Opacum honors conservation volunteers

BY GUS STEEVES
CORRESPONDENT

REGION — Opacum Land Trust highlighted its last year and previewed ongoing projects last weekend at its annual breakfast, this time at Pathfinder Tech in Palmer.

In the process, two Southbridge residents played key roles for the same project. Jeff Hehman received the Friend of Conservation Award for his work on the $500,000 urban tree planting project that Steve Brady is serving as arborist for.

Brady said the years-long effort, which formally has to end this September, aimed to reduce the “heat island” effect in low-income and environmental justice areas of Southbridge and Ware. It originally began with a 1,000-tree goal, but various issues including Covid prompted Opacum and the US Forest Service to scale it back to 650 trees per town. At present, Southbridge has received 427 trees, and “we’re always looking to plant more trees,” Brady said.

Opacum President Leslie Duthie described Hehman as “an immensely important part” of that program, “especially in convincing people they want a tree in their yard. I never thought that’d be so hard.”

Hehman, also an arborist who retired recently, said “I still find great joy in talking about trees.” He noted he and Brady recently visited Southbridge elementary schools to talk and distribute dawn redwoods, a species that was thought extinct a few decades ago. He noted even the first graders knew what “extinct” meant, and was glad young people are more ecologically aware today.

Brady noted tree planting won’t stop in September. As that project ends, one to create a community arborium and catalog public trees is just beginning. Also, USFS grant funded (this time $1 million), it aims to tag trees along Main Street, other streets, cemetery won first place in its division and an overall spirit award at a national cheer competition last Saturday.

Southbridge Middle/High School Cheer team wins national competition

Southbridge achieved a perfect routine, taking first place in the advanced coed all-music category at the Eastern Cheer Hershey National Competition on Saturday, April 20, 2024.

“The kids really stood up to the pressure. They didn’t let it hold them back, and they gave it their all,” said cheer coach Brianaliz Colon, who has coached the team since 2016.

Coach Colon, a Southbridge Public Schools alumna, said the school last competed in a national cheer championship in 1984. This year’s team won the MSAA regional championship before taking third at the state championship at Worcester State University in March, where the team qualified for the national competition.

Southbridge also won the “Show Your Spirit” award, for the Paint stewardship advocate seeks support from Charlton

BY JASON BLEAU
CORRESPONDENT

CHARLTON — The Charlton Board of Selectmen has been approached with an offer to support a growing movement in the Commonwealth concerning product stewardships to resolve the state’s solid waste crisis.

Thomas Erwin, a member of the Dalton Waste Management and Recycling Committee and an advocate for such stewardships, met with the Charlton Board of Selectmen on April 23, providing a call to action during the board’s public comment segment. His request was for Charlton to consider issuing a resolution in support of a paint stewardship, a partnership that would allow retailers to take back paint cans for the products to be reused. Erwin presented the opportunity as a chance to allow townsfolk a way to dispose of a product that is otherwise complicated to throw away without the benefit of a hazardous waste day.

“After a careful study of ways to address this issue, paint stewardship seemed like the perfect first step and after confirming it was working well in the eyes of consumers and retailers in Vermont, New York, and Connecticut I became an advocate for this in the state. The need for paint stewardship is to begin addressing the Massachusetts odd waste problem. This is a problem that results from 6 million tons of waste being generated annually and only having 3.2 million tons of incineration capacity. The remaining 2.8 million tons of waste have to be landfilled and hauled out of state to places as far away as Ohio, which is an ever-increasing cost and has an extremely large carbon footprint. Primax Stewardship is an approach to begin reducing this burden that is endorsed by the Massachusetts Department of Environmental Protection

Council splits on development grant proposals

BY GUS STEEVES
CORRESPONDENT

SOUTHBRIDGE — The council gave three large “One Stop for Growth” grant proposals a split decision last week, voting to approve submitting an “expression of interest” for one, tabling one, and rejecting the third. In all cases, they aren’t actually applying for money yet, but seeking state advice on whether the projects might qualify and for which of several grant programs.

