Proposed change to appointed town clerk heading to town meeting

BY JASON BLEAU
CORRESPONDENT

CHARLTON — The Charlton Board of Selectmen continued discussions regarding a potential change to the Town Clerk position in mid-November with the debate concerning whether to shift the job to an appointed position versus its current status as an elected post. The concept has been brought forward several times throughout the year with town officials torn on how Charlton should move forward.

The idea was spawned from the Government Review Committee who examined Charlton's Government Study White Paper Report from 2016 and recommended that Charlton change its Town Clerk to a hired position. However, that change would be a lengthy one and would require several steps to complete any change before the next election cycle. The Board of Selectmen invited current Town Clerk Karen La-Croix and members of the Government Study Committee to the table on Nov. 12 to discuss how the town should move

Community chorus to perform next month

BY KEVIN FLANDERS
STAFF WRITER

STURBRIDGE — Members of a local community chorus, Wings of Song, are sharing messages of peace and joy this holiday season with a special concert program.

The first performance of the "Peace and Joy" program is scheduled for Saturday, Dec. 14, at 7:30 p.m. at St. Joachim Chapel in Fiskdale (16 Church Street). A second performance will take place on Sunday, Dec. 15, at 3 p.m. at Evangelical Covenant Church in Woodstock, Conn. (24 Child Hill Rd.).

Both concerts are free of charge, but audience members are invited to help the chorus meet its expenses by participating in a freewill offering during intermission.

Rehearsals for the concerts took place at St. Anne-St. Patrick Parish in Sturbridge. The 45-member chorus is eager to share messages of hope and inspiration with guests.

The concerts will be split into two halves, one focusing on the theme of peace, the other segment dedicated to the theme of joy.

"These are some of my very favorite pieces," said Wings of Song Music Director Nym Cooke, who has led the chorus for two decades. "The 'Peace' half starts and finishes with music by the marvelous Estonian composer Arvo Pärt, who will turn 90 next year. This pair of Mass movements comes from Pärt's Berlin Mass of 1990. I don't think it would be possible to find more peaceful, deeply spiritual music."

The 'Joy' part of the program starts and ends with inspirations from the "Midnight Mass for Christmas" (1690), written by French Baroque composer Marc-Antoine Charpentier.

"The particular delight of this piece is that each of its movements is based on one or more French noëls—French folksongs for Christmas, among the pop tunes of their day," Cooke added. "There is a charmingly innocent and accessible quality to the piece."

The concerts will also include the original 1818 version of "Silent Night," followed by the modern version sung by chorus members and guests together.

Additionally, old favorites like "In the Bleak Mid-Winter" and "Bring a Torch, Jeanette, Isabella" will be performed.

"This will be a very special concert, I think—on the one hand, meditative, centering, and relaxing; on the other hand, uplifting, inspiring, and energizing. Just the right medicine for these times," Cooke said.

Musical genres presented at the concerts will range from classical compositions to folk-based carols and concert pieces, along with early American seasonal tunes.

"Everything from the familiar to the utterly unfamiliar will be present," Cooke added. "We'll be doing Handel's 'Hallelujah' chorus with dynamics changes and shadings that will have you on the edge of your seat."

Free refreshments will be served during the social hour following each concert. Both locations are fully ADA-accessible, with plenty of parking available.

Food Share unveils new home at Holy Trinity

BY GUS STEEVES
CORRESPONDENT

SOUTHBRIDGE — This week, many families are gathering for the feast that is Thanksgiving.

But some people don't have much food, or lack the funds to get it.

That's where Food Share and the other nearby food pantries come in.

Last week, Food Share formally inaugurated its new home in the basement of Trinity Lutheran Church with tours and awards for long-time supporters.

To past president, now treasurer, Bill Bouvier, the new site is "a much cleaner, much brighter environment" than the agency's prior home at Catholic Charities, which it had to leave in May. But he noted they "had a great relationship with Catholic Charities, and thank them for their support over the years."

To Holy Trinity's Lynn Garland, "It's totally been a blessing. They're well-organized, efficient and provide great service. It's a pleasure to have them here, and a natural partnership. Most important, they'll be able to continue. They're dedicated to making sure people have adequate food."

Food Share was born around 1970 in Brimfield, and soon had branches in Southbridge, Webster and Palmer. It headquartered at Catholic Charities starting about 1980, and spun off the Webster and Palmer branches about 10 years ago, Bouvier said.

In recent years, it has seen the need rise notably. Today, it's open only four hours a week on Monday, Wednesday

Recent rain may help “critical” statewide drought

BY GUS STEEVES
CORRESPONDENT

REGION — Last Friday, state and local officials started a series of online conferences to address the current drought conditions. Although our region saw some rain straddling that meeting, the amount received hasn't done much more than dent the drought in place since August.

According to mass.gov's Drought Management page, all of Massachusetts but the Cape and Islands was in a Level 3 “critical” drought as of Nov. 19.

“Over the past 30 days, most of the state received less than an inch of rain, which is three to four and a half inches below normal,” it states. “Many areas recorded their lowest rainfall ever for this time of the year. Since August, when dry conditions began, all regions except the Cape and the Islands have seen an eight- to 11-inch rainfall deficit.”

On federal drought maps, that situation has made the northeast one of the driest parts of the US despite not being hot.

“The onset has been fast, it has moved fast, and it has intensified fast,” Executive Office of Energy and Environmental Affairs' Vandana Rao told the more than 400 people who attended Friday's meeting. She said this drought's “particularly unprecedented” progression “has reshaped our thinking” of how droughts develop and affect the state.

Its most notable impact has been in brush and forest fires. According to Department of Conservation and Recreation Fire Marshal Dave Celino, the total number of 1,226 fires for 2024 is about average, but the 4202 acres burned is “historical,” as is November's total of 2,800-plus acres. He noted November's average for number of fires is 20-21, but we've seen 433 this year.

“The numbers are very impressive for us. We've never been here in decades,” he said.

Later, he added, “these fires are going to burn deep, they're going to burn long” because of how dry the conditions are. That makes them hard to fight, because “we've had fires break out of containment. ... Every ember can cause a fire to blow out on us.”

On average, Celino said, the state is tracking

“10 priority fires a day” and had 21 active fires on Thursday. But he noted some of them were receiving rain and/or snow that would help the effort to control them.

The largest fire was the Butternut Fire in Great Barrington, which had burned 1388 acres and had a two mile perimeter. Its geography was partly responsible – it started on a ridge, burned to the top and then started burning down both sides. But Celino noted Thursday's precipitation included snow in that area, helping to control it.

Besides fire, the drought has had serious effects on water, both in terms of water bodies and drinking supply in some areas. Department of Environmental Protection's Kathleen Baskin said DEP's water withdrawal permits normally just limit “non-essential” water uses from May to September, but in light of this drought, the agency is going to look at making that last all year.

The mass.gov drought page has a fairly long list of “recommendations for communities and individuals living and working within Level 3 – Critical Drought Regions, including those utilizing a private well.” For households, those include checking for water leaks frequently, limiting showers to five minutes or less, stopping “all non-essential water use,” and only running dishwashers and washing machines full. For communities, it encourages keeping people informed about drought conditions, using “increasingly stringent penalties” to enforce restrictions, and “strongly discourage or prohibit” such washing such things as driveways.

Among other things, the list also warns people to “refrain from outdoor cooking and heating” and “use caution with lawnmowers, leaf blowers, all-terrain vehicles, and other power equipment.”

Regarding conservation issues, Baskin said certain parts of the Wetlands Protection Act and Rivers Act change in declared droughts. Specifically, land developers cannot use current low- or no-flow conditions in rivers and streams to define them as “intermittent,” nor can they base buffer zone delineations on them, among other things. She urged commissions and others with questions to contact DEP.

