Victoria Mulrain, Cole Milgate named SEBRSD 2026 Project 351 Ambassadors

SPENCER — On Saturday, Jan. 17, Victoria Mulrain and Cole Milgate, eighth graders from Knox Trail Middle School, were honored by Lt. Gov. Kim Driscoll as Spencer and East Brookfield’s 2026 Project 351 Ambassadors at Project 351’s Annual Launch and Service Day in Boston. Victoria Mulrain, Cole Milgate, and the Class of 2026 were honored for inspiring an ethic of service and values of kindness, compassion, humility, and gratitude. Project 351 is a non-profit organization that empowers a youth-led movement for change, powered by an eighth-grade student representing every city and town in Massachusetts. “As Superintendent of Schools for the Spencer-East Brookfield Regional School District, I am proud of Victoria Mulrain and Cole Milgate for their exceptional leadership and heartfelt service as Ambassadors in Project 351. Their compassion, dedication, and commitment to building bridges and serving others embody the values we cherish in our schools and community. Victoria and Cole have inspired us all with their drive to make a positive impact, and their example fills me with hope for the future. On behalf of our district,” said Superintendent Paul Haughey. “I thank them for representing us with dedication and for reminding us that together anything is possible.” Saturday’s Launch Day honored Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. and celebrated a “Revolution of Love”. Victoria and Cole met with more than 450 Ambassadors and Alumni mentors representing the Commonwealth’s 351 cities and towns to kick off a year of leadership development, unifying service, and enrichment. Since 2011, 5,930 Ambassadors have united across all facets of difference to impact 1.5 million neighbors through service. “Through Project 351, young leaders from every corner of Massachusetts learn to refine their leadership skills, take on challenges, and work together across different lived experiences to help create a better world around them,” said Lieutenant Governor Driscoll. “It is always profoundly meaningful to see the impact these eighth graders make in the lives of those most in need across our state. Each of them, in their own unique way, represents what it means to be part of Team Massachusetts, and we’re proud to celebrate with them today.” Over a year’s term, Ambassadors develop the skills and confidence to create transformative social impact. ## School District increasing pre-school tuition

BY JASON BLEAU
CORRESPONDENT

SPENCER — The Spencer – East Brookfield School Committee voted on Jan. 13 to increase pre-school tuition costs to bring their rates in line with other local districts while staying competitive. After recently conducting an analysis of different pre-school rates in Southern Worcester County, Superintendent Paul Haughey recommended a series of increases that were later amended by the School Committee and increase further for both half-day and full-day slots for local and out-of-district students. The final vote confirmed an increase for local student half-day slots from $15 to $20, as opposed to the superintendent’s original proposed increase to $18, and for out-of-district students from $15 to $22.50, as opposed to the superintendent’s recommendation to $20. Full-day slots will increase from $32 to $40 for local students and from $32 to $45 for out-of-district students, both in-line with the superintendent’s requests. Haughey’s recommendations were the result of careful examination of other local rates. Data Turn To TUITION page A10

Ag Commission to host educational program to address invasive plant species

BROOKFIELD — On Feb. 10, the Brookfield Agricultural Commission will host a program at 6:30 p.m. at the hall at the Brookfield Congregational Church 8 Common Street to educate both farmers and interested landowners on how to address invasive plant species. All are welcome. Plants like Japanese Knotweed are highly aggressive plant that can damage infrastructure. Multiflora Rose are thorny shrub that outcompetes native plants. Common Buckthorn is a shrub that forms dense thickets, displacing native species. These are just a few plants common to Massachusetts. This program looks to identify these and others with ideas to combat them. This program is an example of the objectives of local AG Commissions. Under the Right to Farm statute AG Commissions look to Increase public awareness of agriculture, and the positive impact it has on the town. Communicate the guiding principles of Right-to-Farm Bylaw. Act as a mediator in disputes. Work in close cooperation with other Town boards and committees to promote agricultural activities. Bring awareness to farms and farmers of federal, state and other programs. Encourage the pursuit of agriculture, promoting agriculture based economic opportunities, and protecting farmlands within the community by allowing agricultural uses and related activities to function with minimal conflict with abutters and town agencies.