The one they “tabled indefinitely” aims to obtain an extra $2 million to extend the River/Crane road project to Pleasant Street. At present, because it uses Community Development Block Grant money, that project has to stop at the edge of the census tract,

ELM STREET CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH DISTRIBUTES MEALS ON WHEELS

The Tri-Valley nutrition program has been providing meals for older adults since 1976, through our Meals on Wheels program and at dining centers and lunch clubs within the 25-town territory served by the agency. Meals are delivered to consumers’ homes Monday through Friday and include medically tailored options for those with conditions requiring a special diet. The meals are for adults 60 and older who meet program eligibility and a per-meal donation is requested to offset the rising costs of providing this vital service. In Southbridge, meals are distributed from the Elm Street Congregational Church. The church generously offered a home for our meal site when we were forced to relocate, and they have given us a warm welcome and the ability to provide uninterrupted service to our consumers. The majority of the more than 130 meals served each day are delivered to consumers in Southbridge, with some also delivered to Sturbridge and Charlton residents. When we deliver to a home, it is a good way of doing a wellness check. Some consumers also like to see one of our delivery persons come to the door. Just that little bit of time will brighten up someone’s day. To learn more about Meals on Wheels or the other services provided by TriValley, please visit <http://www.trivalleyinc.org> or call 1-800-2860-6640.

$1.2 million award from Congress to boost Center of Hope Foundation's Hope Grows Here campaign

SOUTHBRIDGE — The Center of Hope Foundation, Inc., a leading organization dedicated to improving the lives of individuals with intellectual and developmental disabilities (ID/DD) and autism, is thrilled to announce a significant advancement in its mission. Congress has allocated a generous $1.2 million to the agency's Hope Grows Here Capital Campaign, a transformative initiative aimed at enhancing and expanding the agency's facilities and programs. This funding, secured through proposals submitted to Federal Legislators, Sen. Markey, Sen. Warren, and Congressman Neal, marks a pivotal step in the agency's journey toward modernizing its services and infrastructure.

"The Center of Hope Foundation is a beacon for individuals with disabilities and the families and caretakers who love and support them. These funds, secured in partnership with Senator Warren, will make it possible for even more of these amazing individuals to be served in an upgraded and modern setting with expanded programming," said Senator Markey.

The Center of Hope Foundation has long been at the forefront of advocating for and providing support to individuals with ID/DD. This congressional funding, which is part of a Congressionally Directed Spending Request, will empower the agency to further improve the security and quality of the environments it offers. The Hope Grows Here Capital Campaign is a strategic effort to modernize the agency's facilities and programs, enabling it to serve more individuals effectively and with the latest advancements in care and support.

Thanks to the dedicated efforts of Steering Committee members Randy Becker, Alan Peppel, Nick Smith, Casey Cormier, Chris McClure, Jennifer Herrmann, Paulette Pratico and Judy Laroche, the Hope Grows Here Campaign has now successfully raised $1.9 million, achieving 73 percent of its fundraising goal. This milestone has been reached with significant contributions from Congress and the benevolence of other donors, including the Herman Becker Family Charitable Foundation, Affinity Group, The Kraft Foundation, Hyde Charitable Foundation, Fels Family Foundation, Southbridge Credit Union, Cornerstone Bank and Lamoureux Ford among many others whose generosity has been instrumental in advancing the campaign's objectives.

The Center of Hope Foundation extends its heartfelt gratitude to Congress and all the supporters who have joined in this endeavor. This earmarked funding and collective support mark a new chapter in the agency's mission, enabling it to enhance its facilities and programs dramatically. By doing so, the agency is set to offer new opportunities that will significantly impact the lives of individuals with disabilities, enriching their experiences and providing them with the means to thrive.

The Hope Grows Here Capital Campaign continues to welcome support from all who wish to contribute to this noble cause. Together, with the continued generosity and backing of the community and partners, the Center of Hope Foundation looks forward to achieving its goal and fostering a more inclusive and empowering environment for all.

Escape the two-party trap at GRP convention

WORCESTER — Nothing is more crucial than peace today, but our major political parties are running away from it.

Not the Massachusetts Green-Rainbow Party! Here, peace, people and planet are always the priority. But to make them happen, we need you.

Help America escape the two-party trap of war and Wall Street at this year's GRP convention, Saturday, May 11 from 9 a.m.-5 p.m. at 1st Unitarian Church, 90 Main St., Worcester.

We'll have a great lineup of speakers: Hy Thurman on his experience forming the original Rainbow Coalition; Timmon Wallis and Vicki Elson on their work to prevent nuclear war; and Jason Tait of OCPF on political finance law.

