ARPA, chloramines come up at Council meeting

BY GUS STEEVES
CORRESPONDENT

SOUTHBRIDGE — Most of the Nov. 18 council meeting dealt with rearranging some of the town's remaining American Rescue Plan Act (ARPA) funding for new uses as the deadline to commit funds comes at the end of this year.

Southbridge received more than $3 million from ARPA several years ago, and has spent most of it. This time around, the board voted to buy a new table, chairs and smartboard for the George Parent Room ($4,575), to lease a planner-size printer for the Building Department ($5,652 for the first two years of five).

Opacum Land Trust launches year-end campaign, prepares to celebrate 25 years of conservation

STURBRIDGE — Opacum Land Trust, a leading conservation organization in South-central Massachusetts, is launching its year-end fundraising campaign with an ambitious goal of raising $60,000 to protect critical land, water, and wildlife habitat. This campaign comes as the organization approaches its 25th anniversary in 2025, marking a quarter-century of dedicated environmental stewardship.

The organization's recent successful conservation of the 165-acre Robert F. and Jeanne R. Para Family Preserve in Southbridge exemplifies Opacum's strategic approach to land conservation. This newly protected area not

Charlton maintains single tax rate

BY JASON BLEAU
CORRESPONDENT

CHARLTON — The Town of Charlton is staying with a single tax rate for another year following the Board of Selectmen's brief annual tax classification hearing on Nov. 12. The meeting is held every fall to determine how the town will split its tax burden for the next year with a single rate creating an equal tax burden while a split rate would have allowed the town to assess more of the burden on its businesses and commercial properties.

Like many communities of its size, Charlton has long stuck with a single tax rate to avoid imposing added stresses on its businesses. It was noted during the hearing that despite significant growth Charlton is still more than 70 percent residential property.

Town Assessor Kathleen Stanley discussed a breakdown of Charlton's tax categories during the hearing, noting "We're a little unique in that we have a pretty high CIP (commercial, industrial, and personal property) so it's 28.64 percent, a combination of commercial industrial and personal property. That's pretty high, but we don't have a lot of commercial. That's a really small piece of that pie. It really is our industrial and personal property base that's driving that."

Selectmen universally agreed that a single tax rate was the right path. Selectman Bill Borowski, a long-time proponent of the single tax rate, said Charlton

SOUTHBRIDGE GARDEN CLUB BRINGS HOLIDAY CHEER TO SENIOR CENTER

The Community Outreach Committee of the Southbridge Garden Club brought some holiday cheer to the Southbridge Senior Center on Nov. 18. The committee members provided an array of supplies and led a workshop to create holiday decorations. Senior center attendees worked with committee members to select either a pre-made wooden tree or a cone shape made of card stock as the base for a holiday tree. Using an assortment of fabrics, decorative papers, glittering yarn, fancy ribbon, lace, jewels, and other unique items, they fashioned one-of-a-kind tabletop decorations. These holiday decorations were donated to Illaryrian Gardens, an apartment complex on Salsbury Street in Worcester. The Southbridge Garden Club has been serving the greater Tri-Community area since 1953 and became a member of the Garden Club Federation in Massachusetts in 2003. The Club's mission is to "share an interest in horticulture and to expand our knowledge of gardening for our mutual benefit and that of our local communities." In addition to relevant programs and field trips, the Club features two annual fundraising events: a Plant Sale in May and a Holiday Greens Sale the first weekend in December.

Celebrating community and tradition at annual football banquet

SOUTHBRIDGE — The Southbridge Lions Club Annual Football Banquet, which is held to honor the student athletes and coaches prior to the big Thanksgiving game with Bartlett, took place on Tuesday, Nov. 26. It proved to be another memorable evening with preparations beginning early in the afternoon, as the Lions' kitchen crew got to work crafting a meal to remember. This year's banquet was held at Maqui's Bar and Function Hall, which provided a spacious room well suited for the occasion attended by members of the football team, cheerleading squad and parents.

