Last week, the Webster Police Department wished Emma, its summer intern, farewell as she prepares to head back to school next week. Emma was a huge help to our Detective Bureau and played a big role in our Junior Police Academy, helping out all week. Deputy Chief Wentworth oversees our internship program and has done a phenomenal job ensuring the interns have an experience that immerses them in what Webster Police Officers do. Please join us in wishing Emma the best as she leaves us, and we hope she comes back to visit! Photo courtesy of the department’s Facebook page.

Help shape Oxford’s future by taking Master Plan survey

OXFORD — What should Oxford look like 10, 20, or even 30 years from now? That question is at the heart of the Town of Oxford’s Master Plan process—and residents are being asked to help provide the answer.

The town is encouraging residents, business owners, property owners, and anyone who has a connection to Oxford to participate in the Master Plan survey. The survey provides an opportunity for the community to share its thoughts about the future of the town, particularly how Oxford should approach land use and development.

A Master Plan is more than a planning document. It establishes a long-term vision for the community and provides a framework to help guide future decisions about growth, development, infrastructure, housing, open space, transportation, and other issues that affect the character and quality of life in Oxford.

One of the most important components of developing a successful Master Plan is understanding what residents value about their community—and what they would like to see change.

Oxford has experienced significant growth and change over the years, and additional changes are likely in the future. Decisions about where and how development occurs can have lasting impacts on neighborhoods, businesses, natural resources, municipal services, and the overall character of the community.

The Master Plan survey gives residents a chance to weigh

Red, White and Bluegrass Family Day to celebrate America’s 250th in Oxford

OXFORD — History, music, family fun, and a little bit of time travel are coming together in Oxford! Community Center staff and volunteers invite the community to Joslin Park on Sunday, Aug. 23, for Red, White and Bluegrass Family Day, a special celebration honoring America’s 250th anniversary.

Festivities kick off at 2 p.m. with a very special trip back in time—the opening of Oxford’s 1976 Bicentennial Time Capsule, prepared by the Oxford Middle School Seventh Grade Class as part of the nation’s Bicentennial celebration 50 years ago.

Members of that 1976 seventh-grade class are especially invited to join members of the Bicentennial Celebration Committee for the exciting unsealing of the time capsule and a chance to rediscover a piece of Oxford’s past.

The afternoon will offer plenty of opportunities to experience history firsthand. The Ebenezer Learned Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution will bring history to life with traditional lawn games for children, along with local genealogy information. Visitors can also step inside Oxford’s Little Schoolhouse for tours led by members of the Historical Commission.

And while we’re looking back, Oxford will also be looking ahead! A new time capsule will be compiled during the celebration, capturing important events and memories from Oxford during this milestone year in America’s history.

Then, from 3–5 p.m., settle in for some toe-tapping fun with SloGrass, a local bluegrass/Americana band. Their lively sounds will provide the perfect soundtrack for an afternoon of community, celebration, and Americana.

Bring the family, bring your lawn chairs, and come celebrate 250 years of America—and the history, memories, and community that make Oxford special. Come for the history, stay for the music, and help make a little history of your own!

Bites, Books & Blooms Ticket Sales begin Aug. 24

WEBSTER — Don’t miss out! The fourth annual gala event, “Bites, Books and Blooms” is coming to the Gladys E. Kelly (Webster) Library on Wednesday, Sept. 23, from 6 to 8 p.m. The Friends of the Library invite you to an evening of live music, food, a beer and wine cash bar, and, of course, Books in Bloom. Local florists, clubs, churches and some crafty individuals are busy designing displays made from flowers and whatever props spring to their imaginations to represent their chosen book or poem.

For example, Flower Garden of Webster created this take on Harry Potter and the Chamber of Secrets featuring Hedwig in some mood-setting vegetation. Owner Lisa Grzyb hints that her submission this year might require a power source—? We can’t wait to see what it will be!

As in past years, Bistro Eighty Ates will provide delicious hors d’oeuvres, and the Latin jazz and instrumental trio RioFlow (led by Peruvian-born guitarist Dr. Carlos Odría) will lend a smooth vibe to the evening.