Beyond them are the internal party business: a panel on attracting young and diverse members, electing party leaders for the year via ranked choice voting, details on our petition effort to get Jill Stein on the ballot, and more. A little lighter fare will top off the day with good food, good music from Jack Swindlehurst and some cool stuff in the silent auction.

Come down, meet fellow Greens, and have some fun sticking it to the powers that be! Non-Greens with similar interests are always welcome.

DUDLEY/CHARLTON — Supporters of AJ Congdon, a student of Dudley Elementary School who has been diagnosed with a brain tumor, came together for a day of fun, family, and community on April 27 with the proceeds helping pay for AJ's treatment. Building off of AJ's love of athletics, the event featured a variety of activities including sports demonstrations, a basketball free-throw, and an hour-long workout while also featuring more conventional fundraising activities including a massive raffle filled with donations from local businesses and supporters. Every penny from the event will help support the Congdons as they pursue treatment of AJ's condition. Supporters have also set up a GoFundMe page called AJ Congdon Strong which, as of this writing, was nearing $80,000 of its $85,000 goal.

“Vision for Southbridge” program addresses student eye care

SOUTHBRIDGE — A $55,000 grant from The Health Foundation of Central Massachusetts is enabling Southbridge Public Schools to partner with 20/20 Onsite in providing vision services at Southbridge Public Schools.

The “Vision for Southbridge” program offers students comprehensive eye examinations and corrective eyewear at no cost. This collaboration ensures that every student can access complimentary, high-quality eye exams and glasses.

Vision exams take place at the Mobile Vision Clinic, a fully-equipped optometry vehicle parked outside the school, or the Mobile Vision Suite, an optometry office set up inside the school. 20/20 On-site optometrists and vision specialists conduct pre-testing that includes capturing a high-definition image of the retina and an eye pressure test for glaucoma detection.

Then, students receive an eye exam using fully-digital, top-of-the-line equipment.

“I am very grateful to the Health Foundation of Central Massachusetts and 20/20 Onsite for bringing this powerful program to the students enrolled in Southbridge Public Schools. Providing quality vision care and eyeglasses to students is an important part of ensuring all children have access to a high-quality education,” said Southbridge Public Schools Receiver/Superintendent Dr. Jeffrey A. Villar.

“We are proud to support this project with Southbridge Public Schools and 20/20 Onsite in bringing much-needed vision services to students in an area where access to comprehensive eye examinations, vision care, and prescription eyeglasses is challenging for many families,” said Dr. Amie Shei, President and CEO of The Health Foundation of Central Massachusetts. “We anticipate that this initiative will help create a pathway to longer-term sustainability, ensuring that Southbridge students have access to vision services not only now but also in the future.”

“We are immensely proud to expand our school-based program and provide essential eye care services to students in need in Southbridge,” said Sonali Bloom, CEO of 20/20 Onsite.

Unwind
and savor

In a world where the pace of life seems to quicken with each passing day, it's becoming crucial to pause and appreciate the beauty in life's simplest moments. We're bombarded with messages that tell us success is synonymous with constant activity and productivity, but in our relentless pursuit, we often overlook the joy that can be found in slowing down and simply chilling out.

Think about it—how often do we rush through our days, barely taking the time to notice the world around us? We grab our morning coffee on the go, scroll through our phones during moments of downtime, and fill our schedules to the brim with commitments and obligations. But what if we took a step back and savored the little things?

There's something incredibly powerful about embracing simplicity in a world that seems to value excess. Whether it's enjoying a quiet moment with a good book, taking a leisurely walk in nature, or sharing a meal with loved ones without the distraction of technology, these small acts can have a profound impact on our well-being.

Research has shown that practicing mindfulness and engaging in simple activities can help reduce stress, improve focus, and cultivate a greater sense of contentment. By slowing down and being present in the moment, we can find peace amidst the chaos and rediscover the beauty that surrounds us.

Living more simply isn't about depriving ourselves or giving up on our goals—it's about finding balance and prioritizing the things that truly matter. It's about recognizing that true happiness isn't found in material possessions or external achievements, but rather in the connections we form, the experiences we cherish, and the moments of quiet reflection that nourish our souls.

Earth days

This year, I was overjoyed and proud when my oldest son, a second grader, asked if we could participate in Earth Day. Yes! Because if God gave us our home as a gift, I can't imagine we should treat it like trash. If I were ever able to give my kids a house as a gift, I surely wouldn't want to drive by one day and see it dirty and crumbling.