Focusing on character and support The program featured an impressive lineup of speakers, including members of the coaching staff and school administrators. Master of Ceremonies Mike Caplette guided the event, setting the stage for an evening centered on values. Both the school principal and the athletic director addressed the players, focusing on the importance of character and how it extends beyond the game.

The keynote speaker, Vinnie Marino, brought a deep connection to the event. A graduate of SHS's class of '87 and a former UCONN football player, Vinnie has spent 32 years coaching at all levels, from high school to professional football. In his address, Vinnie reminded the players of the significance of this week's game, emphasizing that it will create memories they'll carry for a lifetime. He spoke about the game's rich history and its unique place in the community, inspiring everyone with a simple yet powerful message: "The game is bigger than yourself."

The cheerleaders added their trademark enthusiasm to the evening, energizing the room with their lively performance. Later, the Lions cheer brought everyone together.

A memorable evening From the delicious meal and heartfelt speeches to the camaraderie and shared traditions, the Football Banquet was a true celebration of what makes our community special. The new venue added an extra layer of enjoyment, providing a setting that matched the spirit of the evening. Thank you to everyone who made the evening possible. Here's to another season filled with growth, teamwork, and unforgettable moments!

REGION — Country Bank, a full-service financial institution serving Central and Western Massachusetts, partnered with the Wonderfund of Massachusetts, with a $10,000 donation. This collaboration will make a difference in the lives of the kids and teens served by the Department of Children and Families (DCF), allowing them to experience the magic of childhood during the holiday season. The Wonderfund, an extraordinary group of people on a mission, is dedicated to bringing the joy and meaning of childhood to children who have been impacted by trauma, abuse, and neglect.

You, too, can be a part of this magical initiative. Join the Wonderfund and Country Bank in making this holiday season special for kids in foster care by donating a new, unwrapped gift at any of its banking centers until Dec. 14. Your contribution, no matter how small, will make a difference. Country

Bank's team will shop for gifts to join in the efforts, and donations will be delivered to DCF Offices in Springfield and Worcester to be distributed throughout western and central Massachusetts.

"We are excited to partner with the Wonderfund again this year and the opportunity for our team and the communities we serve help us make a difference for children by putting a smile on so many faces this holiday season," said Shelley Regin, Chief Marketing and Community Relations Officer at Country Bank. "Last year, we had such overwhelming support and collectively, we donated over a thousand toys to local DCF offices who shared with us, without your donations most children would have only received one toy."

If you're ready to help make some magic this holiday season, please visit <https://wonderfundma.org>. Your support is invaluable and will bring joy to children in foster care.

“Duck Soup,” and we will start 2025 UnderGround Thursday with another Marx Brothers’ classic “The Cocoanuts” on Jan. 2, 7 p.m. And still free!

During the Florida land boom, the Marx Brothers run a hotel, auction off some land and thwart a jewel robbery. A thinly veiled plot surrounded by the absurd chaos created by The Marx Brothers.

“The Cocoanuts” is the second film featuring The Marx Brothers. The first being “Human Risk” (1921) which was screened once and never released.

When the Marx Brothers were shown the final cut of “The Cocoanuts” they were so horrified they tried to buy the negative back and prevent its release. Paramount wisely resisted — the movie turned out to be a big box office hit, with a $1.8 million gross, making it one of the most successful early talking films.

The UnderGround Wednesday Free screenings is made possible by grants from the Southbridge Cultural Council and the Mass Cultural Council.

Shawna Foundation nods to the holidays with screening of “Scrooge”

SOUTHBRIDGE — Because of the Christmas Holiday, our next UnderGround Wednesday Screening will take place on Thursday, Dec. 19, 7 p.m. at starlite gallery, 39 Hamilton St. in Southbridge, with a free screening of “Scrooge” (1935), directed by Henry Edwards.

It is the first feature length film of Charles Dickens’ “A Christmas Carol” with sound. Starring Sir Seymour Hicks as Ebenezer Scrooge, it is a faithful interpretation of the beloved classic. Hicks, who had played the same role repeatedly on stage and in an earlier silent film version, inhabits old Scrooge thoroughly and brilliantly. Donald Calthrop co-stars as the perfect Bob Cratchit.

