MAJOR GENERAL SALEM TOWNE LODGE
SOUTHBRIDGE

SOUTHBRIDGE — On Wednesday, Oct. 28, the Southbridge Food Share Pantry, located at Trinity Episcopal Church at 446 Hamilton St. in Southbridge, invited Master Masons to its annual meeting. The pantry has long served Southbridge, Sturbridge, Holland, Wales, Brimfield, and Charlton.

With many local families facing hardship, providing food for children and families remains a shared priority of the pantry and Southbridge's Major General Salem Towne Lodge (MGSTL). Through the lodge's Community Outreach Service Projects, MGSTL has conducted food drives at local grocery stores for years and donated the collected items to the pantry. During the meeting, food share pantry president Karen Engell presented the attending Master Masons with a Certificate of Appreciation for their continued support.

The certificate recognized MGSTL members for years of collecting food—often in harsh weather—for the pantry and the communities it serves. Their commitment to the lodge's Community Outreach Program helps the pantry provide food to local residents in need. MGSTL members are honored and grateful to receive this recognition from the Southbridge Food Share Pantry.

On this coming Saturday, Nov. 7, MGSTL will host a food and coat drive at Big Bunny Market, 942 Main St., Southbridge, from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. Donations of food, personal-care items such as toothpaste and deodorant, and gently used winter coats and jackets are welcome and will benefit the Southbridge Food Share Pantry. At its March 2026 food drive, the community donated 156 bags of food—enough to fill three pickup trucks. This time, MGSTL also hopes to collect boxes/bags of winter coats and challenges the community to surpass 156 bags of food, filling at least three—and perhaps four—pickup trucks.

Benjamin Franklin, a renowned Master Mason, once asked, "Is There Greatness In You?" If so, join us to support this community food and coat drive. If you would like additional information about Freemasonry, go to www.massfreemasonry.org and read about this great fraternity and find a lodge nearest you.

Sturbridge announces 2027 Hometown Heroes banner program

Applications accepted Nov. 1 through Feb. 14

STURBRIDGE — The Town of Sturbridge Memorials, Monuments, and Markers Committee announces the 2027 Hometown Heroes Banner Program, honoring veterans and active-duty military personnel who have a connection to the Sturbridge community.

The program recognizes the service and sacrifices of military personnel through commemorative banners displayed on utility poles throughout town, including Main Street and other prominent locations.

The 2027 program includes expanded eligibility. Veterans and active-duty service members who currently live or previously lived in Sturbridge may be honored, including those who grew up in town and later moved elsewhere. Military service may have occurred before, during, or after their residency in Sturbridge. Both living and deceased veterans are eligible.

Each banner measures 30 by 48 inches and features the honoree's photograph and military service information. The cost is $250, payable by check, or Money Order made payable to the Town of Sturbridge. The cost includes the banner, mounting bracket, and installation. Installation is anticipated in May 2027, with banners expected to remain on display for approximately three years.

Applications will be accepted beginning Nov. 1 through Feb. 14, 2027.

Applicants must submit a completed participation request form, documentation of military service, a digital photograph of the honoree in uniform, and payment.

Application forms and additional program information are available at the town Hall, and through the Town of Sturbridge Web site at www.sturbridge.gov/memorialsmonumentsmarkers-committee.

The Town also accepts voluntary contributions to the Hometown Heroes Revolving Fund to assist eligible veterans who may be unable to afford the cost of a banner.

For additional information, contact Robin A. Grimm, Ph.D., Town Administrator, at (508) 347-2500 or rgrimm@sturbridge.gov.

Performance dates are Dec. 4 and 5 at 7:30 p.m. and Dec. 6 at 2 p.m. The performances are held at Fellowship Hall of Elm Street Congregational Church, 61 Elm St. in Southbridge. Entrance is on Park Street (around the corner). Directed by Lou-Ellen Corkum and Alex Gardner, and produced by Stephanie Ruggiere. Presented by permission from Dramatic Publishing.

Tickets are $18 for adults and $15 for seniors and youth under 18. Tickets may be reserved by calling Gateway at 508-764-4531. Online credit card ticket sales are available at https://events.ticketleap.com/tickets/gateway-players/the-spirit-of-christmas-or-the-story-of-ernistina-scrooge

The cast consists of Sarah Tonkin, Nathan Goulart-Pasco, Jonathan Martin, Emily Betty, Greta Thompson, Jim Douglas, Mikaila Baca-Dorion, Hannah Bilis, Lillian Benoit, Maritza "Mari" Cordero, Chris McTigue, Lucas Betty, Evelyn "Evie" Alesbrook, Lola Rabitor, Lynn Boucher, Reilly Ireland, Linda Bouthillier, Peter Cooper, Tiffany Betty.

