school day.

"We know that students learn better when they feel safe and comfortable. So making these investments is not just about campus security and training, but it is also about helping our students reach their full potential," said Head of School Chris Sandford.

Savor the moment

My husband and I are planning to spend a few days in Vermont. This summer we have been drawn north rather than to sunny southern beaches. It isn't a fear of shark bite so much as a return to places we have loved all our lives. Anticipating the mini vacation is as much fun as actually experiencing it. Perhaps, even better. Imagining what we will see and do is at least half the point of the trip.

Savoring is a word that captures what we feel. A WSJ article a few months ago suggested strategies to help us enjoy summer more. It applies to any season. One idea is to plan ahead so that we can relish thinking about what we will do. Another is to focus on what is pleasant while it is happening.

There are several good restaurants where we are going and my husband has rehearsed more meals in his mind than we will actually consume. As he is more interested in dining than I am, he can make up for all the moments when I suggest we eat something simple or skip dessert. He can work his way through an online menu with nearly as much pleasure as when sitting in a restaurant preparing to order.

When I recall childhood trips to Vermont, my first thoughts are of sweet, crumbly pieces of maple sugar candy, a special treat, and hiking in the mountains. The hikes were really walks from parking lots to scenic overlooks as my father, a chain smoker, was developing emphysema. He coughed loudly and constantly. I was often car sick. My parents fought over directions and map reading skills.

I'd rather reminisce, another form of savoring, about what was good about those outings. It was exciting to stay in big hotels and sometimes I brought along a friend. Once I walked too close to the rushing waters of the Flume, a rocky stream bed in New Hampshire. In my flat bottomed Keds, I lost my footing and fell into the icy water. My mother tossed away her cigarette, ran to the stream and pulled me out. I was as embarrassed as I was wet. We were both shaken, but in characteristic understatement, she wrapped her cardigan sweater around my shoulders and suggested that we stand in the sunshine for a bit and enjoy the view. It's a memory I savor.

The articles I read about savoring say that it requires focus. During my annual visit to the Woodstock Fair, with my godson, now newly married, and his wife, I am never disappointed. From the French fries to the animal barns, I find everything pretty much as it should be and always has been. People were having fun and, while many were taking pictures, few were on their cellphones. They were savoring the moment.

It is odd to say one can savor a funeral, but the televised program of Senator John McCain's service was a moment when I felt a mixture of gratitude, awe, energy and hope. From the speeches to the music, to the camera moving across the familiar faces in the beautiful National Cathedral, we were swept up the embrace of tradition, common purpose and positive feelings. It was a moment to savor.

By the time this piece is published, we will be back home. The fly fishing lesson will be over and I may have a new hobby. A visit to a local museum will be a memory. On the last day, I'll start to worry about what I have to do when I get home. With discipline, I'll stop myself and savor what we have done. If that doesn't work, I'll plan something new to anticipate.

Do I need estate planning?

Think about the people and organizations closest to you. How will they remember you? What sort of legacy do you want to leave?

Thinking about these tough questions are the first natural steps to planning for the future of your estate. Using our Plan Well. Invest Well. Live Well™ process, we approach these questions with in the greater context of all your financial life goals and develop a strategy that helps you confidently and efficiently move forward towards the fulfillment of these goals.

FINANCIAL FOCUS
JIM ZAHANSKY
 INVESTMENT ADVISER

Knowing how important estate planning is for any individual, this September, we will focus on the key strategies and documents you need to know to leave the legacy you want to leave.

Everyone needs an estate plan, no matter the size of the estate. Not only does this plan help carry out your wishes after your passing; it benefits you while you're living. A good estate plan includes a plan to manage your financial affairs and health care decisions in the event that you cannot. It can prove invaluable in easing the administrative burden for your family during an already difficult time.

Elements of an estate plan:

The first element of an estate plan is the last will and testament which is a blueprint that directs who will receive your property upon your death and the specific circumstances in which they will receive it. Your will only governs property that flows through probate.

Secondly, the durable power of attorney (POA) authorizes someone, often called an agent, to handle your financial affairs if you were to become incapacitated. Without a durable POA, your family members would have to institute legal proceedings and request a probate court to appoint a guardian to carry out these responsibilities.

Lastly, a trust is a formal arrangement allowing the trustee to hold assets. The trustee distributes assets to your beneficiaries at the time that you direct in the trust document. The two basic types of trusts are living trusts and testamentary trusts. A living trust is funded during your lifetime and may receive your estate assets after probate is complete. It is often called a revocable trust because you retain the right to make changes or remove property during your lifetime. A testamentary trust is created after your passing and your will is approved by the probate courts.

Key terms:

An understanding of key terms commonly used in estate planning will help as you create your plan — Probate: This term refers to the legal process of administering a will or distributing property. The probate process can be either simple or complex depending on your estate. You may be able to avoid some legal complexities by minimizing how much of your assets flow through the probate process. By funding trusts during your life, naming beneficiaries on insurance or financial accounts, and registering jointly-owned property to include rights of survivorship, you may be able to avoid probate, if doing so meets your estate planning goals.