Generally, surface water supplies are still good, with the MWRA-run reservoirs holding at least five years' worth, Rao said.

However, some areas are seeing groundwater concerns. The most recent state hydrological report (for October) listed central Mass as having the lowest median streamflow value of any region statewide at just 4 percent, lake levels of about 21 percent, three of the region's eight monitoring wells with water levels below 30 percent of normal, and just 17 percent of average precipitation. By then, our region was already in Level 3 drought, and those levels got worse in November, although the monthly data wasn't yet online by deadline. October's report is here: <https://www.mass.gov/doc/2024-october-hydrologic-conditions/download>.

Out in the woods, those issue manifest as trails so dry as to be dust or sand, most smaller streams and many wetlands being completely waterless, major brooks being very low, lakes and ponds having notably low shorelines, and all of the leaf litter, dead plants and other ground material being extremely dry.

Regarding health issues, the Department of Public Health is tracking air quality from smoke, both due to local fires and that drifting from elsewhere in North America. Meg Blanchett said those most at risk are people under age five or over 65, pregnant people, those who may not speak English and don't get messages in their languages, those who work and exercise outdoors, and those with various health concerns. Among the ways to reduce risk are to create a filtered “clean air room” in the house or to use N95 masks.

Dr Marissa Hauptman said the agency has not yet issued any health alerts for the drought itself, but did have “a lot of extreme heat alerts” this summer and a “wildfire smoke alert” on Oct. 29. Those went to about 43,000 recipients, including hospitals and Boards of Health.

DCRSD reassessing three-year District Plan

BY JASON BLEAU
CORRESPONDENT

DUDLEY/CHARLTON — The Dudley-Charlton Regional School District (DCRSD) is beginning to reassess its three-year plan to build off the success of the last three years while also establishing goals to help the district continue to progress.

During a School Committee meeting in November DCRSD Assistant Superintendent Kelly True provided insight into how the district has embraced the existing District Plan while also examining how the new plan may continue those efforts or introduce new ones into the district's long-term goals for success. The existing plan was approved in 2022, and contained three main goals: strengthening the continuum of learning by providing access and opportunities to all students, strengthening systematic practices and processes improving student achievement and outcomes, and strengthening family and community engagement, partnerships, and communication. True said she feels the district has made great strides towards accomplishing all three of those goals.

"We're going to be developing a new district plan based on where we are with these three goals. This will kind of feed into what our new district plan is, and we'll look at aligning our new district plan with DESI's (Massachusetts Department of Elementary and Secondary Education) new vision that they came out with and what DESI's plan and vision is so that we're aligned from DESI's vision to the district's vision to the school improvement plans all the way down so that we're in alignment and we're all kind of rowing in the same direction, which is the important part," said True.

Looking at each of the existing goals in the plan, True said their mission to strengthen the continuum of learning has included the embrace of universal design learning, reduced reliance on academic support classes, development of therapeutic learning classrooms, increased staffing and improved specialized support, and added support for academic and behavioral needs among other enhancements. The district hopes the new plan will continue to build a framework to support teacher development and increase family engagements. The second goal, strengthening systematic practices and processes improving student achievement and outcomes, has been supported by added instructional supports and interventions attendance, recovery initiatives, data-driven instruction and benchmarking, creating academic and behavioral consistency across the schools in the district, and creating structured support blocks and enrichment programs and professional collaborations and continuous improvement. Future plans will include ways to refine the district's practices for instructional support teams to help provide interventions to students and enhance numerous systems. The third goal of strengthening family and community engagement has seen the district prioritize fostering meaningful connections between schools, families and the broader community by developing new partnerships and engagement opportunities, increasing student internships and transitional job placements, and building on community participation workshops and programs like High Five Fridays to bridge the gap between the school district and the communities at large. They district hopes to expand on its internship programs to include more outside opportunities and maintain a districtwide community calendar for parents and other community members to stay in the know on what's happening.

While all three goals have shown great success over the years, True said there's always room for continued improvement which will be the focus of the new plan.

"Our goal remains to strengthen the continuum of learning by providing all students access to the many opportunities we provide, improving achievement outcomes for all learners and fostering deeper community engagement. These priorities will remain central to our collective efforts as we evolve and refine our approach to learning and teaching ensuring that each student is supported and empowered to succeed in the Dudley Charlton Schools and beyond," said True.

As the district begins to form its new plan, True wants the focus to be on both sustaining what they've build and looking ahead to creating new opportunities and be proactive for the next steps to solidify the district's progress. The new district plan is expected to be finalized in 2025.

Hi! My name is Tommy

Tommy is a very active and curious toddler. His beautiful smile is a magnet that draws in meaningful connections. He loves engaging with others and is described as a "ray of sunshine". Tommy has a tracheal tube, but it does not prevent him from walking, running, and playing with the aid of his yellow backpack which supports his G-tube feedings. He has a fraternal twin sister who he looks forward to spending time with.

Can I Adopt?

If you're at least 18 years old, have a stable source of income, and room in your heart, you may be a perfect match to adopt a waiting child. Adoptive parents can be single, married, or partnered; experienced or not; renters or homeowners; LGBTQ+ singles and couples. As an adoptive parent, you won't have to pay any fees, adoption from foster care is completely free in Massachusetts.

The process to adopt a child from foster care includes training, interviews, and home visits to determine if adoption is right for you. These steps will help match you with a child or sibling group that your family will fit well with.

To learn more about adoption from foster care visit www.mareinc.org. Massachusetts Adoption Resource Exchange (MARE) can give you guidance and information on the adoption process. Reach out today to find out all the ways you can help children and teens in foster care.

Turtles bring wisdom from 280 million years ago

STURBRIDGE — Turtles are among the oldest surviving animals on Earth, almost identical to fossils traced back before the age of Dinosaurs. Although they're everywhere except Antarctica, most of their species are here in North America, hence the Native name "Turtle Island."

Many of them are endangered, in part by the speed of human life.

Back in 2008, injured turtles on our roadways gave Natasha Nowick and Alexxia Bell their "calling." From a start ferrying them to Tufts in Grafton, they came to realize they could tap their own experience fixing things to be turtle doctors, and turned their Southbridge home into a rehab hospital. In the process, they've built a still-growing network of turtle rescuers across multiple states and have come to imbibe the lessons turtles can teach about time and life.

"Life isn't about racing from point to point. It's a cycle that repeats itself," Nowick said.

To her, adopting that view will make humans "healthier, happier and in most ways more harmonious creatures."

Many of those ideas were distilled into Sy Montgomery's book "Of Time and Turtles," which profiles their Turtle Rescue League journey. The book inaugurated Joshua Hyde Library's new Opacum nature book group last week.

"This book has changed people's perspective on who a turtle is, not what a turtle is," TRL's secretary Michaela Conder observed.

Having it in print "does a lot of good across the country, and in other countries as well."

"We all look at turtles as mindless functions," but they have personalities, book group leader Tim Loftus said.

Nowick agreed wholeheartedly, adding "We are talking about a wisdom built generation to generation that goes back 280 million years. ... they don't need anybody to teach them how to smell water," swim, find food, find brumation or egg-laying spots, or any of the other things they need to live.

"They have their grandparents whispering to them in a very literal sense," she added.

Later, she noted one of their goals is to "take the snapping turtle and remove the monster from it," since too many people think they'll attack children and the like. (Bell said there's "no incidents of a snapping biting a person in

Actually, they don't just do turtles, but also their kin, tortoises. Bell noted turtles have to have access to water, but tortoises may never even see it.