Speaking of trash, we typically think of Earth Day as when we pick up trash and litter from the side of the road. That's important, for sure, keeping our town looking nice. I don't think it's exactly the point of Earth Day, though.

I remember once deciding to walk around my neighborhood as a teenager picking up trash. When I got home, my mother yelled, "John, what do you think you're doing?" Apparently I was supposed to leave the trash there until the one day of the year we cared. And what I wanted to ask was, "Why is all this trash on the side of the road in the first place?"

Indeed, ultimately, the point of Earth Day isn't to pick up trash once until the next year. Earth Day should remind us that every day is an Earth Day and we should care every day so there isn't so much to pick up.

If we're going to care about our home every day of the year, then we should take a lesson from home organizing. If we leave organizing and cleaning to once a month, or more, then

Attract success, don't chase it

So many of us yearn to be successful, driven by an unrelenting desire to achieve.

We work tirelessly, struggle against all odds, and clock in long hours, yet often find ourselves falling short of our goals.

Sometimes, it seems we're chasing after success like a mirage in a vast desert, seemingly within reach yet perpetually out of grasp, like trying to catch smoke with our bare hands. It can be like running a marathon with no finish line in sight. This relentless pursuit can feel

like chasing the horizon — the closer you get, the further it seems to stretch away. Success, when pursued directly, often proves elusive, darting away like a startled deer the moment you think you've cornered it.

If you persist in chasing success and consistently fall short, you will encounter a series of deep disappointments. These are not just mere setbacks; they are soul-wrenching disappointments that penetrate to the core of your being. Like sharp thorns on a seemingly beautiful rose, they prick at your spirit each time you reach out, leaving emotional scars that linger. Each failure feels like a personal betrayal, a dream deferred that saps your enthusiasm and dims the light of hope within you. These profound letdowns can hollow you out, leaving a feeling of emptiness where your passion once thrived.

Imagine sitting quietly in a park, lost in thought, when Jim Rohn, a white-haired man with twinkling, wise eyes, sits beside you. He carries the quiet authority of someone who has experienced much in life and who, during his lifetime, was celebrated for his insightful approach to personal development.

After a moment of comfortable silence, he turns to you and asks gently, "Well, how come you haven't achieved success yet?" His voice is soft but carries a weight that suggests deep understanding.

You find yourself opening up more than you intended, sharing, "I've tried for many years, but Success has always eluded me. I put in the hours, worked relentlessly, and at the end of the day, I

Singer will keep Charlton moving forward

To the Editor:

I have had the pleasure of serving with David Singer during my entire tenure on the Board of Selectmen. We have partnered on many issues, disagreed on others and yet we remain strong colleagues and friends. Endorsing a candidate is a crucial decision that impacts the direction of our town, but after careful consideration, I am proud to endorse Selectman Singer as he seeks re-election on May 4. David brings a wealth of experience, dedication, and fiscal conservatism to the table. His track record of community involvement, coupled with his understanding of the budget process makes him an ideal candidate for the next three years.

Throughout his many years on the board, he has demonstrated strong leadership skills and a commitment to serving the public interest. He has a proven ability and track record of listening to constituents, collaborating with diverse stakeholders, and making well-informed decisions that benefit Charlton as a whole and not special interest groups. Additionally, he has outlined a clear vision for Charlton's future with strong positions on infrastructure improvements, public safety, and economic development. His dedication to transparency, accountability, and fiscal responsibility ensures that taxpayer dollars will be spent wisely and efficiently.

Please join me in voting for Selectman David Singer on Saturday, May 4, and let's keep our current successes moving forward.

Write-In Kimberly Laferriere for Board of Health

To the Editor:

A critical aspect of public safety is public health, which is why it is important to elect the most qualified candidate to the Board of Health. Kimberly Laferriere is that candidate.

The primary mission of the local Board of Health is to develop and maintain programs that will safeguard and improve the general health of all Charlton's citizens. Having graduated from Worcester State College with a Bachelor's in Nursing, Kim has been a practicing registered nurse, working both inpatient and outpatient, for 17 years.

She has deep roots and a love of her community from having grown up here and graduated from Shepherd Hill. She believes the key to keeping people healthy starts at the community level, and as such she has volunteered at several community immunization events.