Director Henry Edwards was honored for his wonderful work in this film with a prize at the 1935 Venice Film Festival. Though many versions of Dickens classic have been released in years since, this is one that shouldn’t be missed.

And then, in 2025, our program will be called UnderGround Thursday as we move to the first Thursday of every month. We began UnderGround Wednesday with The Marx Brothers’

Finding your holiday spirit

It happens every year. November fades into December, and suddenly, the world expects you to transform into a holiday fanatic overnight. The lights go up, the carols start playing, and every ad you see insists it's "the most wonderful time of the year." But what if you're just not feeling it yet? Or, worse, you're feeling the pressure to feel it?

Here's a little secret: the holiday spirit isn't something you have to force. It sneaks up on you when you least expect it—like when you hear a kid giggling in a Santa hat, or when the smell of cookies baking fills the house. It's in those little moments, not in the perfectly decorated tree or the over-the-top gift list.

So, how do you find it? Start small. Pour yourself a mug of hot cocoa (marshmallows optional but highly recommended) and sit by the window for five minutes. Listen to your favorite holiday song—the silly ones count too. Drive around to check out the lights in your neighborhood. You don't have to deck the halls in a single day; sometimes, just hanging one strand of twinkle lights can do the trick.

And if the holidays feel like more of a chore this year, that's okay too. Give yourself permission to celebrate in your own way. Skip the big party if it stresses you out and invite a few close friends for a movie night instead. Or spend a quiet evening wrapping gifts (even if they're just for yourself). It's about finding joy where you are, not where you think you're supposed to be.

Remember, holiday spirit isn't one-size-fits-all. It's not about how much you spend or how perfectly you decorate; it's about making the season your own. So whether you're going full Buddy the Elf or keeping it low-key, let the magic find you. It always does.

Churches, Christmas and community

Pretty much anyone who is a person of faith or grew up in a Christian religious tradition, associates the Christmas season with decorating the church – what some denominations refer to as “greening the sanctuary,” lighting the candles at the start of Advent Services, happy memories participating in, or watching children performing in Christmas Eve pageants, and attending with friends and family Christmas mass or worship.

But churches provide other opportunities to celebrate Christmas, and share in a sense of community beyond what occurs in the sanctuary.

Look around most towns from November to Christmas, from Cape Cod to the Berkshires, and you will find churches from a wide range of denominations hosting Christmas fairs, Christmas plays – some professionally produced, Christmas musicals, Christmas concerts – again often by amazing choral groups such as Assabet Valley Mastersingers, and special services, and more.

Some Christmas or Holiday fairs will greet you with the captivating aroma of freshly baking pies, or cookies, perhaps coffee and hot chocolate, too. And once you enter you are often greeted by a wide array of new items often still shrink wrapped, usually at great prices, or nearly new (what the Good Neighbor church – CCUMC – Thrift Shop refers to as “twice blessed”), and all proceeds to benefit the community – whether supporting church food bank, outreach meals, or other worthy activities.

Charlton City United Methodist Church (CCUMC) on Dec. 7 is hosting a Christmas Fair – including a silent auction. I know for a fact there are some pretty cool items on the list, some landscape architect designed decorations, and lots of fun things to look through, too! And here's an interesting twist on where the proceeds go. Not only do they support outreach ministries, but the church tithes 10 percent back to a community organization in Charlton. The fair is 10 a.m. to 2 p.m., located 74 Stafford St., Charlton.

Other churches in the area are hosting their own form of Christmas Fairs. A great way to support organizations focused on helping the least among us in our communities, and after all, isn't that what Christmas is all about?

BEYOND THE PEWS

Speaking of which – ever read “A Christmas Carol?” If ever a book helped change the sensibilities of a society and remind people what matters – goodness, charity, friendliness, gratitude, compassion, joy – all of which are the essence of Christmas, well Charles Dickens captured it through this beloved novel.