Tickets, $50 each, will go on sale on Aug. 24 on the library Web site, gladyskellylibrary.org, and in-person at the library. Proceeds from ticket sales help to keep all programs free to the public. Stop by the library to hear what’s available to our community: yoga classes, book clubs, historical walks and talks, trivia nights, Dungeons & Dragons events, children’s book character appearances, music programs, Lego building, and many more! While you’re there, we hope you’ll want to sign up as a Friend of the Library, too, to add your support and stay informed about all the events and opportunities.

Generous supporting individuals and businesses have donated more than 20 gift baskets and gift certificates to the fundraiser as well. These and a 50-50 raffle prize will be awarded to some lucky winners at the BB&B. Come as you are or “dress to the nines” and make this a great night out while supporting the community!

Oxford’s future deserves more than a handful of voices

The Oxford of 2056 will be shaped by decisions made long before many of its future residents arrive.

Where homes are built, where businesses locate, which areas remain open, how roads accommodate additional traffic and how much development municipal services can support are decisions that can alter a community for generations. That is why Oxford’s current Master Plan process deserves the attention of far more than the people who ordinarily attend town meetings or follow the work of local boards.

The town is asking residents, business owners, property owners and others with connections to Oxford to complete its Master Plan survey. It may require only a small investment of time, but the questions behind it are substantial.

What should Oxford become?

That question becomes increasingly important as development pressures continue throughout Central Massachusetts. Growth is not inherently good or bad. New housing can provide opportunities for families and strengthen the tax base. Commercial and industrial development can create jobs and generate revenue. At the same time, poorly planned growth can increase traffic, strain schools and municipal services, consume open space and permanently change neighborhoods.

The challenge is finding the balance.

A Master Plan cannot predict everything Oxford will face over the next 10, 20 or 30 years. It can, however, give future town officials something extremely valuable: a well-considered expression of what the community wants. That requires broad participation.

Too often, residents become involved in land-use decisions only when a particular project appears before a board. By then, the discussion can become narrowly focused on one parcel, one neighborhood or one proposal. A Master Plan provides an opportunity to have the larger conversation before the next controversial project arrives.

Where should additional housing go? What kinds of businesses does Oxford want to attract? Where does commercial development make sense? Which natural areas, neighborhoods and characteristics of town should be protected? What infrastructure will be necessary if the population continues to grow?

Residents do not need to understand the intricacies of zoning bylaws to have worthwhile answers.

The person who drives Route 12 or Route 20 every morning knows something about traffic. Parents know what attracted their families to Oxford. Business owners understand some of the challenges of operating here. Longtime residents remember how particular neighborhoods have changed. Newer residents can explain why they chose Oxford over another community. Those experiences are useful planning information.

There is also an important responsibility on the other side of the process. Once residents have been asked what they think, town officials should make the results accessible and demonstrate how that public input influenced the eventual plan. Participation works best when people can see that their participation mattered.

No Master Plan will produce unanimous agreement. Oxford is far too diverse a community for everyone to share the same vision of growth. The goal should not be unanimity. It should be a thoughtful plan based on the broadest possible understanding of what residents value and where they believe the town should go.

Thirty years from now, today’s survey will be long forgotten. The development decisions influenced by the planning being done today may still be plainly visible.

That is reason enough to participate.

Oxford residents have been offered a chance to help decide what kind of community they want to leave to the next generation. The more people who answer, the more accurately that vision can belong to Oxford as a whole.

The future will arrive whether the town plans for it or not. It is far better to have a say in what that future looks like.

Auburn’s military men who were in the Air Force

BY HELEN POIRIER
AUBURN HISTORICAL SOCIETY

The Auburn Historical Society and Museums has come across a file of World War II documents of the Auburn military men who lost their lives while defending their country. Several of these men were in the Air Force or Army Air Corps. The Air force started as part of the army and was called the Army Aeronautical Division; US Signal Corps in 1907, in 1914 it was Aviation Section, Army Signal Corps, 1918 U.S. Army Air Service, later was called the Army Air Corps and General Headquarters (GHQ) Air Force. By 1941 it was the U.S. Army Air Forces, then lastly, the United States Air Force.

So far, the veterans of Auburn entered into the database, 26 have been listed as in the Air Force or Air Corps, not all of them dying in the line of duty. Some, unfortunately, didn’t make it out of basic training, while others had some adventures. The following six men were the only Killed in Action soldiers that were in the Veterans’ Project database.