The two of them and Conder brought a few such friends who became stars of the book with them — Mr. Swimmy, an Eastern painted turtle, Velcro, a snapping turtle, and Pizza Man, a red-footed tortoise. All three are permanent residents of their home now, since they can't be released to the wild. Mostly, that's because they were originally raised in captivity for the illegal pet trade (Pizza Man's species is from the Amazon). In Velcro's case, his brain injury also makes survival in the wild very unlikely. (She also noted captive turtles often have bacteria that can kill wild ones.)

Loftus cited an article from October in which a woman was caught smuggling 24 box turtles into Canada. "People believe wood turtles make great pets ... but you can't tell a turtle's sick until they're pretty much dead," he said.

Bell agreed, saying if people want a pet turtle, they should foster one instead of buying it. They've had people break in to steal their animals.

Conder said they do not post images on social media or elsewhere (except a few on their website) and don't indicate where they release them. Bell later added that if people find endangered turtles, they should not post about it online, but should contact the state.

Bell said they're able to return about 65 percent of their patients to the wild; Conder noted their license allows them to keep some they can't return for educational purposes.

But sometimes they don't get that choice. When Bell goes down into their basement in the morning to check on her patients and finds one dead, the hardest part is "having to say goodbye so many times." She later noted "Some of the turtles we get are just about literally pancakes."

Nowick agreed, but said, "You don't count the defeats. You count the victories."

She said turtles see the world very differently from humans. "They can't literally fathom what's coming," and do not see people (or other hazards) until right in front of them.

Likewise, they're very slow breeders — a female snapper, for example, takes 20 years to reach breeding age and 20-40 years thereafter to reproduce herself because each egg has just a one in 1,440 chance of surviving to adulthood, she said. "All of them count because none of them breed fast enough to replace [themselves in] their fragmented habitat."

Opacum Director Laney Wilder said she worked in the Mojave Desert with tortoises and was struck by the fact "you're watching me."

She also noted, "I have a soft spot for snappers because they're ancient and primordial-looking."

Loftus has also been in the field with turtles, and observed that saving them also helps save other lifeforms, including some plants.

Nowick said turtle rescue "is always about continuing education." Neither of them studied turtles in school but have read a lot of science and medical articles. Nowick went to WPI for mechanical engineering, while Bell's background is as a general fix-it person, running a repair business.

"I've been taking some of my techniques of fixing other things and applying them to turtles," Bell said, noting they were her first biological repair project.

Later, she added, "... I've worked with turtles who were over a century old, and with turtles who were seconds old, born in my hand."

Rediscovering the lost art of handwritten recipes

In an era of digital convenience and instant gratification, some of life's most cherished traditions are quietly slipping away. Among these, the art of handwritten recipes. These are a tangible connection to the flavors of our past, the love of our grandmothers, and the warmth of family gatherings. In a world dominated by cooking apps and online recipe repositories, the simple act of putting pen to paper to share culinary secrets seems almost archaic. Yet, it's precisely this nostalgia and intimacy that make handwritten recipes a lost art worth preserving.

Handwritten recipes are more than just a list of ingredients and instructions; they are pieces of culinary history, infused with the personality and heritage of those who penned them. Each smudged, stained, and dog-eared card or piece of paper tells a story, a tale of generations passing down family traditions, the evolution of tastes and preferences, and the love and care that goes into creating a homemade meal.

The act of writing out a recipe by hand is an act of devotion. It's a moment where the cook imparts their wisdom, tips, and variations to the next in line. The penmanship, the flourishes, and the personal notes ("This one's always a hit at family gatherings!") add a layer of character that cannot be replicated by sterile digital text.

One of the most remarkable aspects of handwritten recipes is their adaptability. They are not bound by the limitations of standardized formats and measurements. Instead, they encourage creativity and experimentation. A pinch of this, a handful of that, and a dash of love, these imprecise yet heartfelt instructions allow each generation to put their own spin on the family classics, ensuring that the recipes remain dynamic and relevant.

In an age where convenience often trumps sentimentality, it's easy to overlook the value of preserving handwritten recipes. But as we flip through fading recipe cards and rediscover the treasures hidden in old recipe boxes, we are reminded that these handwritten culinary heirlooms are more than just instructions; they are a link to our past, a source of inspiration, and hold tradition.

WAYNE TUISKULA

Greece back in 500 BC. Thankfully, that practice ended, and auctions have evolved into a tried-and-true method for selling everything from diamond rings to factory buildings. I'll focus on antiques, collectibles, and estate auctions in today's column.

There are many reasons why people sell items at auction. One of the top reasons is that

Buying and selling at auction

Auctions had an inauspicious start when brides were first auctioned in competitive bidding is an effective way to get fair market value for items. Auctions help a consignor do their due diligence if they have a financial obligation to an estate or trust.

For the types of auctions that we run, we're typically contacted by estate personal representatives or attorneys. The representative may request that we appraise an estate for IRS or Probate. However, we're typically contacted to see which estate items may be a good fit for our auctions. We handle higher valued items of all types ranging from smaller antiques and collectibles like gold jewelry to larger items like vintage automobiles. Of course, not everything in a home is antique, collectible, or valuable. There are other auction companies that sell pretty much everything in a home from a sofa to pots and pans. Sometimes we handle the more valuable items and offer suggestions to the seller for the rest.

There are of course

Which IRA is right for you?

NIELSEN

The individual retirement account (IRA) is celebrating its golden anniversary. Created in 1974, this savings vehicle has helped millions of people build resources for retirement. And in 1997, the Roth IRA was introduced. But which IRA is right for you?

Let's look at the basic differences between the two IRAs. With a traditional IRA, you generally invest pretax dollars, so the more you put in, the lower your taxable income. Your earnings grow tax deferred, meaning you pay no taxes on them until you start taking withdrawals. (If you take withdrawals before you reach 59 and a half, you'll be subject to ordinary income tax and a 10 percent IRA penalty.)

When you invest in a Roth IRA, your contributions aren't deductible, but they can be withdrawn at any time, tax- and penalty-free. And you can typically withdraw your earnings on these contributions tax free once you're 59 and a half and you've had your account at least five years. (If you don't meet these conditions, withdrawals of earnings are subject to income taxes and the 10 percent penalty.)

So, are you better off by taking the immediate tax break offered by a traditional IRA or the long-term benefits of tax-free withdrawals available with a Roth IRA?

If you think you'll be in a higher tax bracket when you retire, you might want to consider a Roth IRA, especially if you have a long time until retirement. This will give you more opportunities to put away funds that can be withdrawn tax free. Conversely, if you think you might be in a lower tax bracket upon retirement, you might lean toward a traditional IRA, as you'd get the tax benefits now, when you're in a higher bracket, and can eventually make your taxable withdrawals when you're in a lower one.

Here's something else to keep in mind: Once you turn 73 (or 75 if you were born in 1960 or later), you must start taking taxable withdrawals — technically called required minimum distributions, or RMDs — from your traditional IRA. But if you have a Roth IRA, you won't face RMDs and can essentially keep the money in your account indefinitely. If you don't need all the funds in your Roth IRA for your retirement, you can pass them on to your heirs.

Ultimately, though, your income may determine which IRA is right for you. You can earn any amount and contribute to a traditional IRA, though if you exceed certain income limits, your contributions may no longer be tax deductible. If you and your spouse don't have a 401(k) or other retirement plan through your employers, you can make a full, deductible contribution to a traditional IRA regardless of your income.

But you may not be able to contribute to a Roth IRA, or at least not make the full maximum annual contributions, if your income is above certain levels. Your tax advisor can explain these levels, which often increase from year to year. (In 2024, the most you can contribute to either IRA, depending on your income, is $7,000 per year, or $8,000 if you're 50 or older.)

Under some circumstances, you can convert a traditional IRA to a Roth IRA, though you'll need to pay taxes on the conversion. In any case, think carefully about your options and make the choices that are appropriate for your needs.