Here's again where church serves the community outside of Sabbath services. On Dec. 8, from 2 to 4 p.m., First Congregational Church in Holden (corner of 31 and Main Street) is hosting a one woman performance of “A Christmas Carol.” Sponsored by PEO Int'l – Massachusetts Chapter AA, with proceeds going to support scholarships. Free refreshments at a Victorian Tea during intermission will be provided. Tickets are available at the door – $20 for adults, $15 for ages eight to 12.

To be sure, year round many churches are a resource for the community – hosting free hot meals or food pantries, visiting shut ins, supporting other outreach programs, and providing manpower for projects as varied as helping clear up walking paths, volunteer at shelters, sponsor health related programs and so much more.

But at Christmas, as needs grow, houses of worship really dig deep and try to meet those needs. The added resources to ensure we can be there for those in need is through fairs and fundraisers. This allows us to also provide Blue Christmas services for those grieving at this time of year and other ways to provide a sense of fellowship, community, compassion and caring.

So this Christmas, take a look at what's going on at churches, you might just be surprised how many different ways the joy shared celebrations, the love of God, and the merriment of the Season can be found. Supporting the many events such as Dec. 7 or Dec. 8 mentioned above, besides being fun times to experience, are good ways to support worthwhile endeavors that benefit the community.

Safe travels and see you at CCUMC Christmas Fair in Charlton, Dec. 7 and Dec. 8, “A Christmas Carol” at FCC Holden, Mass. And wishing you a most blessed, happy and Merry Christmas Season.

Consider tax-smart charitable gifts

NIELSEN

As we enter the annual season of giving, you might be thinking of charities you wish to support. But you also might be wondering how to gain some tax benefits from your gifts.

It used to be pretty straightforward: You wrote a check to a charity and then deducted the amount of the gift, within limits, from your taxes. But a few years ago, as part of tax law changes, the standard deduction was raised significantly, so fewer people were able to itemize deductions. Consequently, there was less financial incentive to make charitable gifts.

Of course, this didn't entirely stop people from making them. And it's still possible to gain some tax advantages, too.

Here are a few tax-smart charitable giving strategies:

Bunch your charitable gifts into one year. If you combine a few years' worth of charitable gifts in a single year, you could surpass the standard deduction amount and then itemize deductions for that year. In the years following, you could revert to taking the standard deduction.

Make qualified charitable distributions. Once you turn 73 (or 75 if you were born in 1960 or later), you must start taking withdrawals from your traditional or inherited IRA. These withdrawals – technically called required minimum distributions, or RMDs – are taxable at your personal income tax rate, so, if the amounts are large enough, they could push you into a higher tax bracket or cause you to pay larger Medicare premiums.

But if you donate these RMDs directly to a qualified charity, you can avoid the taxes. And because these donations, known as qualified charitable distributions (QCDs), will reduce the balance on your IRA, you may have lower RMDs in the future.

Of course, if you need some or all your RMDs to help sustain yourself in retirement, the use of QCDs may not be of interest to you. Keep in mind, though, that you can start making QCDs at 70 and a half, even before you must start taking RMDs. QCDs up to $105,000 can be taken in 2024.

Consider a donor-advised fund. If you're interested in a long-term charitable giving arrangement, you might want to consider establishing a donor-advised fund. You can put many types of assets into this fund, and then direct it to make grants periodically to the charities you've chosen. You get an immediate tax deduction for your contribution, and, if you donate appreciated assets, such as stocks, you'll avoid the capital gains taxes you would have incurred if you simply sold the stocks and then gave the money to the charities. One note of caution, though – your contributions to a donor-advised fund are irrevocable, and once the assets are in the fund, you can't use them for anything except charitable giving.

These strategies – QCDs and donor-advised funds in particular – can be complex and involve several issues of which you should be aware. So, you should consult your tax advisor before taking action. But if any of these techniques are appropriate for your situation, give them some thought – because helping a charitable group and getting tax benefits for doing so is a “win” for everyone.

Selection and care of living holiday trees

Dress up a potted dwarf spruce, Norfolk Island pine, lemon cypress or topiary Rosemary or lavender plant for the holidays and enjoy its beauty all year. Add a bit of garland and a few small ornaments for a festive effect.