West Brookfield native returns home for powerful, unconventional dance performance

WEST BROOKFIELD — Betty Gundersen Studio of Dance is proud to announce that alumna Avree Gundersen, a native of West Brookfield, will return to Massachusetts as a featured performer with Nova Linea Contemporary Dance, Wisconsin’s premier contemporary dance company, in a compelling full-length performance titled “some wounds never heal.” The performance will take place on Saturday, Feb. 7, at 7 p.m. at The Cultural Center at Eagle Hill School in Hardwick. Tickets are on sale now, priced at $30–$35, and are available through The Cultural Center at Eagle Hill School Web site at <https://www.thecenterateaglehill.org/shows-tickets/buy-tickets>. Choreographed by Nova Linea Artistic Director Jared Baker, “some wounds never heal” stands apart from traditional narrative dance works. Rather than telling a linear story, the 90-minute performance explores an overwhelming emotional state—grief—inviting audiences to sit

The work unfolds in two chapters, separated by an intermission. Senior Company Artist Gracie Plath appears throughout as the grief-stricken human at the center of the piece, anchoring the audience’s emotional journey as the ensemble moves around and through her experience of loss. “This is not a dance that explains grief—it allows the audience to feel it,” said Betty Gundersen, founder and director of Betty Gundersen Studio of Dance. “The honesty of the movement, the pacing, and the emotional restraint make this work incredibly powerful. It’s rare to see a full-length contemporary piece that asks viewers to reflect rather than be told what to feel.” Through physically expressive movement and emotionally evocative imagery, the piece examines how loss can leave us feeling frozen in place and how connection, empathy, and community become Turn To PERFORMANCE, page A10

Fourth Annual National Baseball Poetry Festival looking to increase student participation

LOCAL POET SERVES AS FESTIVAL AMBASSADOR

WORCESTER — The National Baseball Poetry Contest and Festival is readying for its fourth season, where adults and students write about and celebrate the sport of baseball. The Festival includes two poetry contests, the first for grades 4-12, and the second for adults 18 and older. The adult contest deadline is March 27, and the youth contest deadline is April 17. Entries may be sent in any time before those deadlines. The Festival culminates

May 7-10 in Worcester with a welcome reception, a youth poetry event, an open mic night, two Triple-A baseball games, a fireworks display, and other activities. Prizes will be awarded to 80 poets, 20 in each of the following categories: elementary school, middle school, high school, and adult.

Pamela Gemme is a baseball poet and Festival ambassador who joined the festival poet’s committee at its inception. Gemme is again helping promote the festival, which is the only one of its kind in the nation.

“The aim of this contest is to get students and adults writing poetry on a fun subject that so many love. We are already receiving contest entries from around the country and even from India, Turkey and Nigeria. We also would like to see an increase in entries from Spanish speakers this year. I would encourage student and adult poets to submit a poem and hopefully join us at Polar Park in Worcester next spring,” she said.

According to Festival founder Steven Biondillo, the National Baseball Poetry Festival is the first-ever festival to unite sports and the fine arts.

“For the youth who make submissions and/or attend the event, the Festival fosters the appreciation of poetry and the fine arts through the lens of baseball,” Biondillo said.

Teachers and parents interested in involving their students can visit www.BaseballPoetryFest.org, where two complete lesson plans and a contest form can be found.

“Please reach out to me directly for more information,” encourages Gemme. “I’m happy to again be helping with the contest and Festival and can be reached at pamelagemmepoetry@gmail.com.”

The National Baseball Poetry Festival is a project of the Worcester Regional Chamber of Commerce and Biondillo Associates, LLC. Worcester—the birthplace of Ernest Thayer, author of “Casey at the Bat”—is the Festival’s permanent home and early-May—which follows National Poetry Month—its strategic place in the calendar.

North Brookfield explores partnership with Heart & Soul

BY JASON BLEAU
CORRESPONDENT

NORTH BROOKFIELD — The town of North Brookfield is pursuing a partnership with Community Heart & Soul and the Greater Worcester Community Foundation that would help the town chart a path for its own future growth.

Community Heart & Soul is a national non-profit that works to help small communities become even stronger and, working with the Greater Worcester Community Foundation, they’ve pinpointed several towns to be an early focus including North Brookfield. Representatives of both organizations had already been in early talks with North Brookfield stakeholders and felt the community would be a good fit for their program which would provide coaches to help identify ways to enhance or compliment the character of the town and the people’s emotional connection to where they live utilizing input from local officials, residents, and other stakeholders.

Catherine Ingraham White, a coach with Heart & Soul, called it a two-year process that works in phases: identifying what matters most to the community, bringing in different stakeholders to be involved with the discussion, planning for the “long game” to chart priorities and potential plans for future growth, and helping the town prepare to act on these goals. Heart & Soul would not be controlling this process but rather serving to help North Brookfield work through it themselves with representatives from the community leading the charge.