TO THE EDITOR

I admit, I'm a commoner

To the Editor:

I am a firm believer in common courtesy, common decency and common sense. Though these values are in short supply at the national level these days, it seems more important for us to practice them at the local level.

So why do I bring this up now? Because we have an issue in Charlton that needs our attention.

A couple of years ago, some residents who care about our town joined a Government Study Committee, volunteered countless hours researching where our town government could use improvement, presented their key findings and recommendations to the Selectboard and were ignored for a year. The top recommendation was that the Town Clerk should no longer be an elected official, but appointed. The person who runs all of our elections, not just the town elections or the primaries or the state elections or the mid-terms, or even the Presidential election, is chosen via a popularity contest of a few hundred voters out of over 10,000. Common sense tells us that the decision to act upon this crucial position should have been addressed in a timely manner.

There are many reasons why it is important for the Town Clerk to be made an appointed position.

The Study Group recommended that due to the technicalities of the job and the requirements to meet state law, the Clerk must be a professional manager. The Town Clerk is the only remaining full time department head that must be elected. No other department head can hold their position without being interviewed and vetted to be sure they hold the proper qualifications. The current Town Clerk has expressed the difficulty someone would encounter running an election with today's requirements and no experience and she is firmly in favor of making it an appointed position. Also, an election requirement brings the threat of job loss to the clerk every three years, and would likely deter good, qualified candidates from running. It should strike fear in all of us as voters that if someone unqualified were to win, it would bring the potential for chaos and legal ramifications to the town. In addition an Assistant Town Clerk is not elected and has no path for promotion and if he/she is not a town resident cannot run for Town Clerk. This added impact to the town is the inability to potentially hire the most likely qualified successor should the Town Clerk's position open up. The risks to the town during an election are both legal and financial and the liabilities are real. The public tends to vote for people they like, not who is actually qualified and the Town Clerk is the one person who is solely responsible for what goes on in that office. Just because we have been lucky up to this point does not mean we should ignore common sense. The most qualified person should always hold this position.

Our Select Board seems to be more interested in being the "deciders" than doing what is best for our town. They ignored this recommendation for a year, until finally the scutlebutt was "Who wants to waste their time on committees when they just ignore you?" Finally, this got the issue back on the agenda of the Nov. 12 Select Board meeting. I highly recommend watching it, and not just the second half when the Clerk's position was discussed on youtube.com/c/TVCharltonMass. The discussion regarding replacing the Fire Chief was also eye opening and a glaring contradistinction to the Clerk discussion.

During the exchange about the Clerk one of the most egregious statements ever made by a Charlton Select Board member, the Chair no less, was uttered. The Chair made an outrageous threat to suspend the meeting due to another board member being unable to quickly and clearly express himself. That was a personal attack due to some clear animus between them. However putting aside the tenets of common courtesy and common decency, his attack on us as voters was much more insidious.

It was determined that at this point, the fastest way to get this resolved "by the people," before the present Clerk retires or must run again, is to have a Special Town Meeting in the Spring, 60 days before the Town Election. The Chair made it clear he is against the recommendation regarding the Clerk, which is irrelevant for it should be up to "we the people". But he is also against allowing the people of Charlton the opportunity to decide in a timely manner, if at all. He said he does not want a Special Town Meeting because they get "minimal participation." In addition to this also being irrelevant, his duty is to bring the question before us to decide, not to continually push off the issue because he does not want to do it. Shall we eliminate Annual Town Meeting or Fall Special Town Meeting as well because participation is often below 100 voters?

Ultimately the two choices are a Spring Special Town Meeting 60 days before the election in May 2025, or another year's delay. This means our current Town Clerk, who does an outstanding job and has 14 years of experience, could literally be on the same ballot for re-election in 2026 as the question of whether to make it an appointed position. If she were to not run or to lose and the vote is to appoint, do they appoint the winner of the election, qualified or not, or do they ignore the election and appoint someone else? Is this common sense? This must be resolved in Spring 2025 and it should be "we the people" who decide.

This board should not be making the decision for us by delaying indefinitely or possibly worse, voting to not even put it before us! If you truly believe in democracy, please contact our Selectboard and make it clear that you want your right to exercise a vote on this matter; and in the most timely manner, via a Spring Special Town Meeting. Growing moth orchids for months of beauty

Add exotic long-lasting orchid blossoms to your indoor garden. These living bouquets provide months of beauty with minimal care. Just provide the proper growing conditions and success is sure to follow.

The moth or phalaenopsis orchid is the one best adapted to your home environment, making it the easiest to grow. It thrives in the same temperatures as people with night temperatures in the 60s and 70 to 80 degrees during the day. However, avoid hot and cold air drafts that can stress the plants and cause bud and flower drop.

Moth orchids are epiphytes, growing on but not parasitizing trees and other plants. They obtain water and nutrients from the air, rainwater, and plant debris that accumulate in their environment. They can be mounted on a board but usually are grown in an orchid mix made of peat, fir bark, and perlite. This or a similar combination retains water while providing needed drainage.

Place your plant in a bright location near an east, west- or slightly shaded south-facing window. Your orchid will do best when it receives 12 to 14 hours of sunlight daily. Enlist the help of artificial lights if your orchids are struggling when natural light, especially during winter, is insufficient. Newer full-spectrum LED lights are more affordable, require less energy, and are longer lasting than the grow lights of the past.

Give your orchid a good watering about once a week with room temperature water just as the planting mix starts to dry. Pour off any excess water that collects in the saucer. Don't allow orchids to sit in water and don't water too often as this can lead to root rot and death of your plant.

Fertilize actively growing and flowering plants every third or fourth watering. Use an orchid plant fertilizer according to label directions. Skip winter fertilization if temperatures are cooler, sunlight is limited, and the plants are not putting on new growth.

Improve the environment even more by increasing the humidity around the plant. Group them with other orchids and indoor plants. As one plant loses moisture, or "transpires," the others will benefit from the increase in humidity. Plus, you'll create a beautiful display while improving the growing conditions.

Or increase the humidity around your plants with humidity or gravel trays. Place pebbles in the saucer and set the pot on top of the pebbles. Allow excess water to collect in the pebbles below the pot. As the water evaporates it increases the humidity around your plant. It also eliminates the need to pour off the excess water that collects in the saucer.

You won't need to repot your orchid for quite a while. Wait to repot it until it is done blooming, the potting mix has broken down or the plant becomes pot bound. This is usually about every 18 to 24 months.

Enjoy a second flush of flowers with cool nights and proper post-flowering care. Leave the flower stem intact and the plant may produce a second flush of smaller blooms at the tip of the stem. Or you can cut the flower stem back between the second and third node from the bottom. For the best rebloom and to allow the plant to replenish energy spent on flowering, prune the flower stem back to about one-half inch above the leaves and enjoy a second flush of flowers in about a year.

And if reblooming your orchid is too much work, treat it like a long-lasting bouquet. And if you can't stand to toss or compost it, give it to an avid gardener. There's always someone willing to adopt and try to rebloom your plant.

Choosing a Holiday Tree

Now that Thanksgiving is in the rear mirror, many people are getting a head start on Christmas this year, and that means putting up the holiday tree. When it comes to choosing a trim worthy tree, for many the choice is steeped in tradition, for others, the question becomes whether to pick a fresh or artificial one. When determining which Christmas tree to choose, many factors come into play. Read on for some interesting information, as well as our annual guide to choosing a fresh tree.

Undecided on a real or artificial tree this year? The American Christmas Tree Association offers the following facts that could help you decide:

Allergies: If allergies are preventing you from going with a fresh tree, you should know the burst of warm weather in April and May triggers the reproduction cycle in many plant species, including tree species commonly used as Christmas trees. But by late November and early December, when such trees are harvested, pollen production has long since ceased. This means that most people with pollen allergies will not be bothered by real trees, except for those are sensitive enough to be bothered by trace amounts.