Living in Charlton with her husband Kenny and two beautiful boys Kim has a vested interest in our town and strives to give back through service utilizing her health care background.

Please write-in Kimberly Laferriere for Board of Health in the Charlton town election on Saturday, May 4 at Heritage School 8am to 8pm.

Financial literacy: It's important for everyoneFINANCIAL
FOCUS

NIELSEN

April is National Financial Literacy Month — a good reminder that all of us can benefit from boosting our financial knowledge.

But what is financial literacy? There's no one single definition, but the term certainly covers these areas:

Saving – Most of us would probably agree that saving money is important, but actually doing it can be challenging given all the expenses of modern living. Still, techniques are available that everyone can follow, such as having money automatically moved each month from a checking or savings account to a financial account that's not used for daily expenses.

Budgeting – Budgeting isn't necessarily a fun activity — but it's an important one. And it's easier than ever these days, given the variety of budgeting tools available online. By tracking your spending every month and organizing it into categories, you may be able to find areas where you can cut back, such as on streaming services you rarely use.

Borrowing – Virtually all of us carry some type of debt at various times in our lives. But it's important to manage your debt load so it doesn't become too burdensome. One way of achieving this goal is to use "good" debts wisely — such as a low-rate mortgage on your home — and avoid "bad" debts — such as high-rate credit cards used for unnecessary purchases.

Investing – As you go through life, you'll likely have a variety of financial goals, such as making a down payment on a house, sending your children to college and attaining a comfortable retirement lifestyle. And to achieve these goals, you'll need to invest for them. That's why it's important to learn about different types of investments and how to develop an investment strategy that's appropriate for your objectives, risk tolerance and time horizon.

We aren't born with these skills — we have to learn them. Unfortunately, as valuable as they are, they aren't widely taught to young people. In fact, according to a 2023 Edward Jones study conducted with Morning Consult, only 20 percent of respondents reported receiving financial education in school. This situation may be changing, though, as many states are now requiring or recommending personal finance education before high school graduation.

For now, though, if you have younger children, try to teach them money management skills. You will likely find that they enjoy learning about these matters. You can make it fun for them in different ways, too. For example, to teach them about investing, why not buy them a share or two of stock of a company with which they're familiar? Charting a stock's progress and learning something of the factors affecting its price can help children build a foundation in investing, which will be valuable when they reach the age when they can invest for themselves.

But financial education isn't just for kids. If you feel that you are lacking somewhat in any of the key financial management areas mentioned above, you can always educate yourself by reading or talking to people knowledgeable in these subjects. You also might find it valuable to work with a financial professional — someone who will take a holistic approach to your finances and make appropriate suggestions.

National Financial Literacy Month will end on April 30, but the benefits of financial literacy can last a lifetime.

This article was written by Edward Jones for use by your local Edward Jones Financial Advisor. Please contact Trevor Nielsen, your local Edward Jones Advisor in Sturbridge at 508-347-1420 or trevornielson@edwardjones.com.

Invasion of the stripers

Stripers are starting to invade coastal waters in both Mass. & Rhode Island. This week's picture shows John Gareri with his first striper of the season caught in the Providence River last week! The pair of anglers reported no sightings of Menhaden, but the fish were feeding on some small fish near the surface. The one striper that they caught was on a surface plug.

Tautog fishing was also hot last week, with Captain Mel of FishNet Charters reporting limits of tautog for his clients. Seabass will open on May 18 in Mass.! Black seabass will open on May 17 in Rhode Island with a two fish daily limit? Summer flounder open on May 3, in Rhode Island with a four fish daily limit, and an 18 inch size limit.

The black bugs exploded with their annual hatching last week, and made it uncomfortable just trying to sit in the backyard. Wild turkey hunting opened this past Monday and hunters were hoping that the black bugs were gone by then.

The wild rabbit population continues to grow which is good news for sportsmen that own a good beagle and love to hunt the rabbits. This past week, I observed five rabbits that were killed by cars near my home. It is a sure sign that the rabbits are making a big comeback, and are here to stay. Unfortunately, they are a nuisance to gardeners trying to grow some fresh vegetables for the family. Woodchuck populations are also abundant in the valley area, and can mow down a garden almost overnight.