Norfolk Island pines have long been decked out and displayed for the holidays. Smaller specimens can be placed on a tabletop, and larger ones can be used as indoor floor plants when space allows. Grow Norfolk Island pines in a cool well-lit location free of hot and cold drafts. Occasionally, turn plants growing in front of windows to ensure even growth.

Avoid low humidity and dry soil, often resulting in dry brown needles and branches. Use a gravel tray to reduce your workload and increase your growing success. Place pebbles in the plant saucer and set the container on the pebbles so it rests above any excess water that collects in the saucer. Water thoroughly and often enough to keep the soil slightly moist. The excess water that collects in the saucer increases humidity around the plant.

Tabletop lemon cypress (Cupressus macrocarpa 'Goldcrest Wilma') trees have filled the benches at garden centers and florists for the past few holiday seasons. Their fragrant chartreuse needles and upright conical shape make them a cheery addition to your winter décor. Grow them in a brightly lit location near a draft-free window and water thoroughly when the top few inches are dry to the touch. Those who garden in zones seven to ten can move them into their landscape or add them to their outdoor containers after the danger of frost has passed. This dwarf variety can eventually reach six feet tall and three to four feet wide.

Enjoy the beauty, fragrance, and flavor of a topiary Rosemary tree. Grow it in a brightly lit location and water thoroughly when the top few inches of soil begin to dry. Regularly trim the branches to maintain the upright tree shape. Use clip-pings to season your favorite holiday dishes.

Consider growing a tree-shaped lavender plant this holiday season for its attractive foliage and calming fragrance. Grow your lavender in a south-facing or other sunny window. Find a cool spot in your home away from hot and cold air drafts. The cooler air helps increase your indoor growing success. Water it thoroughly when the top inch of soil is dry to the touch. Pour off any excess water that collects in the saucer.

If you want a tree that can be moved outdoors into the landscape or a container in hardiness zones two to six, consider growing a tabletop dwarf Alberta spruce tree (Picea glauca 'Conica'). Grow it in a very cool bright location indoors. Water thoroughly as needed pouring off any excess water that collects in the saucer.

If the buds break and new growth appears, wait until the danger of frost has passed to move it outdoors. Just change out the seasonal decorations and enjoy it on Valentine's Day, Easter, and any spring holiday celebrations. Grow it outside in a sunny location protected from winter wind and sun to prevent the needles from drying. Watch for spider mites which are a common pest on this landscape plant.

These plants also make great gifts for the holidays and for the host or hostess. You and your gift recipients will enjoy the beauty of these plants throughout the holidays and beyond.

Padre Pio

In the small Italian village of Pietrelcina, on May 25, 1887, Francesco Forgione was born into a humble family of farmers. No one could have predicted that this boy, who would later take the name Padre Pio, would become one of the most enigmatic and revered figures in modern Catholicism.

Padre Pio's journey to the priesthood began early. As a child, he claimed to have mystical experiences, including visions of Jesus and Mary. At 15, he entered the Capuchin Order, and by 23, he was ordained a priest. But it wasn't his sermons or pastoral care that made him famous—it was the miraculous and inexplicable phenomena that surrounded him.

Perhaps the most famous aspect of Padre Pio's life was his stigmata—wounds resembling those of Christ on the cross. In 1918, while praying, Padre Pio reportedly received these marks, which he bore for 50 years until his death.

The stigmata were examined multiple times by medical professionals, with opinions ranging from supernatural to psychological or physical causes. The Vatican conducted thorough investigations into these claims over decades, reflecting both skepticism and respect.

POSITIVELY

Ultimately, the Church ruled the stigmata as genuine and beyond natural explanation, contributing to his canonization in 2002.

His mystical gifts didn't stop there. Padre Pio was said to possess the ability to bilocate—appearing in two places at once—and to read souls, revealing private details during confessions that penitents hadn't disclosed.