This adaptation of Dickens' "A Christmas Carol" was selected by the Playwrights' Center of Minneapolis. What happened to Ebenezer Scrooge after the immortal Christmas Day? It seems he married and had a son, who had a son, who moved to America and had a daughter, who is the leading lady of this play. The story follows Ernestina Scrooge, the cold-hearted and miserly great-granddaughter of Ebenezer Scrooge, who runs the family's loan company office. Much like her ancestor, Ernestina is visited on Christmas Eve by the ghost of Ebenezer Scrooge along with the Spirits of Christmas Past, Present, and Future, who guide her through a path of redemption.

Community Fridge offers free food at Charlton Federated Church

CHARLTON — The Federated Church of Charlton (FCC) has opened a community fridge or refrigerator and shed to provide food and other household items to anyone in need. The concept is simple: people take what they need and share what they can. The main purpose of community fridges is to reduce food insecurity, while also mitigating food waste. The FCC Community Fridge is in a grey shed next to the church parking lot. It is open 24 hours, seven days a week.

"Our community fridge complements other food programs in our community, such as the Charlton Chip-In Food Pantry. Our program allows people to access free, nutritious fresh foods, and household items at any time," said Elizabeth Moran, chair of the FCC diaconate. "We understand that people can feel embarrassed when they are in need. Our program allows people to acquire resources anonymously. There is no sign-in or registration. Simply come and take what you need, when you need it."

The Federated Church of Charlton hopes to work with organizations, businesses and individuals to fill the community fridge and shelves. Acceptable foods include: all produce, unopened frozen foods, breads and pastries, prepackaged frozen dinners, milk, cheese, eggs, non-perishable goods, home cooked meals. Please label each meal with the ingredients. Clear packaging is preferred. Foods that are unacceptable include: moldy fruits, vegetables, and bread and previously opened foods. The FCC also accepts household items such as canned goods, boxed foods, soap and shampoo, paper supplies, toothpaste, and shaving supplies.

For more information, please call the church at 508-248-5550 or email emoran3@charter.net or office@fed-church.org.

Center of Hope Foundation to host Fall Craft Fair, Sundaes with Santa Nov. 7

SOUTHBRIDGE — The Center of Hope Foundation will welcome the holiday shopping season with two community events Saturday, Nov. 7, offering residents an opportunity to support local artisans, enjoy family activities and celebrate the approaching holidays.

The foundation's annual Indoor Fall Craft Fair will take place from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. at the Center of Hope Foundation Day Habilitation facility, 1 North St. in Southbridge. The event will feature more than 40 local artists and crafters displaying a variety of handmade merchandise.

Shoppers will find an assortment of unique gifts and seasonal items, including handcrafted jewelry, autumn and holiday decorations, pottery, hand-poured candles, knitwear and original artwork.

The fair offers an opportunity for residents to get an early start on their holiday shopping while supporting local artists and small businesses. With more than 40 vendors participating, visitors can browse a wide selection of handcrafted products under one roof.

Admission to the craft fair is free, although donations to the Food Bank will be gratefully accepted.

Visitors should park at 1 North St. and follow signs for "Just the Details" to the rear of the building. The entrance to the fair will be through the doors marked with the Day Habilitation banner.

In conjunction with the craft fair, the foundation will also present "Sundaes with Santa" at Scoops of Hope, 54 Foster St. in Southbridge, from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m.

The family-friendly event will offer children an opportunity to visit with Santa Claus and have their pictures taken, providing families with a chance to capture a holiday memory or take a photograph for their Christmas cards.

Visitors can also enjoy lunch and homemade ice cream sundaes at Scoops of Hope, along with festive take-home crafts for children.

The two events are being held at nearby locations, making it convenient for families to combine an afternoon of holiday shopping with seasonal activities and refreshments.

The Center of Hope Foundation encourages area residents to attend both events, whether searching for handmade gifts, spending time with family or getting an early start on holiday celebrations.

Both activities are scheduled for Saturday, Nov. 7, with the craft fair running from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. at 1 North St. and Sundaes with Santa taking place from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. at 54 Foster St.

For additional information about either event, visit Scoops of Hope or the Center of Hope Foundation's website at www.thecenterofhope.org.