The Uxbridge Rod & Gun club will stock their club pond with trout this Friday in anticipation of their annual kids fishing derby next Saturday, May 4. Breakfast will be served starting at 7 a.m., and the derby will start at 8 a.m.! Fish chairman Matt Fontaine is hoping for a good turnout, with plenty of prizes being awarded for the largest trout caught.

May is the month to:

Add lime to "sweeten" soil as necessary
Complete indoor sowing of tomatoes, herbs, broccoli, cauliflower
Set out cool season varieties such as peas.
Turn gardens over

Compost or fertilize garden beds six to eight inches deep

Dig and transplant many perennials before new growth advances too far.

Transplant crops that were sown in April.

Transfer crops to larger containers until ready to plant

Fertilize spring bulbs which are actively growing

Plant your summer flowering bulbs later in the month such as gladiolus, dahlia and canna.

Prune shrubs such as forsythia, witch hazel, and weigela right after blooming. Fertilize soon after for lush growth this season

Harden off plants to prepare for planting

Pinch back early blossoms of annuals now and you'll be rewarded with more blooms later. Also Pinch off early blossoms of established strawberries for a more bountiful harvest later.

Control your lawn weeds now before the heat of summer to avoid burning grass.

Green Thumb Growing Tips

Hard shelled seeds do not always germinate properly. But you can aid the germination process by making an x cut in the hard seed with a sharp knife.

Or, to speed germination in without breaking the surface, try soaking hard shelled seeds overnight in water.

To get a fast start on germinating corn, try this old trick. Place the corn seeds on a moist paper towel, leaving it overnight. Then fold the damp towel over. Corn seed that has been pre-sprouted will jump-start your crop and is less likely to rot in cold soil.

When planting your garden, sink a small jar or can in the middle of a row. This way, you can gauge exactly how much water your garden is getting from both irrigation and rainfall.

To stop vigorous mint from spreading and taking over the garden, keep it corralled by planting it in a plastic bucket with the bottom cut out.

Pepper plants thrive on heat, so it helps to place large rocks next to your green pepper plants to attract the sunlight

Plants that grow best in alkaline soil such as geraniums and hydrangea, will thank you with better blooms if you water them with a mild mixture of baking soda and water occasionally.

When buying flowers, the general rule is to choose the largest bulbs because they usually result in larger flowers.

When buying annuals, you'll have the best luck transplanting them if you choose short, stocky, dark green plants with no flowers on them.

When removing the plants from their containers, don't be afraid to break the root mass apart. It will stimulate these small starters into better, stronger growth.

For cost effective mulch, use three sheets of newspaper under bark mulch. You'll save money on bark and the newspaper decomposes, enriching the soil.

Did you know that approximately seven pounds of human hair contain as much nitrogen as 200 pounds of manure? Save hair from home trims to toss in the garden.

American folk art

I've had the pleasure of seeing and handling a wide variety of antiques and collectibles and one of the things I enjoy seeing most is folk art. Folk art follows traditional forms of style, theme, and craftsmanship. Items were made from whatever resources were available to the craftsman at the time. Folk art pieces often have a utilitarian purpose but are also aesthetically pleasing.

with a fruit basket and their cat. A painting in Colonial Williamsburg shows nine children in an outdoor setting. One of the boys has a stick and hoop that was a popular toy at the time. An older girl is holding a baby. Other paintings of the time depict boys with fishing poles and a sea captain with a ship beside him. Given the high mortality rate for children during that time period, many paintings of children were painted posthumously.

Another type of folk art is quilting. European colonists were skilled in working with wool and linen. Quilting was born out of necessity, though. When imported textiles weren't available or when people didn't have the money to buy them, they repurposed material. Block printing and printing on copper plates were used to create designs on fabric, according to the Metropolitan Museum of Art. These fabric pieces were often incorporated in quilts. Basic designs consisted of squares, diamonds, and hexagons. There were other styles of quilts, but the patchwork quilt is a popular style that used small pieces of cloth to create something that not only kept people warm but looked great in their homes.

There are many other types of folk art, including weathervanes, whirligigs, cigar-store figures, trade signs, ship's carvings, stoneware face jugs, game boards, carnival game wheels of chance, and scrimshaw. Most definitions describe a whirligig as a toy that spins like a top or pinwheel. The folk art whirligigs often depict people with paddle-like arms that twist in the wind or cause a character to saw wood or perform another task.