Roger Leon Aldrin was a Lieutenant and a Douglas C-47 pilot assigned to the 305th Squadron, 442 Troop Carrier Group of the U.S. Army Air Force stationed in Belgium. The Skytrain transport aircraft had a nickname of “Lady Eve”. Roger died in a non-battle mid-air collision on November 30, 1944, near Rance Belgium. He received the AAF won Air Medal, 2 Oak Leaf Cluster and President Unit Citation.

Allen J. Avery was a technical sergeant serving with the 37th Aerospace Rescue and Recovery Squadron and was a pararescueman who was specially trained to parachute to a site for search and rescue mission. The 37th was a notable unit of the United States Air Force recognized for its role in search and rescue operation especially during the Vietnam War. Allen served 3 years and received the Air Medal for aerial achievement in Vietnam 8 times, a Silver Star for aiding in rescue of 8 airmen from the wreckage of a crashed plane in Vietnam. It was on his 3rd tour of duty that he became the 209th Central New England resident killed in SE Asia, his remains were positively identified in 1997, from a crash that happened on April 6, 1972, while trying to rescue another airman. The 1988 movie, “Bat 21,” recounts that rescue mission.

Earl William Broghamer was the son of Ernest F. and Minnie Pearce Broghamer of 14 Preston Ave. He was a graduate of Auburn High School class of 1941 and was employed at Crompton & Knowles Company in the payroll department. He enlisted in January 1942 and was an Aviation Radioman second class when his plane crashed at the Chincoteague Naval Air Station.

Gerald F. O’Shea was 18 years old when he enlisted in the Army Air Force in September of 1942. He trained as a pilot in Nashville Tennessee, Maxwell Field Alabama, and Douglas & Marcon Georgia. He was a second Lieutenant in the 2135 Base Unit at Tyndal Field when the plane’s engine failed causing it to stall and crash while he was on a training run on Sept. 3, 1946. His family ran the Mt. Auburn Dairy Shop in town.

Richard D. Pastick was a sergeant in the Army Air Corps being part of the 792 Battalion Squadron, 468th Bombing Group which flew missions against Japan after moving to Tinian during February 1945. The group took part in mining operations and doing incendiary raids on targets in the area. It dropped incendiaries on Tokyo and Yokohama in May 1945. The headstone application dated 1959 for Sargent Pastick had him listed as missing in action on May 25, 1945, with the death date as May 26. He was listed as being buried in Honolulu, but the headstone was placed in Notre Dame Cemetery in Worcester. Before he enlisted in December 1943, Richard worked at Coderre Mfg. Co. on Oxford Street in Auburn as toolmaker and die sinker & setter. Richard received the Air Medal and Purple Heart.

Alfred J. Yursha was born in 1922 to Joseph and Agnes Yursha and lived at 90 Auburn St. He attended Auburn High School and graduated in June 1942. Alfred enlisted in August of that year in the Army Air Force and was eventually a gunner for a B-17 bomber. He went overseas in February 1943 where he was deployed in North Africa and Italy for five months before going missing then later reported killed.

The following service men made it home from their tours of duty; Paul J. Blais who entered the Army Air Corps in December 1942 and got his wings in 1944. He was with the 64th Troop Carrier Squadron in the Philippines and New Guinea. He was awarded the WWII Victory & Philippines Liberation Medals, President Unit Citation and Purple Heart.

Ralph J. Conroy was a captain with the 1409th Army Air Force Base unit Army, Air Transport Command. He entered as a 2nd Lieutenant in Sept 1942, and the following March was made a captain. He was discharged in January 1946. He eventually was the manager of the Auburn Airport his family started.

Everette Merle Day was a corporal in the Army Air Corps and was a radar Mechanic bombardment APQ-7 [867] from Boca Raton Army Airfield Florida in June 1945. He was a radio mechanic from 1944-1946.

Raymond Desrosiers was a US Air Force Airman 2nd class. He was a mechanic on flight lines between 1957-1961 in Newfoundland, Florida, and Greenland, which was the Korean War time frame.

Herbert N. Eaton was a sergeant first class in the First World War. He was unique in that he was trained in Aerial Photography and was attached to different aerial squadrons throughout in military career. Detachment 1 of Aerial Photography in Washington D.C. was established in 1918, marking a significant advancement in aerial mapping and photography. This unit was part of the U.S. Army Air Service.