“Through the partnership with the Greater Worcester Community Foundation they’re going to try this as a pilot program and North Brookfield was identified as a place that might be right for it,” said White. “You have wonderful people here. There’s already a lot of really great work that’s going on and through some of those initial conversations we’ve got a few folks that are willing to sort of start doing a little bit of that ‘getting started’ work.”

The proposal did spark some debate, with at least one citizen concerned about Heart & Soul’s intentions feeling it wasn’t a good fit for North Brookfield and asking town officials to seek more information before proceeding. Part of that concern was the potential for affordable housing, which selectmen said was unrelated.

Selectman Jamie Gilman sought to clear up any misconceptions about the partnership.

“The goal here is to help us help ourselves. There’s no agenda other than helping us help ourselves. Nobody is coming into this town and doing any work to help us. Nobody is coming in to do the work for us. Nobody is coming here to give us ideas. This is all home grown. The purpose of this program is to understand what’s important to us. They listen, they coach us on ways to get there, they can help with funding to get there, but it’s all on us,” Gilman said.

He added that the big question has actually been if there are enough people interested in putting work into this to help the town, which has been the subject of the preliminary meetings over the last year.

The program costs nothing for North Brookfield, as the Greater Worcester Community Foundation pays for the coaching, and they would receive a $10,000 grant that could be used for any sort of community engagement activity in town.

Community Heart & Soul requested that the selectmen have the town administrator write a letter of support that they are aware of the partnership, and they support continuing that work. Selectmen also showed interest in working with Heart & Soul to possibly hold a public forum to further educate the public on the goals of the partnership.

Troop 163’s Alison Regan earns Eagle Scout rank

Alison Regan

BROOKFIELD — Alison Regan of Brookfield, a member of Scouting America Troop 163 of Sturbridge, has earned the rank of Eagle. She passed her Eagle Board of Review on Dec. 11.

For her Eagle project, Regan led the design, construction, and installation of four nature signs on the Trek Sturbridge trails behind Tantasqua Regional Junior High School. The signs highlight local plants, trees, birds, and mammals, and show how to identify them.

Regan, currently a senior at Tantasqua Regional High School, joined Scouts when she was in eighth grade. She has served her troop in a variety of roles, including librarian, patrol leader, assistant senior patrol leader, and senior patrol leader. She was inducted into the Order of the Arrow, Scouting America’s honor society, where she earned brotherhood, and has earned National Outdoor Achievement awards in camping and aquatics. Last summer she was named Rookie of the Year staff member at Treasure Valley Scout Reservation, where she worked on the waterfront as a lifeguard. Outside of Scouting America, Alison also earned a Girl Scout Silver Award, holds leadership positions in her school’s drama club, show choir, and student council, and is on the school swim team. She loves the outdoors, especially climbing trees, and wants to one day hike all forty-eight of New Hampshire’s 4,000-foot mountains. She plans to attend college next year for engineering.

Troop 163 is a Scouting America troop for girls ages 11-17. The troop is based in Sturbridge but has members across southern Worcester County. The aims of the troop are character development, citizenship, fitness, and leadership. # The quiet power of the local library

In towns like Spencer, Leicester, and the Brookfields, the library is easy to overlook because it rarely demands attention. There is no flashing sign, no urgent siren, no ribbon-cutting every week. Most days, the building simply sits there, dependable as a mailbox, waiting for whoever needs it.

That steadiness is exactly the point. A good public library is one of the few places left where you can walk in without needing to buy something, sign up for a membership, or prove you belong. You can come in with a question, or a problem, or a restless kid on a long afternoon, and you can leave with something useful. Sometimes it is a book. Sometimes it is a quiet hour to fill out a form, print a document, or get work done when home is too loud. Sometimes it is simply the feeling that there is still a corner of town life set aside for learning and calm.

There is a lot of talk these days about “community,” usually in the abstract. But libraries are community in its most practical form. They are where toddlers learn to sit still for a story, where students find a place to study that is not a kitchen table, where job seekers print resumes, and where older residents read the paper and keep a familiar routine. They offer a bridge between generations without making a big production out of it.

And libraries do all of this while adapting to a world that keeps changing. They have become technology lifelines for people who do not have reliable internet, updated devices, or the confidence to troubleshoot a stubborn screen. They have become navigation centers for modern paperwork, from online applications to basic services that used to be handled face-to-face. Even for those who are comfortable online, it is reassuring to know there is a staffed, local place to turn when something becomes confusing, or when the stakes feel too high to risk a mistake.