Some of the more interesting types of folk art we've handled were trade signs. We sold a painted zinc sign that had painted eyes inside the frame to let people know they could find an optometrist there. That piece sold in the mid-thousands. We've sold multiple weathervanes, but an old banner (directional arrow design) with great patina (natural aging) went for over $4,000. A pair of beautifully painted leather fire buckets with a connection to Sutton, MA sold for nearly $20,000. We've sold two 19th century wooden barber poles that brought figures in the thousands. One pole had a sign attached advertising haircuts, shaves, and baths. Up until the 1700s, barbers also performed surgery, dental work, and bloodletting. The red and white design that's still being used symbolized blood and bandages. In the 18th century, you had to be very clear when telling a barber to "take a little off the top."

We are accepting folk art consignments for our summer auction, along with historical items, fine jewelry, sterling silver, art, coins, and other antiques and collectibles. It was nice discussing antiques with the large group who came to the Holden Senior Center last week. Thank you to the readers of this column who attended the event. I'll be at a Learning in Retirement event in Danielson, Conn. on May 6 discussing downsizing. Please visit our website <https://centralmassauctions.com> for links to other upcoming events.

"Urban spaces and urban trees are so important to all that we do," said Executive Director Laney Wilder. But she also highlighted the many other projects Opacum has going.

One that's new this year is a collaboration with TerraCorps, a federal ecological volunteer program modeled on AmeriCorps. Over the next 11 months, a couple TerraCorps interns will help Opacum coordinate land and habitat management, create a "really cool database called Landscape" to track such work, and propose future projects.

"When we do conservation work, it's forever," she added, noting visiting nature "restores our brains from the busy tech lives we have."

A key part of that long-term protection is the forest legacy program, where Opacum works with landowners to put their land into conservation easements in perpetuity. Since many owners are land-rich but cash-poor, Opacum helps them seek out grants and other compensation to do so, as an alternative to selling for development. Last year, Wilder said, Opacum got an $85,000 grant to help work through the legal details of such easements.

She noted the nonprofit now holds 3,852 acres across the region, with an additional 1100-plus acres 2030 Solid Waste Master Plan that calls out product stewardship, in particular paint stewardship as well, as a solution to this problem," explained Erwin.

Mass DEP has set a goal to reduce waste by 30 percent by 2030 and as much as 90 percent by 2050. Erwin said stewardships are an essential part of reaching this goal and while there are a variety of larger stewardship programs and initiatives in the state, his request for Charlton was specifically to start with paint which is among the more inconvenient popularly used substances to dispose.

"The benefits will be first that it would be a service that Charlton runs and that you're going to value. This is quickly apparent by noting that 92 percent of 735 Massachusetts residents in the central valley and western part of the state that attended household hazardous waste day events signed petitions asking their legislators to become co-sponsors of this legislation. That suggests that 92 percent of the residents of Charlton that have paint in their garage and basements, and I bet there are many, would support this. Second, it would represent no cost to the municipalities, and it would decrease household hazardous waste day costs, freeing monies for other solid waste issues. Third, it's going to be a model for future product stewardship legislation that's going to address large issues such as mattresses, solar panels, and packaging," Erwin explained.

If adopted, the stewardship would cost customers an extra 75-cents per gallon at the time of purchase but allow them to drop the paint off as participating retailers for disposal without having to wait until a designated hazardous waste day. The approach would allow most of the latex based paints to be reused while oil-based paints would be utilized as an industrial fuel source. Legislation on the state level has been supported by members of both the State House and Senate and the paint stewardship specifically has been sent to the Ways and Means Committee for consideration.

Selectmen chose not to remark on the proposal since it was presented during the public comment segment and was not part of the meeting agenda. However, they agreed to add the item to an upcoming meeting and directed Town Administrator Andrew Golas to consult the Board of Health for their input on the matter as well.

which corresponds to the bridge over the river.

The one they approved would fund contamination-related studies on two Guelphwood Road parcels, at 30 Mill St., and at various downtown properties, but no amount was on the agenda.

Economic Development Director Peg Dean said she doesn't yet have specific sites in mind for the last of those uses. Regarding 30 Mill, she said the town obtained a similar grant to do a phase 2 brownfields assessment a couple years ago. When the property got tied up in bankruptcy court, Southbridge had to return the funds; the court process is closer to completion now.

Unfortunately, the building is also closer to falling down, since the town had to demolish the south wing earlier this year by emergency order when a section collapsed. If it gets this money, it can do a full review of the surviving section, and the building department is already pursuing having engineers look at it to determine if it's salvageable.