Novena to St. Jude

St. Jude, glorious Apostle, faithful servant and friend of Jesus, the name of the traitor has caused you to be forgotten by many, but the true Church invokes you universally as the Patron of things despaired of; pray for me, who am so miserable, pray for me, that finally I may receive the consolations and the succor of Heaven in all my necessities, particularly (make request), and that I may bless God with the Elect throughout Eternity. OPINION

Honoring those who served, one hometown hero at a time

As Veterans Day approaches, communities across the country will gather to honor the men and women who have served in the United States Armed Forces. There will be ceremonies, speeches, flags and moments of silence, all important traditions that remind us of the sacrifices made in defense of our nation.

In Sturbridge, however, an initiative is helping ensure that recognition extends well beyond a single day on the calendar. The town's Memorials, Monuments, and Markers Committee has announced its 2027 Hometown Heroes Banner Program, an effort that will place photographs and military service information of local veterans and active-duty personnel on utility poles throughout town. It is a meaningful way to recognize those who served, but perhaps the most encouraging aspect of this year's program is its expanded eligibility.

Under the new guidelines, veterans and active-duty military personnel who once called Sturbridge home may be honored, even if they moved away years ago. Their military service does not have to coincide with their residency in town. Living veterans and those who have passed away are equally eligible.

Small towns have a way of holding onto their people, even after those people have moved on. Someone who grew up in Sturbridge, attended local schools, played on local ballfields and eventually left to serve in the military remains part of the community's story. The same is true of a veteran who settled here after completing military service.

The expanded program acknowledges that a person's connection to a hometown cannot always be measured by a current address.

There is also something particularly effective about the simplicity of these banners. A photograph, a name and a record of service may not seem like much, but together they can tell a powerful story. For a passing motorist, the banner may be a reminder of a neighbor. For a family member, it may be a source of tremendous pride. For a young person walking along Main Street, it might spark a question about military service, history or someone whose name they have never heard. Those small moments of recognition have value.

Too often, military service is discussed in broad terms, with references to generations, conflicts and historical milestones. Those discussions are important, but they can also obscure the individuals behind the uniforms.

The Hometown Heroes program brings that history down to a personal level. It reminds residents that the people who served were also classmates, coworkers, parents, grandparents and neighbors. The program also offers an opportunity for families to preserve photographs and service information that might otherwise remain tucked away in albums or boxes. Gathering those materials can encourage conversations between generations and help ensure that personal histories are not forgotten.

Of course, recognition should never depend entirely on a family's ability to pay. At $250 per banner, participation represents a meaningful expense for some households. The town's decision to accept voluntary contributions to its Hometown Heroes Revolving Fund, which can assist eligible veterans who cannot afford the cost, is therefore an important part of the initiative.

Residents who may not have a veteran in their own family can still participate by contributing toward the recognition of someone else's service. It is a practical way to make the program more inclusive.

Applications are being accepted through Feb. 14, 2027, with installation anticipated in May. Families considering participation should take advantage of the coming months to locate photographs, gather military documentation and complete the necessary paperwork.

The banners are expected to remain on display for approximately three years, offering a lasting tribute that will be seen by residents and visitors alike.

There are many ways for a community to demonstrate respect for its veterans. Some are formal and ceremonial. Others are quieter, expressed through everyday gestures of appreciation and remembrance. Sturbridge's Hometown Heroes Banner Program offers something of both. It provides a public expression of gratitude while reminding everyone who travels through town that service to country is part of the personal history of families living throughout the community.

And perhaps that is the program's greatest strength. It takes names that might otherwise be known only to family and friends and gives the entire town an opportunity to recognize them.

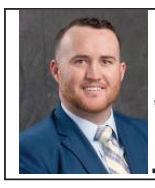

The people who served deserve to be remembered not only for the uniforms they wore, but also for the lives they lived and the communities they helped shape. Sturbridge is giving those stories a place of honor, right along its streets.

The questions that come after you've built your wealth

Financial Focus
Trevor Nielsen

Preserving wealth requires asking different questions from the ones that built it. Once you've accumulated meaningful assets, the focus shifts from growth alone toward stewardship — keeping what you've built, directing it purposefully and making sure it continues to serve the people and causes that matter most to you.

The most important conversations often have little to do with investments. How wealth moves through a family, and what it carries with it, can matter just as much as asset allocation. How do you want future generations to steward family wealth? What values do you hope to pass on alongside financial assets? These are deeply personal questions, and the answers shape more than a balance sheet. They shape a family's story for generations to come.

Your needs at this stage run the gamut, spanning family and legacy, taxes and trusts, and access to specialized investments and services. Few of these decisions exist in isolation. A charitable gift may shape your tax strategy. A trust review may influence your estate plan. The sale of a business or a concentrated stock position may create new opportunities and new risks. One choice ripples into the next, and the connections between them create complexities that often require professional expertise to manage appropriately.