These accounts, while widely believed by his devotees, are based on anecdotal evidence and lack independent verification, leading skeptics to question their authenticity. Padre Pio humbly attributed all his gifts to God, famously saying, "I only want to be a poor friar who prays."

For all the awe he inspired, skepticism followed him, too. Was the stigmata self-inflicted? Were the stories exaggerated by adoring followers? In the 1920s, the Church temporarily restricted Padre Pio's public ministry, citing concerns about the authenticity of his wounds and the intensity of his following. These questions persist but don't diminish the enduring allure of his legacy.

Of all the mysteries tied to Padre Pio, none are as dramatic—or as spine-tingling—as the stories from World War II. San Giovanni Rotondo, where Padre Pio lived, was under threat from Allied bombing campaigns. Intelligence reports indicated German munitions near the town, making it a likely target.

But according to eyewitness accounts, strange things happened whenever Allied planes flew near the area. Pilots reported seeing a figure in the sky—a monk with outstretched arms—forcing them to veer off course. Bombs either dropped harmlessly into nearby fields, or missions were abandoned altogether due to unexplained mechanical failures. These stories, while captivating, lack corroboration in wartime records and are primarily based on post-war testimonies.

One American pilot, shaken by what he described as a vision of a monk in the air, visited San Giovanni Rotondo after the war. When he saw Padre Pio, he recognized him immediately as the figure who had appeared before his plane.

This account and others like it were popularized by author Frank Rega in "Padre Pio and America."

While these stories border on the unbelievable, they come from multiple sources. Even skeptics wonder: How was the town spared when so many others weren't? Could these be tales of coincidence and wartime imagination, or were they miraculous interventions?

Stories like these invite both awe and doubt. How much of what we hear is faith-driven embellishment, and how much points to something beyond human understanding?

He once remarked: "In books we seek God; in prayer we find him..."

Perhaps it is that unwavering belief in prayer and divine intervention that makes stories of Padre Pio so compelling.

Whether or not Padre Pio truly appeared as a "flying monk" to Allied pilots, the fact remains: his life continues to captivate millions.

As we consider these extraordinary tales, we don't have to decide whether they are fact or fiction. Instead, we can marvel at their ability to inspire and remind us of the mysteries that surround the human experience.

During our time of division and uncertainty, perhaps the most valuable takeaway from Padre Pio's life is his simple yet profound message: "Pray, hope, and don't worry."

renew fragrance in the dried flower mix.

Want your fresh flowers to last a bit longer? Simply add a few drops of vodka along with a teaspoon of sugar to the water in the vase. The vodka kills bacteria, extending the life of the blooms.

And you can whip up an effective air freshener with vodka. To do: In a spray bottle, mix together six ounces water (distilled if possible), one ounce of vodka, and your choice of essential oil (about 20-30 drops). Shake up and spray!

Dental Floss: Hanging a picture and don't have any wire? Doubled up dental floss is strong enough to substitute on lightweight pictures.

Are photos stuck together? Instead of pulling apart, lessen the risk of damage by gently shimmying the floss between the photos to pry them off.

Swaging holiday greenery? Green mint dental floss serves as a strong (and invisible) tie to wind around garlands to hang down stairways or along a mantle.

And unflavored dental floss can also be used to truss a turkey.

Dental floss even works as a quick fix to restring beaded jewelry.

Here are some additional multi-purpose ideas:

Have extra roof shingles? Stow a few in your trunk during winter weather. If you get stuck, wedge the shingle under the tire for traction.

Need to clean a grout stain? Saturate a cotton ball in bleach and place it on the stain until it fades out.

Save plastic newspaper sleeves. The long bags protect shoes from other clothing when packing a suitcase.

Wet boots from winter weather? Stuff newspaper inside your shoes and they'll dry out faster.

Newspaper also works to prevent odors in thermos bottles between uses. Just pack crumpled newspaper into the bottle before closing to store.

Stuff Styrofoam packing peanuts into a bean bag chair to puff it back up without spending a dime!

Spray some no stick cooking spray on your snow shovel to help heavy, wet snow from sticking to it.