Executor: Also known as the administrator, your executor follows the instructions you outlined in your will, ensuring your wishes

A nod to Neo-Marxists socialist Democrats

What has happened to the Democrat party of JFK? If he were alive today he wouldn't recognize it in fact they would kick him out. You see, JFK was for constitution, free markets, capitalism and tax cuts. Democrats of today no longer believe in that; they want bigger government, more taxes, tearing up the government, Constitution to be replaced by a Socialist/Marxist model. Their ultimate aim which they will never tell you of course is for America to give up its sovereignty and become part of a world government. "A new world order," we have all heard that phrase. Under this system, the American people would have no say in laws made that would be done by the global government. Sadly, today, the Democrat party is a mish-mash of socialists, neo-Marxists, globalists, and anarchists. They have nothing but hatred for the values that made our country great, instead blaming America for all the world's problems. They have become seditionists who are in open rebellion against the duly elected government of the United States. The Marxist left Democrat party and Socialists are fueling their ideology through minions in the media (fake news) through propaganda, lies, and distortion of the truth; one of the primary tenets being used by them goes to the very core of Marxism which is to destroy the concept of the individual. You see this happening today where the individual is being replaced by group think where people's identities no longer exist; they are part of the team or collective. Individuality must be destroyed; it is considered a product of capitalism and Christianity. In the ideal Marxist society, the individual disappears, the collective emerges and the state replaces GOD. We see evidence of it now ... a recent Rasmussen poll (very reliable) found that a majority of millennials believe that socialism/Marxism is the future for our country. How misguided socialism/Marxism has never worked anywhere it was tried, all you have to look at for example is Venezuela today to see that. Ask a person who has emigrated to our country to escape that system they will tell you it is a failure!

Capitalism isn't perfect but history shows us it has lifted more people out of poverty and given them a better life. Any clear-thinking person should reject the neo-Marxist socialist Democrat party their ideology is not what America is about. If that Socialist/Marxist democrats get control of Congress in November watch out. It won't be long before the freedoms we cherish will be taken away and our Constitution will no longer exist. To be replaced by the state where the individual no longer exists.

Lest we forget what made our country exceptional, that the individual can realize their God-given potential and no state can take that away.

Back to school

Do your children have everything they need for back to school? Going back to school means shopping for new clothes, maybe a backpack, school supplies and more. However, preparing your child for September may take more preparation than a visit to the store. Here are some of our top "Back to School" suggestions to keep your children healthy and safe.

Teach your child the importance of exercise. Getting sufficient exercise enhances mental function. Moderately intense exercise increases your energy, stimulates a good mood, reduces anxiety and releases a chemical that rewires your brain to make better memory circuits. It has to be a regular occurrence to maintain healthy brain function.

Teach your children to get enough sleep. We tell students about the importance of a restful night of sleep in order to have a strong body and strong mind. Muscles repair themselves when you are sleeping. Many adults are sleep deprived too. A good night's sleep will help enhance the learning and retention of the day's activities.

Teach your children to eat a healthy breakfast. Sending your child to school with fuel for the day is critical. What would you feed your prize racehorse before sending them out to win a race? Children who eat breakfast do better in school than children with an empty stomach. Kids have different needs than adults when it comes time for cognitive work. Between the constant stimulus of learning and the brain growing, children need more energy to function.

Teach your children how to set a goal for excellence. At Quest Martial Arts we say "We are a Black Belt school" using Black Belt as a metaphor for doing their best. From the very first day a student enrolls we set the standard for high achievement and we expect to see improvements in class, at home and in school. Our instructors always teach students that you don't need a Black Belt to have a Black Belt attitude, just try your best (although many children have not yet learned what their best is). Give them some daily examples of excellence.

Teach your children how to self-evaluate a performance. A simple way to for kids to appraise their performance is to ask them to grade their effort on a scale of one to ten. One is stinky, rotten and not too good and level ten is a world class performance. Which one do they want to be? The final lesson to get ready for school- (PPPPP) perfect planning prevents poor performance.

Master Mike Bogdanski is a co-owner of Quest Martial Arts in Putnam with Master Kristin Duethorn.

Killingly church records from the 1770's

Individuals doing research on family members at the Killingly Historical and Genealogical Society frequently check the early church records to see if baptismal or marriage records of their ancestors were recorded, especially when nothing appears in the vital records. Congregational Church records exist for the First Church/Putnam Heights, the South Killingly Church (which includes records from when the congregation was located on Breakneck Hill), and Westfield Congregational Church Records.

Unfortunately, although the Baptist Church in Killingly existed about the 1740's, no records have been passed on to modern times. I thought I'd include a list of Baptist members that were recorded in the records of The First Church of Killingly, which wished to be exempted from supporting the minister of that Congregational Church. At least these names will provide descendants with a little more about their ancestors and proof of residence at a particular date. "To the Committee of the Middle Parrish, these certify you that Thaddeus Allyn is a member of the Baptist Church in Thomson and desires to have the benefit of the act made for the clearance of the Baptist. Attest John Martin." "These may certify all whom it may concern that Job Olney Late of North Providence now an inhabitant of Killingly in the State of Connecticut now a member of the Baptist Church in Johnston under Pastoral care of Elder Samuel Winsor. Since Killingly's Great Tomato Fest is Saturday, Sept. 8, in downtown Danielson with many activities at Davis Park, I thought it would be fun to do a little research on the history of the tomato. "During Colonial Times, we wouldn't put a tomato near our mouths, let alone try to eat one. Folklore had it that if you ate a tomato, its poison would turn your blood into acid. Instead, the colonists grew tomatoes purely for decoration. (Tomatoes resembled the deadly nightshade plant, which was a main reason why they were considered poisonous).