However, if you find yourself sneezing, or with an itchy nose or asthma symptoms when you bring in a fresh tree, According to the American Academy of Allergy Asthma and Immunology, you are likely allergic to mold spores in the tree, not the tree itself. The AAAAI advises to let it dry for a week in your garage or enclosed porch and then shake it thoroughly before bringing it inside. Try using a leaf blower on the tree outside to help rid it of unwelcome particles. A high-performance air purifier in the same room as the Christmas tree can also help keep mold spores in check.

Or, if you're more ambitious, the best way to deal with any dust, molds and fungi lingering in a fresh tree is by cleaning the tree before you bring it into your home. Use your garden hose to spray down the tree, and then leave the tree somewhere warm to dry for about 24 hours. Once it's dry, then you can bring it into your home. Again, as an added precaution, you can try running an air purifier in the room where the tree is located.

Additionally, there is a very small percentage of the population that is allergic to tree sap. In this case, the only real solution is to only purchase artificial trees for your home, and avoid close proximity to real Christmas trees.

Environmental Impact: If you're leaning toward an artificial tree, but concerned about the environmental impact of artificial trees, note this: Several years ago, PE International, a consulting company that studies environmental sustainability in numerous industries, did an analysis of the environmental impact of artificial Christmas trees, versus real trees. The study found that, depending on how a real tree is disposed of, an artificial tree would only have to be used for 3.6 to 4 years before there was a net benefit with regard to contribution to global warming. This means that if a household uses an artificial tree

CCUMC adding Bear Den to Dec. 7 'Season of Joy' Fair

CHARLTON — The Bear Den is a new addition to this year's Season of Joy Fair at the Charlton City United Methodist Church, 74 Stafford St., Charlton. It is stocked with collectible stuffed bears, most with a year sewn into a paw and many with their original tags. Our other booths will be returning also.

Look for gifting ideas, or new to you Christmas decorations in Gramma's attic, and handmade pillows and hot pads at the Craft Table. The Jewelry Table has some great finds for your holiday and everyday wardrobe accents. The Silent Auction will include gift cards and items ranging from essential oils to outdoor adventure. And of course, the fair would not be complete without our Baked Goods Table and by-the-pound Cookie Corner. There will be a few outside vendors as well. A soup and sandwich luncheon will also be available.

A tithing portion of the proceeds will support heating fuel assistance for local seniors, the United Methodist Committee on disaster relief agency (UMCOR), and Abby's House in Worcester. Join in the Joy of the Season from 9 a.m.-2 p.m. The church has plenty of parking and is fully handicapped accessible.

has been filed by Rina Z. Folman of Leominster MA requesting that the Court enter a formal Decree and Order and for such other relief as requested in the Petition.

The Petitioner requests that:
Rina Z. Folman of Leominster MA be appointed as Personal Representative(s) of said estate to serve Without Surety on the bond in unsupervised administration.

IMPORTANT NOTICE

You have the right to obtain a copy of the Petition from the Petitioner or at the Court. You have a right to object to this proceeding. To do so, you or your attorney must file a written appearance and objection at this Court before: 10:00 a.m. on the return day of 12/17/2024

This is NOT a hearing date, but a deadline by which you must file a written appearance and objection if you object to this proceeding. If you fail to file a timely written appearance and objection followed by an affidavit of objections within thirty (30) days of the return day, action may be taken without further notice to you.

UNSUPERVISED ADMINISTRATION UNDER THE MASSACHUSETTS UNIFORM PROBATE CODE (MUPC)
A Personal Representative appointed under the MUPC in an unsupervised administration is not required to file an inventory or annual accounts with the Court. Persons interested in the estate are entitled to notice regarding the administration directly from the Personal Representative and may petition the Court in any matter relating to the estate, including the distribution of assets and expenses of administration.

WITNESS, Hon. Leilah A. Keamy, First Justice of this Court.

Antiques

many other reasons why people might decide to auction their items. They may be downsizing. They may have inherited things that they don't collect and would like to convert those items into cash. Consignors often have items of value like gold jewelry, sterling silver, or coins that they don't want anymore. Peoples' tastes change and they may no longer want the old painting that hung in their living room. People often tell me that they are getting older and their families have no interest in their belongings, therefore leading them to auctions.

Auctions can be online or live. We were unable to run live auctions during the pandemic and switched to all online auctions. This has expanded our reach to bidders across the world, but other auc-tioneers are still finding success running live auctions.

Bidders can search multiple websites including liveauctioneers.com, invaluable.com, auctionninja.com, hibid.com, bidsquare.com, and others to find items that they collect.

There are tools available for online bidders. Many online auction sites offer bidders the ability to create a want list. They can enter search terms for whatever they collect. For example, you could enter "Waltham gold pocket watches" and get an email when watches meeting your criteria are being sold. If you see something that you like, many sites will allow you to follow that item and receive an email or text when your auction item is about to be sold. If it is something that you really want, you can place a proxy bid. You enter the maximum amount that you are willing to pay such as $500. The bidding is competitive so you may get outbid, but you might also win it for less than your $500 bid. Whether you're a consignor or a bidder, hopefully you'll be a winner at auction.

We are currently cataloging a large collection of Civil War memorabilia from a local estate as well as running an antique auction in a Beacon Hill Boston estate. We are accepting consignments of all types for future auctions. Please visit our Web site, <https://centralmassauctions.com>, for links to upcoming events.

Shirley A. Washburn, 87

Shirley A. Washburn, 87, of Coldwater passed away on November 18, 2024, at Maple Lawn of Coldwater.

Cremation has taken place, there will be no services held at this time. Arrangements are being cared for by Dutcher Funeral Home.

Shirley was born September 25, 1937, to Leo E. and Claire M. (McGrath) Savage in South Bridge, Massachusetts.

Shirley spent many years working as a waitress in many restaurants. One of her favorites was a bed and breakfast in Massachusetts where she worked for nearly 10 years.

Shirley enjoyed many things including reading and crocheting. She was very passionate as a practicing Catholic. In most of her free time Shirley looked forward to being able to spend time with her family, especially her many grandchildren and great-grandchildren.

Shirley is survived by her children Frank Washburn of Florida; Sharon (Paul) Hakkarainen of Union City; Deborah (Gene) Ruth of Union City; Pamela Washburn of Ware, Massachusetts; her brother Leo Savage of Coldwater; her grandchildren Jaqueline Smith; Jessica Washburn; Nicole Chandler; Justin Wagoner; Hector Peterson; 11 great grandchildren; 1 great great grandchild and many loving nieces and nephews.

Shirley was preceded in death by Frank Washburn; Roger Savage; and Richard Savage.

Memorials may be directed to the Disabled Veterans Association. www.dutcherfh.com.

Craig D. Laliberte, 54

Sturbridge: Craig D. Laliberte, 54, passed away on Wednesday, Oct. 30th, from injuries sustained in an automobile accident in Woodstock, CT.

He leaves his wife, Janine A. (Adamo) Laliberte and her two daughters, Madeline Lancour and Riley Lancour, all of Sturbridge; his parents, David and Diane (Rondeau) Laliberte of Manheim, PA; his two sisters, Sara Laliberte of LaPlace, LA and Karen Santilli and her husband James of Woodstock, CT; his nephew, Anthony Santilli; his niece, Rachel Santilli; and his great nephew, Jayden Santilli. He was born in Southbridge and was a graduate of the former Marianhill High School in Southbridge. Craig was a US Army Veteran of the Desert Storm War.