DUDLEY — More than 200 vendors participated in Shepherd Hill Regional High Schools annual holiday kickoff event on Nov. 23, the Festival of Crafts. For the 32nd year the event served to help start the holiday shopping season with crafters spread throughout the halls and gym of the high school continuing a tradition for many of supporting local businesses and raising money for a great cause. All the proceeds benefit the Shepherd Hill music program with parents, supporters, and students from the program staffing the event to serve food, sell raffle tickets, assist the vendors, and even provide some fun holiday music and spirit throughout the day. The 33rd edition of the event has already been scheduled for Nov. 22, 2025.

Historical Society discusses hidden Holland potter's work

CORRESPONDENT

STURBRIDGE — Sometimes, history is made in plain sight. Sometimes, it's hidden deep in the woods.

The latter was the subject of most recent Sturbridge Historical Society presentation, where Doug Lyons and Mike Forand discussed their excavation of 18th century potter John Hines's kiln site found by chance in the forest off Stafford Road, Holland. The duo excavated the site for three seasons in the 1980s, sending most of their materials to Old Sturbridge Village.

Unlike many people of that era, Hines was actually listed in deeds and other documents as a potter. In most cases, they said, potters and other side jobs weren't mentioned that way; almost everyone was listed as "farmer."

Lyons said they'd researched Hines' background, finding that he was probably born in 1714 in Cambridge, but lived in South Woodstock before going to Holland. He served in the French and Indian War (1754-63), married and had a child, but there's no clear death record — either 1793 or "as late as 1815," probably because he was a pauper.

At some point, he might have learned the pottery trade from potters in Charlestown, which was "a large source of pottery" in those days. Citing Justin Thomas's book on Charlestown potters, Lyons noted reports of their "ceramics ending up in Maine and other places."

Lyons said they also found contemporary references to "an unknown potter in Yale Forest in Woodstock" that might have been Hines shortly before his arrival in Holland.

Lyons said they found the site "while looking for bottles in the woods," when they found shards of pottery while digging around a cellarhole. Forand added they collected at least three boxes of such shards, all of them now at OSV.

"I don't know pottery from biscuits," Lyons admitted.

So they collected flat, fired pieces that "were a mystery" to them. When they presented the pieces to a friend at OSV, he identified them as being "kiln furniture" — various fragments used in the clay-baking process and/or parts of the kiln itself.

Forand later noted most of the kiln's bricks are still out there, which is somewhat unusual, since bricks were typically reused. They revisited the site, now owned by Norcross Wildlife Sanctuary, shortly before their presentation and partly cleared it of 40 years of overgrowth.

The 1980s dig — two weeks a year for the three years — was led by OSV archaeologist John Worell. It actually found two foundations, a well, and a corncrib, plus a nearly-circular kiln (very similar to the design of the Yale Forest site) on one side of a wall that probably separated it from Hinds's living space. The project didn't explore the domestic side, and didn't find anything intact, collecting mostly from the kiln's waste pile.

In fact, Lyons later added, "The site has not been fully excavated There's a lot more there to be explored and a lot of questions to be answered," possibly by a university archaeology school project.

Most of the artifacts were kiln furniture, kitchen pottery and tableware, mostly of the "redware" style, but "it's interesting what we didn't find" — flowerpots, pipes, tiles or bedpans, which were also often redware in those days, they said. That pottery style was cheap, easily broken, easily discarded and replaced, and Hines mostly made stuff with a "simple and modest" design.

"Redware pottery is more like Tupperware," Lyons said. "Who pays attention to Tupperware? ... If it got damaged, you go out and buy more. ... the stuff that was more colorful and designed, that's not John Hines."

However, they also found some evidence Hines worked on something else, too — a "thin, black incised ware" of about "teacup size" in which he carved curly designs. "It may be experimental. We only found a few pieces and haven't found it anywhere else other than John Hines," Forand said.

One audience member wondered where his clay came from.

Forand said they didn't know. "We never saw any clay deposits [in that area] and don't know of any reference to any." But there was a brick factory elsewhere in Holland, so Hines might have used the same clay deposit and hauled it home from there. It's also possible he found some in nearby lowlying wetland sites, but there's no record of such things.