In small towns, that kind of help matters. It keeps people from falling through cracks that are not always visible until you are the one standing over them.

Libraries also do something else, quietly and consistently: they protect attention. In a time when so much of life is built to distract, the library remains one of the last public spaces designed for focus. You can read without interruption, work without being watched, and think without being pushed to scroll. For kids and teenagers, that is more valuable than we sometimes admit. For adults, it can feel like a rare kind of relief.

Of course, none of this happens by accident. Libraries need budgets, planning, and staff support. They need trustees and town officials willing to treat them as essential infrastructure, not as an optional amenity. They need residents who show up, not only as patrons but as people who pay attention when decisions are being made about hours, staffing, and long-term upkeep.

The good news is that library support is one of the simplest ways a community can invest in itself without turning it into an argument. A strong library benefits families, seniors, students, and everyone in between. It makes a town easier to live in. It makes it easier to grow up here, raise a family here, and age here.

In the end, the library is not about nostalgia, and it is not about resisting modern life. It is about giving modern life a steady local anchor. The doors open. The lights are on. The help is there. And in a world that can feel louder by the day, that kind of dependable, public welcome is worth protecting.

OPINION AND COMMENTARY FROM SPENCER, LEICESTER AND THE BROOKFIELDS

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

The Trump MAGA massive, deadly assault on our United States democracy

To the Editor:

This assault didn’t begin yesterday. Many think it began with Congressman Newt Gingrich’s in the 1990s and his threat to shut down the government if he and his supporters and didn’t get what they wanted. Then it continued with various the billionaire backed very conservative movements like the Tea party.

From there, with similar funders, it went with Mitch McConnell and the Federalist Society’s efforts to remake our court system along very conservative partisan Republican lines.

Then, in 2015, came Donald Trump. He was then and continues an entirely self-centered, crooked, ruthless, wealth seeking, fully biased, ignorant, without morals, mentally damaged person. He also has become a gifted entertainer and has developed the ability to fire up anger and fear among his followers and funding from benefitting billionaires.

Because Republicans didn’t deny him the nomination and because of our electoral system gave him the majority of the election votes even though 4 million more people voted against him, he became President.

Given who he is, he performed badly and was twice impeached. However because of some great and patriotic conservatives in his administration, the damage was to a degree, controlled.

Losing the 2024 re-election by seven million votes, for the first time since our Civil War, Trump led an insurrection in which, he and his followers tried to take over government. This time our United States democracy, while under serious threat, survived thanks to, among others, Mike Pence.

Having learned from their mistakes, Trump and his followers planned well both for winning the election and cementing their plans on how they would not govern our United States, but dictate it.

This is why our friends across the world have become furious, and why our government feels free to kill its citizens.

What we should we do about it?

Lanterns Along Main Street

By CHARLES

There is a certain sound that tells you winter is finally losing its grip: the slow, steady drip from the edge of a roof. It is not dramatic. It does not announce itself loudly. But once you hear it, you know something important is happening.

Around here, late winter has its own personality. The snowbanks shrink one cautious inch at a time. Mud season starts knocking on the door. The sun hangs around a little longer in the evenings, giving us just enough light to feel hopeful without quite letting us relax yet. It is an in-between season, and I have come to appreciate it more as the years go by.

When I was younger, I wanted winter gone the moment it arrived. I counted down the days until spring with the impatience of someone waiting for a bus that never seems to come. Now, I find myself paying closer attention to the small signs of change. A patch of grass reappearing along the edge of the driveway. A bird returning to the feeder that I have not seen in months. The first time I leave the house without my heaviest coat and realize, halfway down the steps, that I do not actually need it.

These small moments do not make the weather report, but they shape our moods more than we realize. They remind us that no season lasts forever. Not the cold ones, and not the easy ones either.

Living in small Massachusetts towns, we are used to adapting. We shovel, salt, scrape, and repeat. Then, without much ceremony, we switch gears. Out come the rakes and the garden gloves. The snow brush gets tossed in the back of the closet, and the lawn chairs quietly reappear on porches. We do this every year, almost automatically, yet it always feels a little new. There is something comforting about that rhythm. It gives structure to time. It teaches patience. It also teaches humility, because no matter how many winters we survive, the next one still has the final say.

My wife likes to open the windows on the first mild day, even when the air is still a little sharp. She says the house needs to “remember what fresh air feels like.” I usually grumble about the cold breeze, but I secretly enjoy it. It smells like change. It sounds like the start of something better.