"Native peoples in South and Central America, where the plant originated, didn't have any misapprehensions regarding the safety of eating tomatoes. In fact, some sources claim that they regarded tomato seeds as an aphrodisiac. The French name, pomme d'amour, or "apple of love," suggests that they agreed, though some experts suspect that the name was a misunderstanding of the Spanish "pome dei Moro," or "apple of the Moors." Probably the first tomatoes came from what today is Peru, and wild tomatoes can still be found in the Andes. By the time the conquistadors came to Central and South America, there was widespread cultivation of tomatoes, though there's much debate about where tomatoes were first raised and about exactly how they made their way north to Mexico. It's also unclear whether Spanish explorers knew about the tomato's reputation as a love aid, though they did think enough of the tomato to bring it back to Europe, where it was embraced long before we Americans succumbed to its charms. By the mid 16th century, it had been mentioned in a Nepalese cookbook. It is amusing to think that the tomato, which most of us think of as quintessentially Italian, in fact evolved on a different continent in a different hemisphere." "Even more bizarre, the fruit was not introduced to the U.S. and Canada via Mexico, where it was well established, but via European immigrants. ( are carried out. If you do not leave a will, the courts will appoint an executor or administrator over your estate.

Intestate: If a person dies without a will, the probate property will be distributed in accordance with state law. This is called an intestate. This could mean that the people most important to you, or those most in need, will not receive what you would have wished.

Simplified probate procedure. Almost every state offers small estates an alternative to the formal probate process. The requirements and rules differ from state to state, but if the estate qualifies, simplified probate procedures allow a speedy distribution of assets to the heirs without waiting for court approval.

Letter of instruction: This document provides informal guidance to your executor and can add important clarification about your wishes. It may include information about your funeral arrangements, wishes for your pets' care, or descriptions of specific assets' sentimental value. Your executor may find that your letter of instruction is the most important document of your estate plan.

Health care proxy: Also known as a health care POA, this document authorizes someone to make health care decisions if you are not able to. It can also allow your wishes to be known about end-of-life decisions in the event that you are unable to communicate. The latter may be part of your health care POA document or an advanced medical directive.

Beneficiary designations: Retirement plans, life insurance, and annuity policies allow you to name who will receive your account without waiting for probate to conclude. Some brokerage and bank accounts, known as "transfer on death" or "paid on death" accounts, also allow you to name beneficiaries. If all of your primary beneficiaries predecease you, your named contingent beneficiaries will inherit the accounts. If you fail to name contingent beneficiaries, your estate is usually the default beneficiary.

Per stirpes: This Latin term can be used in conjunction with a beneficiary designation as a substitute for a lengthy list of contingent beneficiaries. If part of the estate would have gone to one of your previously deceased children, the inherited share is divided among the offspring of this person.

Plan Well: Your estate plan is a major goal to plan for and is often done using the help of several professionals to achieve your plan. To see how Weiss & Hale Financial may be able to help you achieve your estate planning goals, visit www.weissandhale.com/our-process.

the beginning of August, spurred by a customer who comes in with things to donate. It's a reminder to Beausoleil that it's that time of year again.

It's also a reminder to Beausoleil of the type of community the Quiet Corner is. They're caring. Giving. They want to help one another.

This is also how Beausoleil is. In fact, when he founded the bakery in 2012, Beausoleil had giving back to the community on his mind.

"The community always supports us, so I wanted to support them," he said. "I wanted to give leftovers to local food banks. Especially after I saw so much food being thrown away when I worked in corporate. Sometimes, if I have one fruit tart left I'll take a photo of it and see if anybody wants to pick it up for dinner."

All throughout August, the bakery had a table full of backpacks and school supplies stacked high. There are still a few items left for people who may be interested. But for those who missed out, don't worry, the bakery is always doing some kind of fundraiser.

"There's always something going on here," said Beausoleil. "We're always having jars for donations for local people who need help. Sometimes we'll bring leftover food to churches for Thanksgiving. The next push will be the toys for Christmas. We do a big toy drive, helping the Vigilante Motorcycle Club, who keep the toys in the area."

Beausoleil said he comes from the streets. He knows what it's like not to have anything. Despite that, he also has always been a giver, he said. It's his nature. It's always been a part of his belief.

He's also a man of many trades. He's done stone work. Built walls. He was part of a security business.

So how did this biker end up with a bakery?

Beausoleil started cooking at Bills Bread & Breakfast in 1995. Working on the line, he realized he was "hot headed" and felt he wasn't meant to be on the line. So he bought a bakery in Southbridge, and found out that baking was a gift he had.

"It came second nature to me," he said.

He also loves how happy the products make people. Soleil & Suns Bakery has grown a huge following, both on social media and customers.

"I am overwhelmed with gratitude for my following," said Beausoleil, the Biker Baker. "I appreciate everybody."

The Eastern CT Conservation District is a soil and water non-profit organization that works with all municipalities in NE CT to help them with pond reviews and conservation questions.

They've been on the lookout for willing participants for the Rain Garden Project. One of the criteria is having a concentrated flow. Pillo was at the Town Hall when she saw the down spout going into the lawn across the street at Congregation B'nai Shalom.

She reached out to Stern and asked if they wanted one. They agreed excitedly. And Pillo felt an equal excitement, since the temple is a visible location where others can see the work and the benefit of the project.

It took four people around three hours to dig the hole and install the whole garden.

"It went really well," said

Pillo. "Before we even had first plants in the ground, we had a monarch butterfly come visit us. We had four native bee species come to visit the oasis. It was great."

Jordan Stern is a member of Woodstock Conservation, one of the reasons the temple was so passionate about this project.

"They're really good people," said Pillo.