Craig owned and operated the Marine Service Center in Southbridge for 15 years. He previously worked for USA Marine in Worcester and for his father's company, Southbridge Steel and Machine Sales.

A funeral Mass for Craig will be held on Friday, Dec. 6th, at 11:00am in St. Mary's Church of the St. John Paul II Parish, 263 Hamilton St., Southbridge. Burial will follow in New Notre Dame Cemetery, Southbridge. There are no calling hours.

In lieu of flowers, donations may be made to Warriors Heart Healing, which supports Active Military, Veterans, and First responders. Donations in Craig's name may be sent online at <https://frontlinehealingfoundation.org>

Stephen Francis Bennett Sr. 87

Indianapolis, IN/Southbridge: Stephen Francis Bennett Sr. 87, passed away on November 13, 2024, in Indianapolis, IN. Born on August 28, 1937 in Worcester Massachusetts, Stephen lived a life marked by devotion to his family.

He is survived by his devoted wife and caregiver, Kathleen M. Bennett of Indianapolis, IN; his beloved children; Stephen F. Bennett Jr. and his wife Donna of Myrtle Beach, SC, Julie C. Carmel and her husband Cliff of Sturbridge, Deborah J. Boiteau and her husband Wayne of Southbridge, his stepchildren, Michelle M. and Carolyn A. Carnes, his sister-in-law Carol A. and the late Robert F. Carter of Bethel Park, PA, Brother-in-Law Gary L. and his wife Rhonda A. Hurbanek of Poolesville, MD. Steve also leaves his grandchildren Kevin, Renee, Ashley, Gabrielle, Luc, Lauren, Jamie, Christen, Nicolas, Benjamin, Aidan and Dylan, and great grandchildren Logan, Noah, Lyle, Rylee, Oscar, Grace, Bennett, Samuel and Lucy. He also leaves several nieces and nephews.

Steve was predeceased by his parents, Leon and Agnes Bennett, his three sisters; Mary, Muriel and Marilyn, his Irish twin brother Leon Jr., his parents-in-law Louis J. and Florence M. Hurbanek of Pittsburgh PA.

Steve attended Auburn, MA schools where he was an outstanding student athlete. He was recruited by many Ivy League Universities, and was appointed to West Point. He decided to attend Boston College with his brother Leon on full football scholarships where he obtained his Bachelor's degree in Accounting. While at Boston College he was a member of the ROTC program, becoming a Second Lieutenant in the US Army. He then received his Master's Degree in Education from Worcester State College and taught and coached football for the town of Auburn. After working in the family business, B&B Electric, he dedicated over 30 years to American Optical, Cabot/Aearo Safety. Steve volunteered for many years for Pop Warner Football and created a love for the game in any young man that played for him. His Red/White/Blue offense is cemented in their memories.

Steve had a love for travel and used a motor home to cross the country; he was one of few that can say they visited all 50 US States. Steve completed the Boston Marathon twice in his 50's and was an avid fan of New England Sports teams, especially the Patriots. He attended many Indy 500 races and excelled at playing golf. He was always up for a spirited conversation about sports or politics and his family-famous phrases will never be forgotten.

The family would also like to thank Dr. Caitlyn Baxter and the ICU team at IU Methodist Hospital for the care and support during Steve's final days.

Calling hours for Stephen will be held on Saturday, November 30th, from 10:00am to 1:00pm in the Daniel T. Morrill Funeral Home, 130 Hamilton St., Southbridge, with a funeral service to follow at 1:00pm in the funeral home. Burial in Pine Grove Cemetery will be private.

In lieu of flowers, donations may be made to Tunnel to Towers Foundation, 2361 Hylan Boulevard, Staten Island, NY 10306.

Mary Margaret Mailhot, 86

WEBSTER - Mary Margaret (Wehan) Mailhot, 86, of Webster, died peacefully in her sleep on Friday, November 15, 2024. She was predeceased by her husband of 66 years, Raymond John Mailhot who died on October 1, 2024; and her sisters, Elva Wehan and Rosann Bojarski of Erie, PA. She is survived by three daughters, Brenda Jeffries of Auburn, Kathryn DiGiandomenico and her husband Paul of Mansfield, and Patricia Barry and her husband Thomas of Oxford; a brother, Albert Wehan of Erie, PA, five grandchildren and five great-grandchildren.

She was born in Erie, PA, daughter of the late Albert and Anna (Rutkowski) Wehan. She was a graduate of Academy Catholic High School in Erie. One of her proudest moments was traveling to California with her high school marching band to perform in the Rose Bowl Parade.

Mary was an U.S. Air Force veteran. She met her husband Ray while stationed in Charleston, SC, at the same time he was serving in the U.S. Navy. They were married in Charleston, and it remained one of their favorite destinations.

Mary was very social and remained active throughout her life, going to the gym daily and attending Tai-Chi classes. She had a spirited personality and was always the life of the party. Together with her husband they would often "steal the show" with their humorous antics and contagious laughter.

Mary was an exceptionally thoughtful and creative woman remembering every holiday and special event with lovely homemade gifts and heartfelt cards.

Her favorite places included Ocean Beach in New London, CT, Charleston, SC, and Lake Manchaug in Sutton where she spent summers for 43 years. Her world centered around her beloved family and her Catholic faith.

The family would like to express their sincere gratitude to the caretakers at Lanessa Extended Care in Webster who adored Mary and cared for her with love and compassion.

Services will be held privately. Burial will be in West Sutton Cemetery in Sutton.

In lieu of flowers, memorial contributions may be made to Catholic Charities Worcester County, 10 Hammond Street, Worcester, MA 01610.

Paradis-Givner Funeral Home in Oxford is directing the arrangements.

and Friday from 10-11:15 a.m., but serves 600-700 people from about 170 families - sometimes 25 families in one hour.

"People think it's the homeless, but it's working couples who have three or four children and can't make ends meet," volunteer Louise Majewski said.

Indeed, according to Project Bread's Web site, hunger has been increasing statewide lately. "Prior to the pandemic, household food insecurity in Massachusetts was at 8.2 percent," it states. "The coronavirus pandemic fueled a hunger crisis unlike any other in our lifetime, at its peak rendering 19.5 percent of households food insecure. While the current rate of food insecurity is lower than at the height of the pandemic, too many households are still struggling with food access, and a return to pre-pandemic rates is not an option."

Later, that page notes, "Approximately, 17.9 percent of all households in Massachusetts reported food insecurity in February 2024," but that rate is 22.9 percent of all families with kids and 34.5 percent of Latino households with kids.

"There's been a big uptick in the number of people we're serving," Kathy Van Camp said.

Sometimes, that requires the volunteers to visit the Worcester

County Food Bank (its primary food source) twice a month. Most of that food is supplied by the USDA at a fairly low cost, but they also get some from area groceries, other stores, the Sturbridge Community Garden, some local organizations, and Pilot Truck Stop in Sturbridge, among other places.

Some is donated, but they buy $30,000-$35,000 in food a year and distribute 5,000-6,000 pounds of it every month.

Getting food to the pantry requires help, and Bouvier noted they "couldn't do it without the volunteers and the transport community."

They regularly get a donated truck for the day, plus several volunteers to fill it, roll the supplies down their conveyor belt to the door, and transfer them to storage. None of it sticks around very long; as longtime volunteer Catalino Alicea noted, "it all goes out the door."

Regarding Pilot, he added supplies can be quite random, often featuring lots of cookies. "If the truck stop calls at midnight, you go at midnight."

Lately, Food Share has been getting a lot of produce, but sometimes they don't have any, and that can be said for many specific foods. Sometimes, they get things recipients don't know what to do with; those people can return them or share them with others, Karen Engell said, citing lentils as an example.