You may need guidance that spans multiple disciplines. Executive compensation rules, business succession structures, and charitable trust strategies each carry their own complexities.

Then there is the element of change. The sale of a business, an inheritance or retirement often brings a rush of decisions, and the options can feel overwhelming. Choices multiply, and the window to make a decision can be narrow.

Family dynamics can add another layer of complexity, particularly when wealth is tied to a farm, ranch, family business, or other shared asset that not all heirs will manage in the same way.

Whether your goal is early retirement or a more traditional path, a financial advisor can help you with a plan for your goals and the path ahead.

The opportunities that come with wealth are often accompanied by new risks. A concentrated stock position, an unexpected health event, a business transition or even family disagreements can have lasting financial consequences. Protecting what you've built requires thoughtful attention to risk, liquidity, and long-term planning.

A financial advisor can help bring perspective to complex financial decisions. This may include understanding not only your investments but also the family dynamics, tax considerations, estate plans, and legacy goals that surround them. By taking the time to understand what matters most to you, they can help you evaluate important decisions and coordinate the appropriate team of professionals when you need them. They also can help bring perspective during moments of significant change, when the stakes are highest and the options feel overwhelming. If your circumstances or priorities change, they evolve alongside you, adapting your plan as your needs and expectations shift over time.

Finding a financial advisor who's the right fit for your unique situation is what turns complexity into coordinated action and helps ensure that your wealth keeps working for the life you envision.

Whatever happened to a little mystery?

Lanterns Along Main Street
By CHARLES

I was thinking the other day about how much we know about everybody else's business these days, whether we want to or not.

There was a time when you could go a whole week without knowing what your neighbor had for supper, where your cousin went on vacation, or what some fellow you haven't seen since high school thinks about the price of eggs. Now all that information is available before you've finished your morning coffee. And apparently, we're supposed to be interested.

Don't get me wrong. I enjoy hearing from old friends, and I'm glad there's a way to keep up with people who live far away. It's a wonderful thing to see pictures of a new grandchild or hear that somebody's daughter graduated from college.

But somewhere along the way, we seem to have decided that every moment of our lives needs an audience. I don't quite understand it.

The other day, I saw somebody announce on the Internet that they were heading out to buy groceries. Not that they'd found some extraordinary bargain or discovered a new store. They were simply going grocery shopping. A little while later came another announcement. They'd arrived. Then a picture of the shopping cart. And finally, a report that they were back home. I suppose I should have been relieved that the expedition ended safely.

Now, I'm not suggesting that people shouldn't enjoy themselves. If somebody wants to photograph a sandwich before eating it, that's their business. I simply wonder when we started believing that the rest of the world needed to see the sandwich, too.

When I was growing up, there was a certain amount of mystery surrounding other people's lives. You knew your neighbors, of course. You might know where they worked, what kind of car they drove, and whether they were the sort who kept their lawn looking like a golf course.

But you didn't know every thought that passed through their heads. And that wasn't necessarily a bad thing. If somebody had a disagreement with a relative, the entire town didn't hear about it before lunchtime. If a couple went out for their anniversary, they didn't need to provide photographic evidence. And if somebody made a particularly good pot roast, the family enjoyed it without waiting for strangers to offer their approval. There was something comfortable about that.

I'm not pretending the old days were perfect. Small towns have always had their share of gossip. Sometimes people knew more about their neighbors than they had any right to know. The difference was that gossip generally traveled at the speed of conversation. Nowadays, it travels at the speed of a button. And once something gets out there, good luck putting it back.

I sometimes wonder what my father would have thought of all this. He was a man who didn't waste many words, and he certainly wasn't interested in broadcasting his daily activities.

If somebody had handed him a telephone and suggested he use it to tell hundreds of people what he was having for lunch, I suspect he would have looked at them for a long moment before asking whether they had anything useful to do. He had a way of making a point without making a speech.

Of course, the younger crowd might say I'm missing the point. Sharing things is how people stay connected now. And they're not entirely wrong.

I've seen some wonderful examples of that connection. Old friends finding each other after decades. Families sharing happy occasions across thousands of miles. People offering encouragement to somebody having a difficult time. Those are good things, and I'd be foolish to pretend otherwise. But I still think there's value in keeping a few things to ourselves.

Not every pleasant afternoon needs to become a public announcement. Not every disagreement needs a jury of strangers. And not every opinion needs to be delivered to the world before we've had a chance to think it through.