Attorney at Law

UPON FURTHER INSPECTION

Buyers and sellers of real estate are encouraged to engage the services of an attorney when drawing up the purchase contract. This will ensure that both parties' best interests will be served. For instance, from the buyer's point of view, an "inspection contingency clause" will outline what is to happen if a professional inspection reveals problems with the property. While such small matters as broken locks and leaky faucets may not pose problems, such substantial problems as a broken furnace or a structural irregularity are greater causes of concern. Depending on the terms of the contract, these major defects may provide good reason for the buyer to break the deal without forfeiting his or her deposit.

HINT: If a professional home inspection reveals a major problem, it is also possible that the seller may agree to fix it to keep the deal from falling through, or negotiate a price reduction commensurate with the cost of the repair.

Buying or selling your home can be one of the most exciting, scary, stressful, and anticipated days of your life. ## TOWN OF PUTNAM 2018 SEPTEMBER FLUSHING EVENT

Dear Water Customer,

Please be advised that the Town of Putnam WPCA will be conducting its hydrant flushing event. Hydrant flushing is critical to the maintenance of water quality within the water distribution system's water mains. This event is scheduled to begin on Friday September 7, 2018 and flushing will continue throughout the water system for approximately one week. Please see below, the day by day flushing plan with dates and streets that we are planning to be flushing.

Please note that during flushing events you will most likely experience periods of discolored water coming out of your taps. It is best that you try to limit water use while flushing is taking place in your area and, flush your water line afterwards by running a cold water faucet in your residence until the water clears. Your water is safe to drink, the discoloration is caused from iron build up in the water lines being flushed out. Remember, flushing your water system is essential in maintaining water quality and preventing iron and manganese build up in the system. Although it may be an inconvenience during flushing, the benefits thereafter are lasting and positive.

Horsing around in Pomfret

BY OLIVIA RICHMAN
NEWS STAFF WRITER

POMFRET — The Pomfret Horse and Trail Association is not only about the love of horses. It's also about the long-time established tradition of horseback riding and the trails that have made it possible all across the town. It's a town that equestrians choose to live in, and the PHTA strive to inform and educate the public on the importance of the trails they maintain and fight to keep available to other horse lovers across the state.

I sat down and spoke with multiple members of the passionate group to find out more about the PHTA and its mission.

Why was the PHTA formed initially?

Penny Foisey, President – We formed this originally so that we could organize the equestrian community within the town of Pomfret. And start preserving trails that had existed for many years that we were losing access to. We wanted to get on the radar of the town officials, so we could have some sort of influence on their decision. At least be a consideration.

Margie Huoppi – It was to bring equestrians together, also. Networking. We wanted people to know we were here and that we are active. That they should think about us, too.

Penny – At the time the town had bonded $5 million to conserve property. So they were buying properties, instead of them being developed.

Margie – We are very supportive of preserving open space. We also have land trusts in town. We want to work with all these groups to keep trails active and accessible. Aren't there trails you rode on as a kid that are now houses?

Penny – Yes.

Margie – Some organizations say they don't want horses.

Why do you think that is?

Sandra Blanchard – Lack of knowledge about horses.

Margie – The more land these organizations would buy up, we suddenly couldn't ride on them.

PHTA members: Penny Foisey, Margie Huoppi, Sandra Blanchard, Lisette Rimer and Sue Jackson.

That's very unfortunate. Especially since there's such a huge population of equestrians in the area. How many members are currently part of PHTA?

Margie – There are 67 members right now. We started just with Pomfret residents. But we started sponsoring people out of town. Now it's just opened up. A lot of people from Woodstock, Thompson, Brooklyn. Even Rhode Island and Massachusetts. There are a lot of horse people in this area.

Penny – We've developed quite a network of trails. One of our early bills was to have a cross-town way, to interconnect trails. With the airline trail, that's like a horse super highway. We wanted to create loops off of that. I think we're at about 26 miles of trail that we're maintaining. That we have developed and maintained.

That's amazing. A lot of effort.

Margie – It's what we do.

Sandy – It's our passion. If you have passion, you have life. And this is our passion.

What got you into the PHTA initially?

Lisette Rimer – When I first moved to Pomfret in 1982, I saw a person jumping over a long jump in a field. And it was Penny. And I thought, 'I'm in the right place.' There were just a group of mostly women here... Pomfret lent itself to horseback riding. We still had a chance in Pomfret. For a while, I took it for granted. Then all of a sudden I remember going to a town meeting, and the town was purchasing open space in town. And I asked if horses would be able to ride on it and the answer was, 'No.' So I started thinking there was a problem here. It just stuck with me. I put an ad in the Shopper's Guide in 2007. Penny went right on it.

Penny – Lisette didn't want to be president. But we knew where all the old trails were. Between the two of us.

Lisette – We had gotten permission before. People didn't care.

Penny – We'd ask to ride through.

Lisette – But I started to read articles where you could just see a place and just go there with your dogs. Across 169. Nobody cared. Then, 395 got finished. There was a building boom. We had to put our heads together. We could see no trespassing signs going up. It wasn't as informal. We wanted to put a name to horse owners. So people knew who was doing the riding. It's Penny. It's Sue. We did a lot personally.

Sue Jackson – PHTA members having the insurance policy, that put people's mind at ease. To allow us onto the property. Such a liability issue.

Margie – We made arrangements and agreements with certain land owners, who would let us ride on their land.

Why do you think there are so many horse enthusiasts in Pomfret?

Margie – Pomfret has such an agricultural history. The horses have been in Pomfret forever. They're in all the old pictures, horse-drawn carriages. People riding them all over the place. We want to maintain that. That's why we live here.