The expression of interest the council rejected would have sought up to $5 million from the Housing Works program to continue the redevelopment of the American Optical complex. That campus has seen several proposals in recent years, although only one has yet been completed – 48 apartments in 5 Case St. More apartments (127) are being slated for 25 Case, and the planning board was recently working on conditions for 139 more units total at 40 and 50 Optical Drive.

Owner Chip Norton of Franklin Realty told the Planning & Development Subcommittee April 17 a concept to put a cannabis growing facility in 35 Optical Drive died when the state and federal government would not fund it. Although it's legal in Massachusetts, it's still not at the federal level, he noted.

Instead, Norton said he hopes to attract some kind of manufacturing firm to the building, using the fact the campus has its own cogeneration power plant as an enticement. The number of jobs it might provide "really depends on the industry. It could be anything from 100-200," he speculated.

That would be one part of a much larger project for which Norton has been seeking various forms of public and private financing for several years. He said he's brought in about $150 million to date and expects to need a similar amount going forward.

This time, he said, the "One Stop" proposal would go toward a "multimillion dollar infrastructure improvement project" aimed at upgrading roads, sidewalks, Mechanic Street access, bridges and lights; "convert the private property to a public access, public use facility [of] approximately 70 acres." That last part refers mostly to the forested hillside behind the AO buildings, where he hopes to put foot and bike trails, plus installing an access path around Lensdale Pond, a couple platforms over the pond and stairs to the water. He noted he's still looking into whether to add boating there "but not sure because of the dam and safety."

Dean said the town approved a "covenant" with him some time ago that laid out various requirements, including how to make it "public access in perpetuity" while still being Franklin Realty-owned and brought up to current road and other standards. She noted she'll bring forth an amendment to that covenant to reword a section so Norton will be able to legally apply for public funds for roadwork.

A couple years ago, the Council rejected a similar proposal primarily for that reason, since the roads will not be publicly-owned. It rejected this one on largely the same grounds, with Mike Montigny decrying the idea it will "end up being state taxpayer money" for private uses. He noted the town waived permit fees for the 5 Case St. project and received a MassWorks grant for East Main Street work in that area to benefit that campus. (That roadwork has not yet been done.)

George Chenier agreed, saying he's concerned "We can't even fix our own roads, and citizens hear we're applying for a grant for a private developer."

it will take all day; if we organize and clean every few days, though, then it will take a short while.

Better yet, though, the more often we organize and clean, the more likely we are to reduce what can cause clutter in the first place because we'll grow tired of cleaning it up.

The same applies to our Earth Days. May we commit to cleaning up and maintaining our home more often than once a year. Better yet, may we commit to reducing the clutter. Do we need every plastic bag at every store? Do we need straws? Do we need every new toy advertised to us? Can we bring our own plastic spoons to get ice cream? Can we reuse the old before we buy new?

These and many more questions we should be asking ourselves to reduce clutter in this gift of a home we've been given. Hopefully we can begin to truly care for our home so that the Gift Giver can see our well we've maintained it.

he knows this story all too well. His response is both shocking and eye-opening. He responds with serene confidence, "Success is something you attract, not something you pursue. It's something you attract by becoming attractive."

You can't help but chuckle to yourself, misinterpreting his words, and reply, "Well, there are plenty of successful people who aren't traditionally attractive, and unfortunately, we're born with the looks we have."

He flashes a gentle, knowing smile and clarifies, "Not that kind of attractive. I'm talking about becoming someone who naturally draws opportunities. It's about being a person of value, character, and action—qualities that magnetize success."

Encouraged by his insight, you lean in, intrigued, and ask, "So, how does one attract success then?"

His eyes light up with the question as if he's been waiting to share this secret.

He replies earnestly, "It's not about chasing external rewards; it's about personal development. You can have more than you've got right now because you can become more than what you are right now. If you multiply your value by three or by five, you can easily multiply your income by three, five, or even ten. But the key is to work on yourself. That's how you make yourself a magnet for Success."

His words resonate deeply, suggesting a shift from outward effort to inward growth and highlighting a pathway to better circumstances and a better self.

If you want to have a successful large business, you need to refine your leadership skills. If you aspire to be a renowned artist, enhance your innovative thinking and master new artistic techniques.