Sometimes an experience is better when we're fully occupied enjoying it instead of figuring out how to describe it afterward.

A good meal tastes every bit as good without a photograph. A beautiful sunset doesn't require an audience. And a conversation with an old friend can be meaningful even if nobody else knows it happened. Maybe that's what I miss most. The idea that a person's life could contain a few quiet chapters that belonged entirely to them.

I'm not planning to throw away my phone or move into the woods. I like modern conveniences as much as anybody, especially when they work properly, which is another matter altogether.

But I am making an effort to keep a little mystery in my life. For instance, yesterday afternoon I went somewhere, did a few things, and came home. Had a perfectly nice time, too. And that's all you're getting out of me.

Congress must take a stand against this illegal war

To the Editor:

As President Trump not only refuses to end his illegal war on Iran but considers new strikes, Congress must act.

Thousands have been killed, including children and 21 U.S. servicemembers.

Innocent people across the globe have borne the brunt of Donald Trump's violence. U.S. and Israeli airstrikes have killed over 3,400 people in Iran, including 120 students at an Iranian elementary school struck by a U.S. missile — an apparent war crime.

Congress must show up and speak for their constituents who roundly oppose Trump's war by rejecting EVERY Pentagon funding bill, including the annual National Defense Authorization Act, Defense Appropriations Act, or standalone legislation that could be used to fund further violence and suffering.

People across the country are struggling in the face of Trump's illegal warmongering: American households have already spent roughly $2,000 extra in economic costs. Our bills could get even higher amidst cuts to healthcare, SNAP, and other vital programs.

Trump's war is wasting a billion taxpayer dollars every day. Meanwhile, Americans are paying 43 percent more at the pump than they were before the start of the war, and 80 percent of U.S. voters agree this war is hurting our economy.

Donald Trump has laid his priorities bare: warfare over healthcare. Two-thirds of Americans disapprove. Congress must immediately right the course.

Congress must vote no on authorizing so much as one more dime for illegal war.

Sincerely,

Bill Morgenstern
Brimfield

Why I voted for Maura Healey

To the Editor:

I just read a letter in your paper describing the Republican gubernatorial candidate Mike Minogue as not a politician, but a family man who will lead with accountability.

I have to admit that as an American historian who closely follows current politics, I was surprised to see a man who donated a million dollars to the Trump campaign, described as a man who would lead with integrity.

Donald Trump is undoubtedly the most unamerican President we have had in US history. He deliberately stokes racial divisions that tear at the fabric of our society, is corrupt to a degree that is unimaginable, has a Cabinet of the most incompetent sycophants, and defies the founding principles of our constitutional democracy. His war mongering has led to unprecedented inflation and the United States' economy the envy of the world is groaning under a bloated federal debt created by giving billionaires like Minogue tax breaks. Our enemies could not have created a President better designed to ruin our country and economy.

Any person associated with the Trump regime, hell bent on destroying American democracy at home and American hegemony abroad by alienating our allies and humoring our enemies, has no place in political office in the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, the birthplace of the American Revolution.

In the 1850s, Massachusetts abolitionists defied a federal government dominated by southern slaveholders and their cowardly northern allies and rescued the republic from the Slave Power. Today the Commonwealth should continue to be a shining light of decency, democracy, human rights, and the rule of law.

Any person associated with this incompetent and corrupt regime facilitated by a party that has sold its heritage as the party of Abraham Lincoln to cater to neo-Confederates and neo-Nazis should be consigned to political oblivion and the dustbin of history. As President Lincoln put it in criticizing anti-immigrant nativism, "When it comes to this, I should prefer emigrating to some country where they make no pretense of loving liberty-to Russia, for instance, where despotism can be taken pure, and without the base alloy of hypocracy [sic]."

Sincerely,

Manisha Sinha

Antonio Marcuccio named Saint Joseph School's 2026 Volunteer of the Year

Courtesy Photo

WEBSTER — During the Family Mass celebrated at Saint Joseph Basilica on Sunday, Oct. 4, Saint Joseph School recognized Antonio "Tony" Marcuccio as the recipient of the 2026 Saint Joseph the Worker Volunteer of the Year Award.

Presented annually, the award honors an individual whose generosity, talents, and commitment have made a meaningful difference in students' lives. Recipients embody the qualities of Saint Joseph through humility, service, faithfulness, and dedication to hard work.

Born and raised in Southington, Conn., Marcuccio moved to Killingly in 1992 and graduated from Killingly High School in 1996. He and his wife, Katie, now live in Thompson with their sons. Jacob graduated from Saint Joseph School in 2026 and now attends Marianapolis Preparatory School, while Johnny is currently in seventh grade at Saint Joseph School.