At this point, they provide food based on family size, with Food Share staff selecting it, not the seekers.

"We'd love to have a shop, but don't really have the space," Engell said.

But they're trying to make things "more personal" and expand their ability to help people of various ethnicities. Recently, she noted, a woman speaking Arabic came in seeking help.

To address that, Town Manager Jack Jovan noted the town's health department recently started using portable translators and would hook Food Share up with their supplier.

Garland said Food Share's hours overlap those of the town's other pantry, St Vincent de Paul at St Mary's, so that people can get food four days a week. That pantry's open Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday.

Holy Trinity also hosts the ecumenical free coat closet, which gives away coats on Saturdays from the last Saturday of October through Dec. 14 from 9:30-11:30 a.m.

Bay Path nurse educator completes SIM workshop

WORCESTER — Bay Path Practical Nursing Academy full-time faculty Shannen Sherman, BSN, RN of Woodstock Valley, Conn. recently completed the workshop, Simulation Facilitation Training for Health Educators presented by the Massachusetts Rhode Island League for Nursing (MARILN) on Friday, Nov. 8 at the UMass Chan Medical School Tan Chingfen Graduate School of Nursing.

The goal of the Simulation Facilitation Training for Health Educators workshop is "to provide faculty and educators with succinct yet high quality training for faculty and educators before facilitating simulation."

From the MARILN Web site, the presenter, "Dr. Rose Kronziah-Seme PhD, MSN, RN, CHSE is an Assistant Professor of Nursing and the director of the Simulation and Lab of the Graduate Entry Pathway (GEP) Program at the Tan Chingfen Graduate School of Nursing. Dr. Kronziah-Seme received a B.S. in Nursing from Howard University and an M.S.N

and a Ph.D. in Nursing Education from Walden University. She has been involved in Nursing education and simulation since 2009 as a clinical instructor. She trained by the Train the Trainer program series called Maryland Faculty for Simulation Teaching (NSP11) in 2013. She was the simulation coordinator from 2012 to 2018 at Montgomery College and the co-chair of the Simulation Committee. Her dissertation topic is 'Faculty Competence in Facilitating Clinical Simulation,' a quantitative study that she undertook in Maryland. She also served as a Simulation Lab Support Facilitator, for the Maryland Clinical Simulation Resource Consortium. She is a Certified Healthcare Simulation Educator. She was a participant of the National League of Nursing Leadership Development for Simulation Educators cohort of 2017. She was an Assistant professor of nursing at Fitchburg State University where she led simulation integration, and faculty development during the COVID 19 period. She helped faculty find clinical simulation to replace clinical. She also led the conversion of the Fitchburg State Student Health Center to a Sim Center in the Spring 2021. As a director of the lab, she has collaborated with faculty and staff to meet student learning needs. She has presented on Simulation locally and internationally."

Professor Sherman is an accomplished RN leader experienced in complex medical care management, staff education and development, and collaborating with multidisciplinary teams. She completed her associate of science degree in nursing at Central Maine Medical Center College of Nursing and Health Professions in 2013 and her Bachelor of Science in Nursing degree at the University of Texas at Arlington College of Nursing in 2018. She is expected to complete her Master of Science in Nursing degree in 2026 at the Southern New Hampshire University. Professor Sherman is a Board-Certified Holistic Health Counselor and a Reiki Master/Teacher. She is committed to promoting optimal health and improving quality of life.

Hint

for at least 4 years, its carbon footprint (with regard to Christmas trees) will be smaller than that of a household that purchases a real tree every year.

In addition, the study found that with both real and artificial trees, no matter how they were ultimately disposed of, Christmas trees accounted for less than 0.1% of the average person's annual carbon footprint. This means that the environmental impact is negligible, and can easily be offset by other lifestyle changes, such as driving less, recycling more regularly, purchasing items that use less packaging, etc.

If a fresh cut tree is impractical, an artificial tree can be a good investment - if you choose wisely. Did you know a well made artificial tree can last a decade or more? Choose trees with many branch tips and multiple needles, thus creating a "fullness" that rivals the real deal. Look for easy to set up models with hinged branches for quick and easy set up. High end trees often come equipped with an abundance of lights. Make sure the tree stand is sturdy enough to hold a tree laden with heavy ornament and garlands. Lastly, consider a tree that can easily refold into a box or bag, for hassle free storage.

Read on for our annual guide to choosing a real tree:

Selecting a Christmas tree is a fun family tradition, but getting caught up in the festivities, one can overlook the requirements of a successful pick. The first thing to remember is in a lot or on a farm, a tree can look much smaller than it will in your home. Rule number one is to always bring a tape measure to ensure a proper fit.

When choosing a freshly cut evergreen, look for nice, even coloring throughout the tree with no signs of browning. Also, beware of brittle branches, which are another sign of an old tree that may not last the season in a heated home. Look for flexibility in a bough.

To test freshness, pick a needle and bend it. A fresh fir needle will snap; a fresh pine needle will bend, but not break. The old "shake tip" really reveals a tree's freshness. Simply shake from the trunk, or wave a bough and observe how many needles fall off. If it is more than several, keep looking.

Live trees balled with the root and wrapped in burlap or containers (a.k.a. balled and bagged trees) are a great choice if you plan on planting the tree after the holidays. The most important consideration with a balled and bagged tree is to make sure the tree species can thrive in your climate zone.

Once you've chosen a holiday tree, it's necessary to prep it for inside enjoyment. If you're using a cut tree, when you get home make a fresh cut at the base. This will help the tree better take up water. It pays to keep in mind that a properly watered tree will keep about a month inside. Be sure the water level above the base of the tree. To prevent fallen needles, add one of these to the base: three tablespoons glycerin; three tablespoons sugar, or a few crushed aspirin.

And after Christmas is over, the holiday tree will need to be properly disposed of. Check your city or town transfer stations for recycling options. Many municipalities recycle trees and grind them into mulch that is repurposed back into the community as such. Visit RecycleYourChristmas-Tree.com for more recycling options.

Tree preservatives are pricey. Mix up this homemade potion for pennies: Combine one quart of fresh warm water, a half cup of light corn syrup, and a teaspoon of liquid chlorine bleach in a two-gallon bucket. Fill the water reservoir with this solution.

How does it work? This mixture helps keep trees moist because fresh-cut trees, which absorb and digest corn syrup as an energy source, don't have to waste as much energy converting stored sugar. Therefore, they can focus on staying green and beautiful!

*Want your fresh tree to last longer? The lower the temperature and the higher the humidity, the longer your tree will last.

*Placement is also important. Avoid setting up a tree near a heat source or in front of a window that gets direct sun.

*Did you know? A freshly-cut tree can consume a gallon of water in 24 hours!

*Want to avoid a trail of fallen needles to the back door? Before you set up your tree, place a tree disposal bag around the base of the trunk prior to placing it in the stand. At the end of the season, simply pull the bag up over the entire tree.

*Check with your local transfer station or recycling center to find out if they offer a tree pick up.

*Going artificial this year? You can still mimic the fresh scent of balsam, simply by sprinkling your carpets with a pine scented carpet freshener before vacuuming. Since smell is the most potent of our senses, visitors to a house that smells like the holidays will feel doubly welcomed!

Bay Path Academy Director attends Books for Pinoy Foundation Gala

WARWICK, R.I. — Gretheline Bolandrina, DHA, MSN Ed, RN, CRRN of Athol (formerly of Dudley and Douglas), Academy Director at Bay Path Practical Nursing Academy in Charlton was joined by her husband, Joseph Bolandrina in the second annual Books for Pinoy Foundation (BFP) Nov. 9 Foundation Gala at University Ballroom of the Double Tree by Hilton. The mission of Books for Pinoy Foundation (<https://www.booksforpinoy.com/index.php>) is to build a library which will serve as a hub to different provinces in the Philippines. BFP is a 501c nonprofit organization 87-

1616616 designed to help educate children in the Philippines. BFP have been sending books to less fortunate children, schools, and libraries across the Philippines. BFP opened eight (8) libraries and have started taking applications to help other schools, libraries across the islands. BFP connects and works with different institutions in the USA including Bay Path Practical Nursing Academy to help facilitate collection of books, eBooks, and computers. BFP continues helping build libraries and explore the wonderful world of books.