Penny – Remember that post card you had of that old stud?

Lisette - I'll never forget. And what about Pomfret Hunt Club photo?

Margie – There used to be horse breeding and racing at Rectory Schools. There was a track around the pond.

Why do you guys love horses?

Sandy – I've always loved horses. Some people love golf. Some people love skiing. I love horses.

Sue – It's the relationship.

Sandy – You can put a motorcycle in the shed and walk away. But it's not all about the riding. It's about the relationship. The bond.

Penny – The bond is big.

Sandy – The bond is big.

What was your first experience with horses?

Sue – As a kid, I was forbidden to have horses because of an incident with my father. Once I got to a spot where I was on my own and I thought I could swing it, I started leasing a horse and taking riding lessons. For me, it was a stress reliever. After work, I didn't go home. I'd go to the barn. Dusty understood that. The first 20 minutes was, 'Okay, Mom, whatever you need.' Then we would get going, get riding. It's just liberating to have to focus on your animal and let everything else go. That's what horses do for me.

That's amazing. It seems like they can really read people.

Sue – When I lost my first horse, I wasn't ready to give up on riding. I still had the drive. It's been so difficult. I miss our bond. I just need to keep going. My new horse is a new adventure every day. It keeps me grounded. Keeps me happy.

Penny – Every morning I have a 'miracle morning.' I have three horses at the barn that can't wait to see me. They're always happy. It grounds me.

Lisette – I just remember going to the movies when I was a kid. In the 50s. The Saturday morning movies. It really looked like the men riding around in their sheriff posses were having a whole lot more fun than the women who were -

Sandy – Cooking...

Lisette – I thought, 'Why would anybody want to do that when they could ride horses?'

Margie – Did you have horses as a kid?

Lisette – No.

When did you get your first horse?

Lisette – When we moved to NE CT, that's when I got horses.

Margie – I have a little bit of a different story. I grew up in the city. As far back as I could remember, at any chance I had to ride I would. But it wasn't that frequently. When I moved here I did meet Lisette. She had more than one horse. I rode with her. I had never owned a horse. But I had all these people here who could give me advice. So I got a horse. He's out in the back. I didn't have a horse when we started this.

Lisette – She would come over. She knew the area. She was very scientific about it. So we went everywhere.

Sue – I can't find my way out of a paper bag on a trail.

Sandy – I was taken for riding lessons when I was four. My mother's friend had an older child. My mother brought me along, knowing I already liked horses. I started out on Scout, the black pony. Always looking over the fence at this huge, red horse. Probably your average thoroughbred. First time they lifted me up, up, up onto him... They showed me how to hold the reins. I can still remember it as though it was that day. Then they tried to discourage me the next few years.

Why?

Sandy – I think they thought I'd outgrow it.

Lisette – They think it's a 'little girl thing.'

Sandy – I would like to say it's something in your blood. You can have two children. One will have the passion. One won't have any interest at all. It can't be trained into you.

Margie – You're born with it or you're not.

What kept you interested in horses all these years?

Sandy – It brings a calmness. You come back to that bond and that relationship is just unbelievable. You don't need words. Don't need rationale. You can go with your heart. You think left and the horse will go left.

Lisette – There's a reason they're used for therapy. It's becoming a huge veteran thing.

Sandy – Dare to Dream Ranch right over the line in RI. A horse friend of mine helped put it together.

Is the PHTA looking for new members?

Sue – Always.

Sandy – We need more people in the equine industry. There's plenty of horses that need an owner. Someone to love them and take care of them. We have a lot of horses in this country now.

Sue – That are going to slaughter.

Sandy – It would be a sad shame for this passion or recreation to cease to exist.

Lisette – I want to see young kids, too.

Sue – That's why I want family memberships, junior riders. We want to get the kids involved.

Sandy – Horses have something to offer.

Penny – Being out in the trails, in the woods, on your horse...

Margie – That's my religious experience. In the field. Communing with nature.

Lisette – I want the town to have a go-to organization.

What goes into running the group?

Penny – It's definitely work. We've become a 501c3. Town has been very supportive. They've come to us when considering purchasing a property to see if we can use a 25 acre piece to get a connection into the state forest. We created a trail on that piece of property. We use our funds to support land trusts. The Pomfret Historical Society. We give money to 4H camp and to some horse rescues.

Margie – There were horses ceased in CT. Abuse case. We gave money to take care of those horses. We have two rides a year. The Fall Foliage Ride is coming in October. Then we have the Cross Town Ride in May.

Sue – The first year I was secretary, we had 24 riders. Last year, 135 people showed up. They come from all over the place. We've had people from Maine.

Lisette – A lot of horse people complain about the motorized society. But my approach was, 'We have to work with people.' We have to do something about it. My philosophy in the beginning was making horses Pomfret-friendly. We clean up our campsites. We try to think of other trail users. Other open space needs.

Sandy – We want to be good ambassadors for the sport.

Lisette – And we want to make Pomfret horse-friendly.

RETREAT

So what is a retreat?

A retreat is any time that time is taken from your everyday, busy life. It can be as short as an hour and a half. Or it can be a weekend. It's intentional time set aside for reflection and connecting to God.

What is the importance of a retreat?

Without retreats, we get so caught up in our daily lives and forget what's important. We get so burdened with our own personal stress, work, the news... We forget the bigger picture. We forget that we're loved and welcomed by God.

Give me an example of one of the retreats you've outlined in the book.