Marcuccio rarely misses a field trip, school play, athletic event, or opportunity to help. He began coaching intramural basketball in 2022 and continued for three seasons before becoming an assistant coach for the JV boys' basketball team. He has also coached fall cross-country. When spring cross-country needed coaches, Tony and Katie stepped forward immediately. This year, Tony will serve as the varsity boys' basketball coach.

"If you see Mr. Marcuccio at a Saint Joseph athletic event, he is usually wearing a hat," said Athletic Director John Kottori. "As a volunteer in the athletic program, Mr. Marcuccio has worn many hats. Each hat is a sign of his dedication to supporting all of the students in our community."

Kottori described Marcuccio as a "champion volunteer" and a role model whose selfless service strengthens the athletic program and demonstrates the school's mission through his actions.

Marcuccio's contributions extend well beyond coaching. He regularly helps set up and break down intramural games. Drawing on his 28 years of construction experience, he repaired large openings in the school's exterior brickwork when ventilation ducts were removed during the conversion of the former kitchen into a STEM lab. He also repaired the school's front steps after vandals damaged them.

During the winter, Marcuccio could often be found at school late at night or as early as 4 or 5 a.m., shoveling and blowing snow from the entrance and sidewalks so students and staff could enter safely. These are only the acts of service known to school administrators; he has undoubtedly helped the athletic program, teachers, and school community in many other ways.

Marcuccio has never asked for reimbursement or recognition. He simply keeps asking what more he can do.

During the presentation, Principal Beth Boudreau recalled the time Bishop Robert J. McManus drew Marcuccio's winning raffle ticket during a recent Open House. When Marcuccio was called to the office over the intercom, he arrived apprehensively, believing he was in trouble with the principal. This time, Boudreau assured him he was being called forward again for a very good reason.

The presentation also included a lighthearted reference to Marcuccio's devotion to the Buffalo Bills, who were playing the New England Patriots that day. Boudreau joked that honoring a Bills fan in Patriots country proved that "Christian charity truly has no limits."

"But all football rivalries aside, there is no question that Tony has always been on Saint Joseph School's team," Boudreau said. "We are incredibly fortunate to have him."

"I love the Saint Joseph School community," Marcuccio said. "I think, as a whole, we really stand out compared to other schools. That is special, and I am proud to be a part of it."

Saint Joseph School is deeply grateful for Marcuccio's humble and generous service and is blessed to honor him as the 2026 Saint Joseph the Worker Volunteer of the Year.

QCC receives nearly $2 million to support parenting students and their children

WORCESTER — Quinsigamond Community College was recently awarded a Child Care Access Means Parents in School Program (CCAMPIS) grant of more than $1.9 million. The College will use the grant to fund its Parent Success at QCC (PSQ) program, which will provide access to childcare for eligible students.

"At QCC, over 30 percent of students are parents, many of whom work full-time and part-time jobs," QCC President Dr. Luis Pedraja said. "Due to the high cost of living and low availability of childcare, these students are often in the difficult position of missing classes to take care of family responsibilities. The PSQ program will help alleviate this challenge for many parents by providing childcare assistance and support services, enabling them to remain enrolled, complete their studies, and graduate. In turn, they will be better positioned to advance their careers, improve their families' quality of life, and contribute meaningfully to their communities."

PSQ is a collaborative initiative that brings together many areas of QCC such as Parenting Student Support Services, The Children's School: Early Childhood Education Lab School, and various other departments of the college. The program will also work with licensed childcare providers in the community to subsidize care for eligible students.

"Having to be in two places at the same time has been difficult," a recently surveyed QCC student said. "…I have to drop my child off at school and be at clinical during my nursing rotation at nearly the same time."

Associate Director of Parenting Student Support Michelle Brennan has seen studies showing that more than 50 percent of student parents who don't receive proper support end up leaving school without a degree. However, at QCC, 80 percent of students Brennan has supported have continued their education.

"Our goal is to empower these students who are working incredibly hard to improve the lives of their families," Brennan said. "We've seen that quality childcare and education promote upward mobility and increased earnings for parents, and eventually for their children as well."

The PSQ program will utilize a case management approach to connect students with community resources, build peer support networks, and provide workshops covering topics such as child development and time management.

According to Brennan, services will be integrated to benefit the entire family. She described the "whole-family" model used in education and social services, which offers support to both parents and children to foster educational success and financial security.

"When we run a workshop on a topic such as financial literacy, children will have a parallel activity and then come back together for a family conversation on the topic. We're helping them build the skills to plan for their families together," Brennan said.