We talk a lot about big goals and fresh starts this time of year. But I think the real reset happens quietly. It happens when we take that first walk without worrying about ice. When we linger outside a little longer after work. When we notice ourselves breathing easier, not just because the air is warmer, but because the season is shifting in our favor.

Late winter teaches a useful lesson. You do not need everything to be perfect to move forward. You just need enough light to see the next step.

So if you find yourself listening to that drip from the roof or watching the snow retreat from the corners of your yard, take a moment to appreciate it. It is not just water falling to the ground. It is time moving on, slowly and steadily, the way it always has.

And that steady movement, even when it is subtle, is often exactly what we need most.

Local business owners: Don’t overlook retirement plans

NIELSEN

If you’re a local business owner, you’re juggling many priorities: growing revenue, managing expenses, supporting your team and planning for your own future. What if one tool could help with all these goals?

A workplace retirement plan might be that solution and can, directly or indirectly, offer benefits that extend beyond simple savings.

Double the tax advantages. Starting a retirement plan can deliver immediate tax advantages. For the business, employer contributions are tax-deductible. And as a participant in your company plan, your pretax salary deferrals are excluded from income taxes; your investments within the plan are tax-deferred until distributed. Many plans now offer Roth options that allow tax-free withdrawals in retirement.

Local businesses may also qualify for federal tax credits that help offset startup costs, employee education expenses and plan administration fees. Additional credits may be available for auto-enrollment features and employer contributions made during the plan’s first five years.

A competitive edge in hiring. In today’s labor market, offering a retirement plan can differentiate your business from competitors and help improve employee retention.

Many plans also provide access to financial education tools and resources, helping your employees make informed decisions about saving, investing, and planning for retirement. This support can lead to greater employee satisfaction and productivity, contributing to a positive work environment for your business.

More flexible than state-sponsored options. If you live in a state requiring an employee retirement program, you might be considering a state-sponsored plan. While these programs can provide a starting point, they typically offer fewer investment options, lower contribution limits and limited design flexibility.

Establishing your own workplace retirement plan lets you customize features for your business needs to control administrative costs, set contribution limits and offer employees a wide range of investment options. This added control in plan design can lead to better outcomes for your business and your employees.

Reducing a hidden risk in your own retirement planning. Business owners often have as much as 80 percent of their net worth tied up in their businesses, according to the Exit Planning Institute. While that demonstrates commitment to success, it also creates significant financial risk to the owner.

Relying solely on a future business sale to fund your retirement can be precarious. Market shifts, timing challenges or limited buyer interest could derail those plans. By building personal assets through your employer-sponsored retirement plan, you can gain financial flexibility and reduce the risk of having your retirement lifestyle depend entirely on one event.

Getting started. With various retirement plan options available, determining which one fits your business best can feel overwhelming.

A qualified financial advisor can help you navigate these decisions, explaining the trade-offs between different plan types and identifying which option best suits your unique situation. They can also help you understand eligibility requirements and ensure the plan you choose aligns with your business goals and personal financial objectives.

Starting a workplace retirement plan represents an investment in your future, your employees, and the long-term success of your business.

New storytelling group, The Story Exchange, forming in Brookfield

BROOKFIELD — A new community storytelling group, The Story Exchange, is forming in Brookfield and will hold its organizational meeting at 6 p.m. on Tuesday, Feb. 10 at the Merrick Public Library Annex, 18 Common St., Brookfield.

The Story Exchange is designed for individuals interested in telling and developing true, personal stories, shared aloud in a supportive, structured environment. The group emphasizes storytelling craft, focused listening, and constructive feedback, and welcomes participants of all experience levels. Stories shared during meetings are expected to be true, personal narratives, typically five to seven minutes in length, focused on a single moment or experience rather than a full life history.

The group will be facilitated by Joe Klimavich, an accredited public relations consultant and adjunct professor of communication at Worcester State University, who has taught effective speaking and communication courses for many years. While facilitated, The Story Exchange is intended to be largely member-driven, with participants shaping discussions, stories, and feedback through shared experience.

If you've lived a little, noticed a lot, and you're curious about shaping real moments into meaningful, well-told stories, you'll feel at home with this group.

"As a public relations professional and educator, telling stories - my own and those of my clients - has always been central to my work," said Klimavich. "Inspired by programs like The Moth and Stories from the Stage, The Story Exchange grew out of a belief in the power of true stories, told well, and the value of listening as much as sharing."