Carl E. Johnson enlisted in 1942 at Fort Devens and was sent to Cocran Field Georgia then Greenwood Mississippi where he trained on single engine aircraft. He then went to Freeman Field Indiana and was trained in larger aircraft and maintenance. After that he went to Lock Borne Air Force Base in Columbus Ohio and was a trained machinist for B-17s. He was discharged December 1945 as a Sergeant.

Robert G. Raymond was a first Lieutenant in the 8th Air Force B-17 Flying Fortress in April 1943, army air base in Romulus Michigan. He was discharged in October 1945.

Sven L. Sandstom was a sergeant with the 342nd Fighter Squadron which was known as the “Scourgers.” The unit was established in 1943 as part of the 348th Fighter Group and used the P-47 Thunderbolt fighter aircraft in the Southwest Pacific theater.

Albert Senecal was in the Korean War as a sergeant in the Air Force from 1951 – 1955. He was awarded the National Defense Service Medal, Occupation Medal and a Good Conduct Medal.

Mathew Smith was in active duty from May 1942 – January 1946 as part of the US Army Air Force 394 Bomb Merdon. The 394th Bombardment Group was a medium bomber unit that served with the Ninth Air Force in Europe, taking part in the D-Day invasion and the campaign that followed.

Donald Ward enlisted in 1942 for four years in the Army Air Corps airplane engineer training and instruction in Missouri and Illinois and gunnery school in Las Vegas.

Auburn’s most famous airman was Jeffery Lind, who was featured in a previous article. He enlisted in February 1942 and trained with B-18, B-23, and PT-17 aircraft. He was part of Company A, Army Air Force B-25 Mitchell Bomb Squadron. He was promoted to captain in 1945 where he earned the bronze star in Italy and Austria as a combat intelligence officer in the Dept of Air Force overseas.

The great household thermostat negotiations

LANTERNS
STREET
By CHARLES

There are few subjects capable of revealing the fundamental differences between two people quite as efficiently as the thermostat.

My wife and I have been married for roughly three decades. We have successfully navigated mortgages, children, home repairs, family holidays and countless decisions involving considerably more money and consequence than the temperature inside our house. Yet we remain unable to agree on what number should appear on that little box on the wall.

This becomes particularly complicated in August.

New England summers have a way of producing days when the house feels perfectly comfortable at breakfast, slightly tropical by lunch and suitable for growing orchids by late afternoon.

This is when the negotiations begin.

I tend to believe that air conditioning should be used with restraint. I am not against modern technology. I simply have an ingrained suspicion that every degree I lower the thermostat causes the electric meter outside to spin fast enough to affect the Earth’s rotation.

My wife takes a different approach. If we own an air conditioner, she reasons, perhaps we should occasionally experience the benefits of air conditioning. It’s difficult to argue with that.

I will walk past the thermostat and notice that it has been lowered. I raise it two degrees. An hour later, I walk past again. It has been lowered. Nobody says anything.

This is important. We are not arguing. We are participating in a silent competition involving climate control. Eventually, one of us breaks the silence.

“Did you change the thermostat?”

“No.”

This answer is technically incorrect but strategically useful. Then comes the inevitable question.

“Why is it 74?”

I explain that 74 is a perfectly reasonable indoor temperature.

Apparently, it is not.

The funny thing is that nobody ever agrees on what “comfortable” actually means. One person says the house is warm. Another says it feels fine. Someone opens a window. Someone else points out, correctly, that opening a window while the air conditioner is running makes absolutely no sense. The window gets closed. Ten minutes later, somebody turns on a fan.

This raises another question: If the air conditioner is running and the ceiling fan is running and a portable fan is running, at what point are we simply attempting to manufacture weather?

I remember growing up without any of this. On hot nights, we opened windows. We had box fans that sounded like small aircraft engines. If it was still hot, we complained about it. That was our cooling system.

Nobody checked an app to see what the “feels like” temperature was because we already knew what it felt like. It felt hot. Of course, nostalgia becomes much easier when you’re sitting in an air-conditioned room.

I have no intention of returning to the days of lying awake on an August night hoping a breeze might wander through the bedroom window sometime before sunrise. I’ve become soft. I accept this.