One of them is called 'Finding Her Own Voice.' It's studying the book of Esther. She was a very brave and independent and faithful woman who had the courage to speak up and say what was true. She was finding her own voice. This retreat is about discovering what's important to us and what is holding us back from saying it. It's about giving us courage to be who we really are.

What do you provide for it?

Reverend Dr. Susan J. Foster new book "Retreats to Go".

There's a whole variety of music that people can listen to and be inspired by. Also, they can see which character in the story you relate to or who in your life might be like the characters. It's a chance to reflect on your own life. To learn to listen to each other and express ourselves. With words. Art. Music.

You said you were in ministry for over 30 years. What got you involved?

I've been a minister for 31 years. I had been a teacher beforehand. I was looking for a way to offer inspiration to people that was bigger than anything I could personally give. I wanted people to know that God is always with them.

What made you feel passionate about being a minister?

There's so many messages in our world that are the opposite. That we're not worthy. Not important. And it's not true. I want people to know how valuable they really are. They all have gifts to share.

How do you feel about having your first book published?

It's exciting. It's overwhelming. It was not something I thought I would do but I'm thrilled to see it in print. And I'm excited that these ideas can be shared. I think they're really useful. The way it's written, people can lead retreats without any experience. It's very encouraging.

And you'll also be having the book launch on September 16 for people who want to know more!

It'll be a celebration at the church from 11 to 1 p.m. The congregation is very supportive. People are invited to come and see examples of the crafts and have worship materials they can take home.

Pride building toward winning season

Senior quarterback Josh Dodd has been the starter since his sophomore season.

BY CHARLIE LENTZ
VILLAGER EDITOR

PUTNAM — After two consecutive sub-.500 seasons the Quinebaug Valley Pride have an eye on a winning campaign — with a quarterback who has the arm to help the them achieve it. Josh Dodd, a starter since his sophomore season, returns at quarterback and coach Joe Asermelly said he’s primed for a solid senior year.

“I think Dodd has high expectations for himself and the whole team is really glad he’s back and ready to rock this year,” said Asermelly, in his seventh season.

Quinebaug Valley finished 2-8 in the 2016 and went 4-6 last year. Asermelly expects improvement.

“I think the schedule’s wide open for this team. It’s not an easy schedule but it’s certainly one that this team can work hard through and put themselves in a good position this season,” Asermelly said.

The Pride’s roster includes players from Putnam High School, Tourtellotte Memorial, and Ellis Tech. With cooperative teams it’s important to have a quarterback who can rally the disparate elements.

“I think leadership’s really important now. The expectation is to have a good season so we’ve been working them real hard. I think we’re getting ready to see the reward of the hard work and coming together, that idea of putting the team first is a big focus of camp,” Asermelly said.

Dodd should have an experienced cadre of receivers including senior Jeff Reed, senior Adrian Casiano, senior Jamie Talbot, and senior Sam Williams.

“Dodd’s got some toys. Dodd’s got some weapons that he’s built good chemistry with over the last couple of seasons,” said Asermelly of the Pride’s aerial attack. “They’re really refining their game and getting into the finer details. It’s really fun to watch those guys play football because they’re getting pretty good at it.”

Running back Will McGlynn gained over 1,000 yards last season but he has moved on to Worcester State University. The Pride have several capable runners who are expected to carry the load.

“For our guys it’s a new season with new opportunities,” Asermelly said. “We have basically three seniors who are good enough and are trying to earn reps every day. And so I think we’re going to have a really good group of running backs.”

Among the runners expected to contribute are seniors Matt Fitzpatrick,

“I love coaching this group. They certainly have the potential to be the best group I’ve coached,” said Asermelly of the offensive line. “Potential’s potential but they’ve got it. They have that opportunity in front of them. They’ve got to go play 10 weeks together and we’ll look back and enjoy it afterwards but they’re right there with some of the best I’ve coached.”

Most of the offensive line will see double duty on the defensive line.

“We’ve got depth on the ‘D’ line. We’ve got a good rotation of guys we’re bringing in,” Asermelly said. “We’re excited. I think we can win the line of scrimmage this year.”

At defensive tackle there will be a rotation including Minski, Grauer, and Brinson. At defensive end, Fitzpatrick and Owen are projected to be the start-

Target on backs of Killingly Redmen

The Redmen finished 13-0 and last season and captured the Class M state championship.

BY CHARLIE LENTZ
VILLAGER EDITOR

DAYVILLE — Last season's state championship is history. Killingly High coach Chad Neal would be the first to remind you the slate is clean and going into this season no bonus points were accrued from a perfect 13-0 record capped by a 41-14 victory over Joel Barlow High in the Class M state title game on Dec 11.

"This is a new year, new goals," Neal said. "The goal right now is to be 1-0 again. What we did last year won't do anything come game one. It was similar going into last year and every year. It's a new start. It's a new season. It's an all-new team. It's something that the kids realize. The target is on our back this year. Everybody wants us. That's what we're going to face."

The Redmen intend to take it one game a time — Neal was successful in narrowing his team's focus into seven-day increments last season and will employ the philosophy once again.

"Especially in football, week by week, it's not like any other sport. You play on Friday. You've got a whole week. You've got to focus on that team," Neal said. "There's a lot that goes into it. A lot of scouting. A lot of meetings. A lot of film. A lot of day-to-day preparation that goes into that."

Neal said games plans and physical preparation must be complemented with players who believe in, and support, each other.