Brennan also noted that funding the PSQ program through CCAMPIS will help fill in the gaps that are often present between the K-12 and higher education schedules.

"Finding childcare when QCC is in session and my daughter does not have school is super hard, whether that be school vacations, professional development days, or snow days. I have missed several days of school as a result," said another QCC student.

The four-year CCAMPIS grant is issued by the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services, Administration for Children and Families (HHS/ACF) on behalf of the U.S. Department of Education (ED).

Worcester native, QCC trustee in running to become Logan Airport's new voice

Max German

WORCESTER — Max German, a member of the Quinsigamond Community College Board of Trustees, has been selected as one of eight finalists in Massport's "Voice of Logan" contest, which will determine the next official voice heard by millions of travelers passing through Boston Logan International Airport.

German, born in Worcester and raised in Shrewsbury, was chosen from over 5,000 applicants after submitting an audition that showcased his distinctly Massachusetts voice.

"It's been such a fun experience since becoming a finalist. I've been texting everybody I know," said German, who traces his Worcester-style New England accent to his mother and grandparents.

German is among eight finalists competing for the chance to become the newest voice welcoming visitors to Boston throughout Logan Airport. Public voting is underway and will help determine the winner.

While German will represent his current Dorchester neighborhood in the contest, he remains deeply proud of his Worcester roots and his connection to QCC.

"QCC was so formative," German said. "I graduated high school and didn't know where my path would lead, but I was able to figure it all out at QCC. I got my grades up, got involved, and haven't looked back."

At QCC, German was involved in initiatives such as the Phi Theta Kappa Honor Society's effort to establish a campus food pantry. What began as a closet stocked with shelf-stable groceries has since grown into a comprehensive resource center offering fresh produce, hygiene products and connections to housing and other community supports.

After graduating from QCC, German transferred to Boston College, where he earned a bachelor's degree. He is now enrolled at Boston College Law School. In 2025, he joined the QCC Board of Trustees as a way to give back to the college and community that helped launch his academic and professional journey.

If he doesn't become the "Voice of Logan," German said he would be happy to serve as a voice for QCC instead.

"I would welcome people to the college by saying, 'QCC is the place that no matter who you are or where you are from, you will have an opportunity here for a better life,'" he added.

Audition videos and voting for the "Voice of Logan" can be found at voiceoflogan.com/Voting.

Scouting America to host family safety and community outreach event

WORCESTER — Families throughout Worcester County are invited to attend a free community safety event hosted by the Massachusetts State Police, Worcester State University, and the Heart of New England Council, Scouting America, from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. on Saturday, Nov. 10, at Worcester State University.

Designed as both a fun family experience and a valuable community outreach opportunity, the event will bring together public safety professionals, community partners, Scouts, and local families for a day focused on child passenger safety, community engagement, and education.

A key feature of the event will be free child car seat inspections and installations conducted by certified Massachusetts State Troopers. Families will have the opportunity to ensure that their child safety seats are properly installed and appropriately fitted to help keep children safe while traveling.

The Massachusetts State Police will also showcase specialized equipment and resources used in their public safety efforts, providing attendees with a unique opportunity to learn more about the role of law enforcement in protecting and serving communities across the Commonwealth.

One of the day's most anticipated attractions will be the Massachusetts State Police rollover simulator, an interactive demonstration that vividly illustrates the importance of wearing a seat belt. The simulator provides participants with a memorable, hands-on experience that reinforces safe driving practices and highlights how seat belts can save lives.

Scouts and volunteer leaders from local Packs and Troops throughout Worcester will assist with activities, welcome attendees, and share information about the many opportunities available through Scouting. Families interested in learning more about Scouting will have the chance to meet current Scouts and leaders and discover programs that promote leadership, citizenship, service, outdoor adventure, and personal growth.

"This event represents the power of community partnerships," said Jason Pigg, Scout Executive and CEO of the Heart of New England Council, Scouting America. "By bringing together the Massachusetts State Police, Worcester State University, and local Scouts, we can provide an important public service while introducing families to the positive impact Scouting has throughout our communities."

Organizers hope the event will strengthen connections between families and community organizations while promoting safe transportation practices and highlighting resources available to local residents.

The event is free and open to the public. Families are encouraged to bring their vehicles and child safety seats for inspection and to take advantage of the educational exhibits, demonstrations, and opportunities to engage with community partners.