Still, there is something amusing about the amount of thought modern households devote to achieving the perfect indoor temperature.

We can heat our homes in January and cool them in August. We have programmable thermostats, remote controls and fans with six speeds.

And yet two adults who have shared a house for decades can stand beneath the same ceiling and experience entirely different climates.

Perhaps that’s the real lesson of marriage. Compromise is important. Communication is essential. And if you quietly change the thermostat, always remember what number it was on before.

in on these issues.

Do you think Oxford has the right balance of residential, commercial, and industrial development? Are there areas where additional development would make sense? Are there places where development should be limited or carefully managed? What characteristics of Oxford are important to preserve as the community grows?

These are the types of questions that community members can help address through the Master Plan process.

Importantly, residents do not need to be experts in planning, zoning, or development to participate. The survey is designed to gather the opinions and experiences of the people who live, work, own property, operate businesses, and spend time in Oxford every day.

Every response helps provide a clearer picture of the community's priorities. While the survey is only one part of the Master Plan process, broad participation will help ensure that the plan reflects the community rather than the views of only a small group of residents.

The Master Plan will ultimately serve as a roadmap for Oxford's future. It can help the Town identify priorities, establish policies, and make informed decisions about how land is used and how future development should occur.

Your participation matters. Whether you have lived in Oxford for decades or recently made the community your home, you have a perspective that can contribute to the conversation.

Take a few minutes to complete the Master Plan survey and help shape the future of Oxford.

Oxford's future is a community decision. Make sure your voice is part of it.

To take the survey, visit <https://cmrpc.typeform.com/oxfordmp>.

OBITUARIES

Sally Ann Carlson

WEBSTER – Sadly to say, Sally Ann (Katrenak) Carlson died Saturday, August 9, 2026 to join her sister Shirley Katrenak, her parents Joseph and Wanda (Gulczynski) Katrenak, and her daughter-in-law Katrina Carlson. She leaves her husband and love of 55 years, David Carlson, Sr; her son, David Carlson, Jr. who was the “rainbow in her eyes”; her grandsons Colby and Garrett; her dear sister, Nancy French and her husband Bob French; her brother Joseph Katrenak and his wife Jeannie; her favorite nephew Rob French and his husband Randy; her nieces Kim Fountain and Angie Goodney; her nephew Justin Barrows, and her niece Ashly Barrows of whom she was so proud; her brother-in-law, Walfred Carlson; and hers sister-in-law Candy Payne and Jeanine Carlson. Sally came from a family of hairdressers and owned Sally’s Hair Express. She worked with her sister Shirley at Shirley K’s and with her sister Nancy at Nancy’s House of Beauty. Sally treated her customers like kings and queens.

Sally loved her John Deere tractor and would be in her yard all day working on her flower beds and vegetable garden. She greatly enjoyed being with Bob French: she loved his farm in Dudley and said she was a “farmerette.” She was especially close to her sister Nancy whom she called her “partner in crime and grime”; her brother-in-law Bob would shake his head and say: “Don’t ever underestimate what these two do!” Always ready to help anyone at any time, Sally always had a smile on her face . She hosted wonderful Christmas parties. She had many friends on Facebook. In her sickness she never complained. She liked to go to the ice cream stand and order a sundae (but hold the ice cream and topping and just fill the cup with whipped cream). Her favorite saint was Saint Anthony of Padua: he was her co-pilot in sickness and in health. We hope that she has met him and the gang above. Rest in Peace! Services will be held privately at the convenience of the family. Donations in her name may be made to Dana Farber Cancer Institute, PO Box 849168, Boston, MA 02284. Arrangements are under the direction of Sitkowski, Malboeuf & Hickey Funeral Home, 340 School Street.

the Foundation’s mission.

Nichols College’s development of future leaders who understand the importance of service and giving back to their communities.