"I don't think you win with talent. Obviously, you have to have some talent. But you win when kids come together and play for one another,"

Neal said. "If kids can rely on each other, trust each other — the analogy that I like to use, if you have someone by your side you don't want to let them down, you're going to go above and beyond. I don't want to let my teammate down. You're going to protect that player, he's going to protect you. It's like being a family. You don't want to let your mom or dad down, you don't want to let your brother or sister down, it's the same thing on the football field. You don't want to let that guy next to you down."

Last year's state championship game on a cold December night has yielded to a long hot summer followed by a fresh start in a sweltering August training camp. The Redmen are seemingly in good hands at quarterback with the return of senior signal caller Luke Desaulnier.

"It's always nice when your quarterback returns," said Neal, who begins his 15th season at the helm. "Especially someone of his caliber because I think last year he kind of managed games but he got better and better — as we saw each week in practice. He looks excellent this preseason. He's making excellent reads. He's throwing a great ball. I think the offense is going to revolve around what he can do."

Desaulnier's role will perhaps differ from last season when he spent much of the season handing off to Spencer Lockwood, who gained 3,137 yards and scored 44 touchdowns. Lockwood has moved on to Trinity College in Hartford. Desaulnier attempted only 44 passes all season last year — an average of just over three passes per game — completing 29 for 415 yards and 11 touchdowns. He might be throwing more this year.

"I think we'll see more balance this year. Obviously we'd like to run the ball to start, that's always our goal, to establish the run game," Neal said.

Some of the receiving targets in Desaulnier arsenal include senior Josh Montpelier, senior Tyler Cournoyer, junior Kameron Crowe, and senior tight end Quinn Gervasio.

Senior Nsaiah Harriet spent much of last season at defensive end but Neal plans on also utilizing Harriet at running back. At 6-foot-3, 240 pounds, Harriet gives the Redmen a physical back. The backfield also includes junior Jackson Lopes and junior Johnathan Creswell.

"We've got a number of guys this year we feel can do a lot for us," Neal said. "I think you'll see Harriet and Lopes a majority of the time, back there, running the ball. And I think they have two different styles. With Nsaiah, he's 6-3, 240 — more of a downhill runner. Jackson is more shifty, an open-field type of guy."

On the defensive side in the linebacking corps, Phelan made over 100 tackles last season and he returns. Also returning at linebacker are senior Derek Turner, Lopes, and Creswell.

"I think are linebackers are very strong," Neal said.

Four of Killingly's first six games are on the road but perhaps that will present less distractions for the Redmen.

"I don't mind going on the road. I mean we love playing at home, I don't think we've lost at home in a few years so it's definitely nice being home," Neal said. "But on the road you get away from the distractions. You just get on the bus and you go play."

The Redmen added Trinity Catholic and Capital Achievement Prep to their schedule last season and both teams return to the lineup this fall. Neal said it's important to add diverse opponents in addition to the team's rivals in the Eastern Connecticut Conference.

"The ECC teams are knowns. You're familiar with the coaches and the styles. But getting the kids out of their comfort zones is a big help," Neal said. "You'll see that this year. We're going to go to Trinity Catholic. We're going to go to Capital Prep. So that just adds to our preparation."

The Redmen's season begins on Friday, Sept. 7, when they play host to Plainfield High — with kickoff scheduled for 6:30 p.m. at Killingly High.

The slate is clean. Last year's championship is history. Neal doesn't have to be reminded — in fact he'll remind you.

"You embrace it because of the success. You can't forget about that," Neal said. "But you don't rely on past success."

New era for Woodstock Academy football

Coach Sean Saucier is in his second season at Woodstock.

BY CHARLIE LENTZ
VILLAGER EDITOR

WOODSTOCK — Woodstock Academy has an independent football schedule filled with some familiar opponents as well as an array of teams the Centaurs have never faced before. The new slate provides both an opportunity and a challenge.

"It's an unfamiliar schedule too. We know there's some notoriously quality teams on the schedule and there's also some unknowns," said coach Sean Saucier. "I don't anticipate anything easy and that's OK."

Woodstock has dropped its affiliation with the Eastern Connecticut Conference for football. Last season Woodstock played four ECC teams: Montville, Griswold, Plainfield and Killingly — and lost by a combined total of 189-31. The last ECC victory for Woodstock came on on Sept. 27, 2014 against St. Bernard-Norwich Tech cooperative. Since it became a varsity program in 2006, the Centaurs have registered a 22-100 record. Woodstock Academy has never had a winning season or even achieved a .500 season, getting closest the past seasons with 4-6 records both in 2016 and 2017.

With a new scheduled filled with many unknown quantities, perhaps this is the season the Centaurs turn things around.

"I think that's the legacy that this class is capable of leaving. The reality is the program's never had a winning record," Saucier said. "I think the legacy our kids are shooting for is to take that next step for our program. I think it's within our reach. If we stay committed and we stay relatively healthy, if the attitude stays where it is right now, I 100-percent think that getting on the winning side of that .500 is in our destiny."

Saucier was pleased with the off-season commitment of his players.

"Starting at the end of June, straight through the summer, we weight-trained four days a week," Saucier said. "We didn't have less than 20 kids in the gym on an given morning all summer."

Woodstock returns a group of players who were thrown into the fire last season.

"Last year out of necessity, we had only five seniors, a lot of these kids got significant playing time and that was a blessing and a curse at times," Saucier said. "But the blessing is that they're all game-tested. Everybody on the field has varsity game experience, which is great for us because that wasn't necessarily the case for us last year."

This is Saucier's second year as head coach and that should bode well for the team.

"Just being familiar with the school, the kids, and the routine, all those things help. They have an understanding of what my expectations are and those are in place from last year," Saucier said. "Everything's starting to gel nicely and we're in a good spot."