Gretheline Bolandrina with the BFP backdrop. Joseph was the volunteer emcee for the event while Gretheline previously helped with the Authors Alley.

Gretheline stated, "The mission of BFP aligns with my belief in literacy advocacy and I fully support their efforts."

Funds raised at the Nov. 9 Foundation Gala help support BFP's literacy advocacy. Live music, dancing, photo booth, and fabulous prizes from raffles and silent auctions along with delicious food made for a memorable evening.

digital literacy, among other things.

"We're learning from you all where these 'pain points' are," she added.

By MBI's definition, broadband needs to be fixed or mobile, high speed and reliable for people needing to work or meet various personal needs, she said. That became particularly an issue during Covid-19, when many people were forced to work from home; some had to sit outside their local library or other location because their homes didn't have access.

"Here in Southbridge, we don't have a fence. We have the Great Wall," said Mike Marketti, the only councilor to attend.

He noted many people here don't have high-speed web, or they can't afford it due to lack of competition between providers. Specifically, he argued that people often "can't get it because Verizon won't come to this town," and he's spoken to several in public housing who can't get it at all.

The town has a contract with Spectrum (as most nearby do; it's a de facto regional monopoly), although Verizon does reportedly serve the AO complex and offer Wifi in town. Some people can also get satellite internet, and many do have iPhones.

Berger's colleague Bill Scully said that monopoly issue is something "we've seen in almost all towns," with prices often exceeding $100 a month for just "decent" service.

Berger noted many towns are seeing geographic and topographical coverage issues, which several participants cited in Southbridge. Among other things, some noted the Westville area has spotty service, as do other outlying neighborhoods. That can particularly be a concern for people worried about personal safety.

MBI representative Arianna Feeley said her agency some programs to help broaden access. One, the Wifi Access Initiative, provides "free, in-unit, broadband use" for public housing and units subsidized by state or federal money (<https://broadband.masstech.org/wifi-access-initiative>). Another, the Residential Retrofit Program, handles the hardware side of that effort by "addressing deficient wiring and infrastructure through grants for the deployment of fiberoptic cabling," according to the MBI website (<https://broadband.masstech.org/retrofit>).

Feeley said the ability for privately-owned one- and multi-family homes to meet those same goals is "one of the big gaps we have." She speculated about whether there might be "a single payer solution where the town could enter a contract" to do that, but that doesn't currently exist.

"People want high-speed Internet, and want it for free," Marketti said. "And they should be able to get it."

Indeed, that concept sparked some conversation over the idea of municipally-owned internet service and/or having the state treat the Web as a public utility. To Margaret Morrissey, the public realized the need to do that with water and sewer and found a way to fund it.

Peg Dean said the town is now working to put in a wide-area network for municipal buildings, and noted her hometown, Charlemont, built its own municipal fiber network. She suggested the town might be able to do that in certain sections, even if not town-wide.

Regarding devices, she said she sometimes sees people having issues with web service coming into her Town Hall office, but wasn't sure if the primary issue was cost or digital literacy. In some cases, it means bridging language, cultural and/or age concerns.

Katie Yoder noted digital literacy "often comes from your profession." Younger people typically learned it in school, but many elders didn't unless they had jobs requiring it. She said she often sees that with local contractors who need help to use the town's permitting software.

Morrissey said the library often does one on one training with people, something Berger said is quite common for libraries.

"How do we capture those who haven't grown up with it?" Berger asked.

She said her team has seen that in many towns, and expects to miss some people who lack devices or speak English as a second language.

To help address that and get more input, the MBI survey is still open. They are also seeking individual stakeholders in town to talk to about this issue. The survey's at https://mbicx.qualtrics.com/jfe/form/SV_bxTIMG-FVF8KjigC.

Scully said his firm aims to write its first draft of Southbridge's plan in January and complete the plan by late February.

forward with the proposal.

LaCroix, who has spent 14 years as an elected Town Clerk and is preparing for retirement, said she wants to see the town shift to an appointed position, rather than risking an election bringing someone less qualified to the job.

"It is the only full-time department head that has to be elected to their position. Fifteen years ago the Treasurer and Collector were separate positions, and they were also elected and that has changed. The Town Clerk is the only one left," said LaCroix. "I can't imagine it being acceptable that any other department head can have the position without being interviewed to be sure they have the proper experience and qualifications. Why should the Town Clerk be any different? It is a very important position and entails much more than just handing out a dog license. I believe most voters understand this, especially after the last four years of elections."

LaCroix added that keeping the position elected creates uncertainty around job security which could keep the most qualified candidates from seeking a position.

Members of the Government Study Committee also stated their case for making the change including Committee Chair Joseph Haebler.

"I think it's time to get into the professional era and have a Town Clerk that knows and continues to grow in the job, not only that knows the laws, but knows how to keep records. Besides the voting records, it's the town changes in bylaws and a lot of other material that she has to be in charge of," he said.

The proposal has received mixed reactions from Selectmen with some opposed to taking an election power away from the voters. Board of Selectman Chair Peter Lancette said the change would insinuate that the Board of Selectmen as the five-member hiring authority would know better than the town at large who is best to serve in the position.

"I think the public should be the one making the decision of who we want in the position. That's just me," said Lancette. "You could elect somebody for the Board of Selectmen that has no responsibility for that position. It's a liability out there with democracy in an open election."

Selectman David Singer also acknowledged that there is inherent risk regardless of how the Town Clerk it decided. "There's liability whether the Clerk is appointed or elected. I've personally witnessed mistakes made in the Clerk's office in this town and other towns. Whether we elect or appoint, there's no guarantee mistakes won't happen, I don't care who you put in there," said Singer. "For me, I'm not going to make my decision based on a worst-case scenario."

The proposal, or at least the idea of bringing it to the voters, also received support from several selectmen. Selectman Steven Koronis felt it was a change worth exploring. In support of his perspective, he noted how elections have evolved, the experience and expertise of the Government Study Committee who have recommended the change, and that bringing the matter to the public would actually support their power to vote.

"The debate against it is you want the ability of the voters to decide at a ballot who becomes Town Clerk. The will of the voters. Why don't you just put the will of the voters to a Town Meeting to take that away?" Koronis said.

Selectman Bill Borowski agreed with bringing the matter to the voters and letting them be the deciding factor on whether the Town Clerk should proceed as elected or appointed.

"I can't imagine us hiring a Finance Director by having an elected position. I would not feel comfortable in the least. The idea of someone not necessarily being qualified to run finances or the books, I don't see how that's very much different than the Town Clerk's position," he said.

There were also questions of how the process would play out to ensure that any change to the Town Clerk would take place before the position is up for reelection in 2026. Charlton essentially has one calendar year to complete any changes. Town Counsel clarified that full approval and implementation of a bylaw change will require a town meeting vote, ballot vote, and approval by the state in that order. At this time the earliest vote would take place during the May annual town meeting after the 2025 elections. Selectmen showed little interest in holding a special town meeting earlier to discuss the matter.

Selectman Borowski motioned to at least start the process of making a proposal for the 2025 annual town meeting that would consider a bylaw change for the Town Clerk position. The motion was approved by the majority of the board. Selectmen expect to discuss a roadmap for the proposal in upcoming meetings.