Participation will be limited to six to eight storytellers per session. There is no cost to participate, but advance registration is required. Interested individuals should send a brief introductory email to joe.klimavich@gmail.com and indicate whether you are interested in sharing a story during the first meeting.

Following the organizational meeting, The Story Exchange will meet on the first Tuesday of each month at the Merrick Public Library Annex.

QCC receives $148,000 for program to support adults with disabilities

WORCESTER — Quinsigamond Community College has received a $148,993 grant from the Commonwealth of Massachusetts to support its Massachusetts Inclusive Postsecondary Education (MAIPSE) program. MAIPSE programs provide adults with significant disabilities, ages 18 to 22, with integrated access to higher education.

QCC’s MAIPSE program provides resources to students, including textbooks, laptops and peer support. Peer mentors assist with classroom navigation, social engagement and completing coursework assignments. The funding also supports presentations and speakers on topics such as neurodiversity.

“This investment benefits students in the program, but also the campus community because we are all receiving education about disabilities,” said Director of Student Accessibility Services & Assistive Technology Kristen Proctor. “Community colleges are perfect for MAIPSE because having all students belonging and learning together parallels the mission of QCC and embeds inclusion into the fabric of the college.”

After partnering with seven local schools for referrals, the MAIPSE program has grown to more than 20 students, with signs of continued growth and demand, according to Proctor.

“Sometimes, you don’t know when you have assumptions and biases about students who have more significant disabilities. This program helps people understand that the limitations we put on people might not be needed,” said Student Accessibility Services Coordinator Cassandra Estey.

Many students in the MAIPSE program have been in self-contained classrooms throughout the majority of their lives. Being in a QCC classroom offers an integrated setting and room for growth. Staff who work with MAIPSE students have noticed an increase in their communication skills, especially when interacting with non-disabled adults in the community. Estey noted that these interactions can improve the communication skills of non-disabled adults as well, especially those coming directly from high school.

Estey has witnessed several students find success after the MAIPSE program, by enrolling at QCC as fully matriculated students or going on to obtain employment in areas they might not have considered before completing the program. One such student gained employment at Assabet Valley Collaborative after gaining interest and skills from a psychology course.

For more information on QCC’s MAIPSE program, visit www.QCC.edu/support/specialized-support/student-accessibility-services.

Brookfields Lions Club accepting scholarship applications

NORTH BROOKFIELD — The Brookfields Lions Club is now accepting applications for its annual scholarship program, according to club president Bill Cass.

Each year, the club awards a scholarship of up to $1,000 to a graduating senior in each of the club’s member communities, Cass said. Recipients of the 2026 Brookfields Lions Club scholarship awards will be announced in June.

To qualify for consideration, applicants must live in one of the member communities -- Brookfield, East Brookfield, North Brookfield, West Brookfield, and New Braintree -- and submit an application before their school’s spring break. The application must include the student’s class rank and be signed by the school’s guidance director.

Cornerstone Bank supports South Worcester families with donation to Jeremiah's Inn

WORCESTER — Cornerstone Bank has donated $5,000 to Jeremiah's Inn to support the ongoing operations of its Nutrition Center, one of the largest food pantries in Central Massachusetts. This contribution builds on the bank's history of giving to the organization, including previous donations of $5,000 in 2023 and 2024 for the Nutrition Center and additional support for the organization's recovery program and food drives.

This year's donation will help Jeremiah's Inn meet the growing demand for nutritious food among low-income residents in South Worcester, where food insecurity has reached unprecedented levels.

In 2024, Jeremiah's Inn served more than 32,000 individuals, a 30 percent increase from the previous year and a 167 percent increase over the past two years. At the same time, the Worcester County Food Bank reduced food distributions to the pantry by 30 percent, creating a critical gap between supply and demand. Cornerstone Bank's continued support ensures that children, seniors and families who rely on the Nutrition Center have access to essential meals and resources.

"Supporting our neighbors in times of need is a core part of our mission," said Cornerstone Bank CEO Todd Tallman. "We are proud to continue our partnership with Jeremiah's Inn and help ensure local families have access to the food they need to grow and thrive."

About Cornerstone Bank

Cornerstone Bank was formed in 2017, born of a long history of supporting the community, and providing a strong foundation to help people and businesses thrive. # EcoTarium hosts Second Annual Free Community Day, bringing USA Luge Team to Worcester

WORCESTER — The EcoTarium welcomed more than 1,100 excited visitors on Saturday, January 24, 2026, for a Free Admission Community Day, made possible through the generous support of Norton I Saint-Gobain. Families and guests of all ages took advantage of a full day of hands-on science, nature exploration, and a special luge experience with the USA Luge Team, making it a highlight of the weekend.