JAF’s Young Professionals Council brings together emerging professionals who share a passion for making a difference. About The Joe Andruzzi Foundation

The Joe Andruzzi Foundation is committed to providing help, hope, and a reason to smile, for New England cancer patients and their families by contributing financial support when it is needed most. Founded in 2008 by former New England Patriots three-time Super Bowl Champion offensive guard Joe Andruzzi and his wife Jen, the Joe Andruzzi Foundation grew out of Joe’s own successful battle with cancer. In 2007, Joe’s football career abruptly ended when he was diagnosed with non-Hodgkin’s Burkitt’s lymphoma. Disease-free less than a year later, Joe and Jen chose to dedicate their lives towards solving the financial distress a cancer diagnosis can cause in the lives of patients and families. Major collaborative milestone marked at QCC Center Topping Off

"This project is so important to the mission and vision of Quinsigamond Community College, the region it serves and the Commonwealth," Riccardi said. "We know that holistic student success incorporates curricular and co-curricular initiatives, and this project provides the infrastructure to check both of those boxes."

Speakers highlighted the collaborative partnership among the college, the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, and project stakeholders that have made this investment possible.

"It is a necessity that we continue to improve our community college environments," O'Day said. "The legislature has made it very clear that not only is higher education important, but certainly the community college segment is equally as important. It's been an honor to be able to represent the college."

While the majority of the renovation is funded by DCAMM, the project reflects the type of transformational campus investment envisioned through the Commonwealth's BRIGHT Act (An Act to Build Resilient Infrastructure to Generate Higher Education Transformation). The statewide initiative is designed to support modernization of public higher education facilities.

"I want to thank our legislative partners for championing the BRIGHT Act to date and hopefully getting it across the finish line so we can keep doing impactful projects like this one," Baacke said. "As someone whose parents both worked at community colleges, I know there are few things we do that are more important in changing the lives of residents across the Commonwealth than what community colleges do every day."

Designed to achieve LEED Gold certification, the facility will support improved energy performance, enhanced indoor air quality and long-term sustainability goals.

"Buildings like this bring jobs to your community — great-paying opportunities for advancement. We are looking forward to continuing to make these investments. They are about the future of the economy," LePage said.

Skurka recognized the efforts of the construction team and project partners in reaching the milestone safely and efficiently.

"Today's event celebrates a significant construction milestone and the many people and partnerships helping us bring this project to life," Skurka said. "At Gilbane, we are committed to creating healthy, safe and sustainable spaces that have a lasting effect on the community. We are honored to partner with QCC on this transformative project."

The QCC Center is expected to open in Fall 2027 and will serve as a centerpiece of the college's campus, creating new opportunities for hands-on learning, workforce training and community engagement.

"When we look at this structure, we aren't just looking at steel beams and concrete; we're looking at the literal framework of Worcester's economic future," said Petty. "True progress means lifting everyone up. By expanding physical accessibility and producing state-of-the-art, energy-efficient systems, QCC is ensuring our green energy and equity goals move forward."

WORCESTER — Quinsigamond Community College celebrated a major construction milestone with a Topping Off Ceremony for its new QCC Center, marking the completion of the building's structural frame. State and local leaders, project partners, and members of the college community gathered to witness the raising of the final beam and celebrate the progress of this transformational project.

"Through careful planning, advocacy, fundraising, design and construction, the vision is now becoming a reality," said QCC President Dr. Luis Pedraja. "Most importantly, this will create opportunities for students to develop the skills they need to succeed in today's workforce and strengthen the connection between education, industry and our community."

The event featured a ceremonial beam signing and remarks from Pedraja; State Sen. Robyn Kennedy; State Rep. James O'Day; Worcester Mayor Joseph Petty; Assistant Secretary Robert LePage of the Massachusetts Executive Office of Education; Deputy Commissioner Dr. Richard Riccardi of the Massachusetts Department of Higher Education; Commissioner Adam Baacke of the Massachusetts Division of Capital Asset Management and Maintenance (DCAMM); and Craig Skurka, operations manager for Gilbane Building Company.

"The raising of the beam is a moment for us to give gratitude and thank those who have stepped up to make this a reality," Kennedy said. "As you join into the growing skyline of Worcester, we continue to grow with you. By signing our names to these beams, we are signing our commitment to make sure the school continues to be successful."

The Topping Off Ceremony commemorated the progress of the $37.4 million renovation and expansion project, which is transforming a 1960s-era athletic facility into a modern, accessible hub for learning, workforce development and student life.

Upon completion, the 57,000-square-foot facility will feature advanced manufacturing and robotics laboratories, hospitality training spaces, flexible classrooms and revitalized athletic facilities. The project also includes significant upgrades to aging infrastructure and accessibility improvements designed to create a more inclusive and welcoming environment for all stu-