Senior quarterback Derek Thompson returns after having a year of varsity play under his belt.

"Derek has matured a lot. I think he put a lot of pressure on himself last year," Saucier said. "He seems a lot more relaxed. His leadership has been great. He understands what we're doing and now that I'm calling the plays this year, Derek and I have formed that coordinator/slash QB relationship."

Thompson's targets on the receiving corps include senior Caleb Feen, junior Luis Miranda, senior Zach Douglas and junior Nick Bedard. Bedard will also get some snaps at quarterback. Junior Travis White is Saucier's 'H' back — which the coach described as a blend of fullback and tight end.

"Pretty good receiving corps," Saucier said.

The Centaurs lost Kameron Janice to graduation. Janice ran for 2,285 yards last season and his yardage will be difficult to replace. Woodstock's running backs this season include junior Ian Welz, junior Jaden Dennett, and sophomore Gavin Savoie.

"It's 100 percent by committee and that's one of the things I'm incredibly pleased with, is how they're handling that. They share carries in practice. Nobody's pouting when they're not in," said Saucier of his running backs. "They all bring a little something different to the table."

"In our scrimmages that we've had . . . I would say that the offensive line has been the highlight of the preseason. They're smart kids. They understand their assignments," Saucier said. "They understand pass protection. It's probably the top strength of our team right now."

On the defensive line, Price and Dennett will start on the ends. The Centaurs have a host of defensive tackles including Kollbeck and Barrows. White will be at middle linebacker and "anchor" the defense. Welz will be the strongside linebacker and Bain will be stationed at weakside linebacker.

In the defensive secondary, Feen and junior Dan Suitum will be at cornerback. The safeties will be Miranda and Bedard. In Woodstock's nickel package Savoie comes on as a fifth defensive back.

The Centaurs open the season on the road at Greenfield, Mass., on Friday, Sept. 7. Woodstock's first home game is set for Saturday, Sept. 15, against Amistad. Perhaps this will be the year the Centaurs turn things around.

"The depth that we were able to build last year should pay some dividends this year," Saucier said.

The linebacking corps was in flux as training camp neared its end.
"That's still to be determined," said Asermelly of his linebackers. "We're still evaluating during the scrimmage process."
Among those in the running for playing time at linebacker include Casiano, Thomasson, senior Zach Andersen, senior Joel Comeau, and junior Gabe Martel.
Asermelly senses that his team is tired of sub-.500 seasons and is ready for more victories. He said his gridders have been focused in practice and are preparing for a winning autumn.
"Kids are working hard. I think they're ready for a new target," Asermelly said. "I think they've been anxious since last December to get this thing underway."
The Pride opens the season at home against Bullard Havens Tech on Friday, Sept. 7, with kickoff scheduled for 6 p.m. at St. Marie Greenhalgh Complex in Putnam.

A spicy taste of Mexico from the comforts of home

An idyllic country with extensive mountain ranges and miles of coastal beaches, Mexico also is home to beloved cuisine. Men and women who want to create a taste of Mexico in their own kitchens can consider this recipe for "Spicy Steak Tampico" from Kelley Cleary Coffeen's "200 Easy Mexican Recipes" (Robert Rose).

SPICY STEAK TAMPICO MAKES 4 SERVINGS

- 4 beef tenderloin medallions (each 6 ounces and 3/4-inch thick)
- 2 tablespoons olive oil
- Seasoned salt and freshly ground black pepper
- 1 cup roasted green chile peppers (see below)
- 1 cup shredded Monterey Jack cheese

1. Brush steaks thoroughly with olive oil. Season with salt and pepper.
2. Place medallions on preheated grill, close lid and grill, turning once, until an instant-read thermometer registers 145 F for medium rare, 5 to 8 minutes per side. Transfer to a plate, tent with foil and let stand for 10 minutes.

3. Preheat broiler with rack 3 to 4 inches away from heat. Place steaks on individual ovenproof plates. Top each steak with equal amounts of chile and cheese. Broil until cheese melts, about 2 minutes. Serve immediately.

To roast chiles: Preheat greased outdoor grill to medium or preheat an oven broiler. Place fresh chiles on outdoor grill or gas stovetop over medium heat or arrange on a baking sheet and place 2 to 3 inches away from heat under broiler. Grill or broil, turning often with tongs, until surfaces of skin are lightly charred and blistered. Immediately place peppers in a paper bag or an airtight container and close tightly. Let peppers cool for 12 to 15 minutes. Peel off charred skin and remove stems and seeds. Tear into strips or chop as needed according to the recipe. Wash your hands thoroughly after handling chiles. Refrigerate peppers for up to 3 days or freeze in airtight container for up to 6 months.

How to preserve ethnic diversity while maintaining one's sense of patriotism

the unique people who come together to make their country what it is today.

DINE ON ETHNIC CUISINE

Americanized food certainly can be tasty and make up a good portion of daily diets. However, routinely incorporate family recipes and ethnic cuisine into cooking so that younger generations can retain that connection to their culture. Think about setting aside one day a week for cultural cooking, trying new recipes each and every time.

ing environments and speak to the benefits each offered, but also discuss the decision to move.

CELEBRATE ETHNIC AND NATIONAL HOLIDAYS

People can embrace all celebrations, including those that pay homage to their birth and adopted countries. Individual celebrations of culture, such as Hispanic Heritage Month, also can be embraced. Individuals also can take part in the celebrations of other cultural groups, so they can learn more about all of