“The luge is a high-speed physics lesson on gravity, acceleration, and aerodynamics”, said EcoTarium President and CEO Noreen Smith. “With the help of the USA Olympic Luge Team and Norton I Saint-Gobain, visitors were able to experience the excitement of the sport and meet some of the athletes who inspire us all.”

“Partnerships like ours with Norton I Saint-Gobain help us expand how young people see science, technology, engineering, and math,” said Katie Chappell, Deputy Director of Museum Operations at the EcoTarium. “Working together with the USA Luge team allows us to highlight the many ways STEM connects to real-world experiences like winter sports and the Olympics, while also introducing youth and families to career paths they may not have previously considered.”

“We’re incredibly excited to sponsor the Norton Luge Challenge with our partners at the EcoTarium and the USA Luge team. This event captures the creativity, teamwork, and engineering spirit behind winter sports, and it’s a fun way to share our enthusiasm as we look ahead to the upcoming Winter Games,” said Melanie Bonsu, Community Relations Manager, Saint-Gobain Abrasives.

The Norton Luge Challenge gave visitors the opportunity to try out the sport of luge under the expert guidance of the USA Luge Team international medalists and coaches. Participants used easy-to-manuever plastic sleds in a safe, slope-side setting. Helmets were provided to ensure a fun and safe experience for all. Adding to the high-energy atmosphere, the USA Luge DJ kept the excitement going with upbeat music throughout the event.

During the Free Admission Day sponsored by Norton I Saint-Gobain, visitors also enjoyed full access to the museum’s interactive science exhibits, educational programming, and planetarium shows, making for an unforgettable day of learning about science, nature, and outer space.

high school Alumni mentors, Ambassadors mobilize schools and communities in statewide service campaigns that address the causes and consequences of poverty and expand equity and equality of opportunity. Project 351’s calendar of social impact includes Spring Service in support of Cradles and Crayons, 9.11 Tribute Service in support of Home Base, and Fall Service, which seeks to eradicate hunger through support of hundreds of hometown Food Pantries. The 16th Annual Launch Day included a morning celebration at Faneuil Hall with Lt. Governor Kim Driscoll, the afternoon of transformational service, and the Service Celebration at the John F. Kennedy Presidential Library and Museum. Day one of the Ambassador year was one of inspiration and impact – more than 27,000 neighbors served in partnership with 14 nonprofit organizations, including La Colaborativa, Cradles to Crayons, Hope & Comfort, Home Base, Give n’ Glow, and the Wonderfund, Ambassadors addressed critical issues including hunger, educational opportunity, childhood poverty, mental health and wellness, and care for military and veterans. “With joy, we welcome our 16th Class of bridge-builders and change makers!”, said Carolyn Casey, Project 351’s Founder and Executive Director. “At a time of increased division and polarization, these eighth-grade leaders demonstrate the unlimited potential of a Commonwealth united in common cause. We are proud of our Ambassadors’ compassionate leadership and excited for a year of unity, hope, and transformative social change.” Project 351 is a social change movement powered by young leaders of vision and values. We build a more just, inclusive, and equitable world by developing change-makers with compassion, courage, and skill. Founded in 2011 in partnership with Governor Deval Patrick, Project 351 engages eighth graders representing Massachusetts’ 351 cities and towns in a five-year Leadership Continuum for skill development, civic engagement, career-readiness, and transformative social impact. Since 2011, 5,930 eighth-grade Ambassadors have united across all facets of diversity to positively impact more than 1.5 million neighbors. As they serve, Project 351 leaders cultivate the values of kindness, empathy, and inclusion; address the causes and consequences of poverty; progress social and racial justice; and strengthen a statewide ethic of youth service and advocacy.

Project 351 is a nonprofit organization powered by the generosity and engaged leadership of partners including Boston Celtics Shamrock Foundation, Anonymous, John Hancock, Blue Cross Blue Shield, The Quin Impact Fund, Massachusetts Association of School Superintendents, and individuals, families, educators, and Alumni from across the state. We are powered by fierce conviction in Dr. King’s vision of the Beloved Community and the wisdom, compassion, and leadership of the 35ONE generation.

presented during the discussion indicated the rates would be less than neighboring Leicester but more than Paxton.

“This is what we had discussed in other meetings, so we landed at the amounts that kept us competitive,” said Haughey.