Three-time American Ninja Warrior finalist to attempt world record for most Murph Workouts in 24 hours

WORCESTER — Three-time American Ninja Warrior national finalist Jonathan Godbout will attempt to break the unofficial world record for most "Murph" workouts completed in 24 hours. The attempt starts at 9 a.m. Friday, Nov. 13, at CrossFit Worcester and ends at 9 a.m. Saturday, Nov. 14. The event is open to the public and will stream live on Instagram (@atpfitco), with a mini documentary to follow on YouTube (@ATPFitCo). The attempt, two days after Veterans Day, is dedicated to service members and veterans.

The current record of 20.16 Murphs belongs to Australia's Russell Stringer. To beat it, Godbout plans to finish 20.5. One Murph is a 1-mile run, 100 pull-ups, 200 push-ups, 300 squats and another 1-mile run, all in a 20-pound vest. Twenty and a half of them add up to 41 miles of running, 2,050 pull-ups, 4,100 push-ups and 6,150 squats. That works out to one Murph every 70 minutes, around the clock, with no sleep. The full 24 hours will be filmed, and CrossFit coaches will monitor and judge every rep.

The workout is named after Navy SEAL Lt. Michael P. Murphy, who was killed in action in Afghanistan in 2005 and posthumously awarded the Medal of Honor. For Godbout, the dedication is personal. Jonathan has always been inspired by his grandfather, a Vietnam veteran awarded the Purple Heart and Bronze Star, who battled through physical and psychological wounds while excelling for decades in civil service leadership roles as deputy chief of the MBTA Police and at the Department of Homeland Security.

"I have tremendous respect for the people who serve, and this is my way to honor them," Godbout said. "Twenty-four hours of Murph will never come close to what they've been through. If you are inspired in any way by my challenge, please extend gratitude to a veteran in your own way — write a letter, send a care package or visit a memorial."

Godbout has taken on endurance challenges before, including running one more mile every day until he hit a full marathon on day 26, and climbing stairs equal to the height of Mount Everest. This time he has trained for eight months: five days a week of CrossFit classes, hundreds of Murphs and physical therapy. He has completed test runs of five, 10 and 12 Murphs at record pace. "On my past challenges I went in cold and just sent it," Godbout said. "This one I've been building toward specifically for eight months. I'm not leaving anything on the table."

The attempt puts into practice the idea behind the name of Godbout's coaching company, Adaptation Through Perseverance (ATP): challenging yourself is what creates real change.

St. Anne and St. Patrick Parish to celebrate 140th anniversary with special dinner

STURBRIDGE — St. Anne and St. Patrick Parish invites the public to celebrate its 140th anniversary at a special dinner on Wednesday, April 14, 2027, at the Publick House Historic Inn in Sturbridge. The event runs from 5 to 9 p.m., with cocktail hour from 5:30 to 6:30 p.m. A cash bar will be available.

Tickets are $75 per person and include a plated dinner and dessert. Tickets are available online at stannestpatrickparish.com/event-tickets or by calling the parish office at 508-347-7338.

The dinner menu includes a mixed green salad with house-made maple vinaigrette dressing and the Publick House's famous pecan sweet rolls and dinner rolls. Guests can choose from three entrée options: butter crumb scrod with lemon-dill sauce; orchard chicken with cornbread-sausage stuffing and a velvety cider-cream sauce; or butternut squash ravioli with julienne vegetables and a creamy Amaretto sauce, a vegetarian option. Dessert will be deep-dish apple pie with ice cream.

"We are grateful to celebrate 140 years of faith, prayer, and community at St. Anne and St. Patrick Parish," said Father Sal Musande, pastor. "This anniversary dinner will be a wonderful opportunity to bring people together in celebration of our parish's rich history and continued mission. We are also pleased to welcome special guests who will join us for this milestone occasion. We invite parishioners, former parishioners, friends, and members of the wider community to celebrate with us."

For 140 years, St. Anne and St. Patrick Parish has served as a place of worship, prayer, and community in the Sturbridge area. The anniversary celebration honors the generations of parishioners, clergy, and supporters who have helped shape its history and sustain its mission. The dinner offers an opportunity to reflect on this legacy while looking forward to the parish's future.

St. Anne and St. Patrick Parish offers daily Mass, religious education, and a variety of community ministries. Visitors are welcome to explore St. Anne Shrine, the Memorial for the Unborn, the Hall of Saints, the Russian Icon Exhibit, the Votive Chapel, the Generations Statue, and the Angel of Hope Monument. The Daily Rosary is recited at 3 p.m. in St. Anne's Church, and weekend Masses are celebrated in the parish's outdoor pavilion during the summer. The parish's religious gift shop is open daily from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.