However, some School Committee members expressed their desire to increase tuition even more, and an official motion was made and vote taken in the affirmative to increase the half-day tuition by a few extra dollars.

The superintendent presented data that indicated that the programs have become quite popular. Data collected in November, which Haughley acknowledged may not be the most accurate representation of January’s numbers, indicated there were 113 total students enrolled in the program including 79 from Spencer, 22 from East Brookfield and 12 from seven different surrounding communities. At the time of that report there were several students on a waiting list.

Pre-School Director Nancy Manske said the popularity of pre-school shifts yearly so it’s hard to tell whether a waiting list would be a normal occurrence or how many seats would be available in any give class.

“It depends, year to year. It’s not a set number of half-day slots and full-day slots. It really depends on the enrollment and what families ask for when they’re enrolling their child,” she said, noting that full-day slots were more coveted than half-day.

The approved increases will go into effect for the next school year and represent the first such increase in the Spencer-East Brookfield District in more than 15 years.

DPHS students hit high note at Central MA District Concert

SPENCER — David Prouty High School is proud to announce that students Bradyn LaFountain and Jackson Rutkiewicz represented the district this past weekend at the prestigious Central Massachusetts District Concert.

After a rigorous audition process, LaFountain and Rutkiewicz joined 181 of the most talented young vocalists from across the region to perform in the District Chorus. The event followed an intensive week of rehearsals, during which the students dedicated numerous hours to perfecting a challenging repertoire under the guidance of guest conductors.

“Bradyn and Jackson performed beautifully and represented DPHS proudly,” said Kelsey Forfa, Music Director at David Prouty High School. “They are great examples of what DPHS stands for, and I am beyond proud of their love and dedication to music.”

“The performance showcased the high caliber of the Spencer-East Brookfield Regional School District’s arts programming and highlighted the commitment of its student-athletes and performers,” said Superintendent of Schools Paul Haughey. “On behalf of our entire regional school district, many congratulations to Bradyn and Jackson on their outstanding performances at the Central Massachusetts District concert... We could not be any prouder of what you are doing out in the community, representing our high school and district so well.”

About David Prouty High School Located in Spencer, David Prouty High School is committed to academic excellence and the personal growth of its students through diverse extracurricular and fine arts opportunities.

Saint Joseph School seventh graders win MLK poetry honors at Worcester State University

Saint Joseph School seventh grade students Abby Rubin and James Miranda proudly display their winner certificates after being honored in Worcester State University’s 32nd Annual Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr. Celebration Poetry Contest on Jan. 17.

WEBSTER — Two Saint Joseph School seventh graders were recognized as winners in Worcester State University’s 32nd Annual Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr. Celebration Poetry Contest, centered on this year’s theme: “Voices of the Future: Bold Roots, Brave Leaders.”

Abby Rubin (daughter of Mark and Agnes Rubin of Webster) and James Miranda (son of Thiago and Alyssa Miranda of Douglas) were selected as two of only 25 winners from hundreds of entries submitted by students in Grades 7–12 from Worcester Public Schools and schools in the Diocese of Worcester.

The poetry contest invited students to reflect on Dr. King’s enduring legacy of equality, justice, and nonviolence, asking how young people will use their voices to continue his dream. Entries were reviewed by the MLK Jr. Poetry Committee, a panel of educators, university students, and community members. Judging criteria included creativity, originality, style, and connection to the theme.

Saint Joseph School’s Grades 6–8 Language Arts teacher, Mrs. Karen Lefebvre, encouraged students to participate. In mid-December, the school was notified that Abby’s winning poem, “Dr. King’s Words,” and James’ winning poem, “Equality for All,” were selected.

James writes, “We show his dream matters by speaking up, even when our voices shake a little.”

Abby emphasizes peaceful courage, writing, “He taught us how to use love not violence, to show how you will fight with words not fists.”

Rubin and Miranda and their parents attended the award ceremony with Saint Joseph School Principal Mrs. Beth Boudreau and Mrs. Lefebvre on Saturday, Jan. 17 at Worcester State University, where each student received a certificate from Congressman James McGovern and a $50 Amazon gift card.

“Abby and James captured Dr. King’s message in a way that feels both hopeful and urgent,” said Boudreau. “Their words reflect what we encourage every day at Saint Joseph School: to live with faith, treat others with respect, and take responsibility for making the world more just.”

Saint Joseph School congratulates both students on the honor and applauds the many student participants who used poetry to share their voices and leadership.