When Lyons listed several books and online resources (including a Facebook page for the site itself), another audience member noted there are often transcription errors online. "The old style script gets really messed up when you're asking a computer to transcribe it," she said. But you can often compare the original image with the transcription to see them.

"If John Hines were here, he'd wonder what the big deal is" of a roomful of people talking about his work, Lyons added.

Sage to retire as library trustee

CORRESPONDENT

CHARLTON — It's not uncommon for public servants to give many years to their community. Many spend over a decade on elected boards and commissions to be a bigger part of the public process for the betterment of their town. In Charlton, one of the community's most vocal members has spent over 20 years helping its library flourish and grow and is now preparing to retire once his current term is over.

Stefan Sage is a well-known name in Charlton especially if anyone has attended town meetings where he often serves as a non-antagonistic voice to spark discussion on many town issues. However, many may also know him as a longtime member of the Library Board of Trustees serving over two decades on the elected body. Sage made the official announcement on Nov. 19 in a joint meeting of all the town's elected boards and commissions that his current three-year term will be his last putting him as 25 years of service once his tenure is complete.

"I think it's just time for other people in the community to join in on that process," Sage said in his announcement. "I've been very pleased and proud of what we've accomplished from an 18th century library to a 21st century library, and hopefully into the 22nd century as well. I've been proud to serve in this ca-capacity."

The Board of Trustees serves as the local government authority of the town's library overseeing decisions that impact library operations. Sage currently serves as the Board's chair. Sage's love of libraries was sparked at an early age when he became an assistant at his school library in sixth grade. That early exposure helped cultivate his love of everything the library represents as a source of information and literacy and an important place for the community to bond. While town officials expressed their sadness as Sage's pending retirement, he said he is at peace with the decision and hopes to encourage younger members of the community to serve on the board.

"I feel that it's time for new blood to come in and be as passionate. I'd love to somebody in their 20's come on to the (board). Thirties is good too, 40's are good," said Sage. "I have chosen that this is my time."

Those wishing to learn more about the Trustees or get involved can call the Charlton Public Library at 508-248-0452 and leave a message with a staff member for a Board member to call back. The Trustees can also be reached by mail through the address Charlton Public Library Board of Trustees, c/o Charlton Public Library, 40 Main St., Charlton, MA 01507.

Master Masons don't disappoint community!

BY BRO. JIMMY FALZONE
QUINEBAUG MASONIC LODGE

SOUTHBRIDGE — On Saturday, Nov. 30, it was a cold blistering night at the Christmas Tree Lighting festivities on Southbridge common. This annual event that Quinebaug Masonic Lodge participates in is part of their Community Outreach Program.

Volunteers from Webster Masonic Lodge

wanted in on the action and fun and participated at this annual tradition event. Both Lodges put smiles on many, many people and children's faces with the selling of kettle corn, hot dogs, fried Oreo cookies and fried dough. There were vendors selling Christmas ornaments that light up that you could wear around your neck or on your hats. A DJ played

Christmas music in the gazebo and a vendor selling hot coffee and coco and much, much more. There were very long lines at the Quinebaug Lodge's booth to get those tasty treats the lodge was selling. When the parade started and Santa came by, the lines were still long while many adults and children watched the parade go by.

The common was lit up with Christmas lights and decorations of all kinds. No one at this event seemed to mind the wind and cold because there was so much to see and do. and to install interactive “smart technology” ($7,500).

Regarding the smart-board, Town Manager Jack Jovan noted it can allow meetings in that room to be recorded; unlike most meeting spaces, it doesn't have cameras in part because it's often used for executive sessions.

Regarding the printer, he said it'd enable the town to allow contractors to buy copies the town now has to go out of Town Hall to get. The department will have to build the payment into its budget after the first two years.

Regarding the “smart” tech, he said the town's getting it at half price because he's taking advantage of a deal offered for attending a recent conference. Mike Marketti noted the paperwork says it uses Windows 10, which is no longer supported, urging upgrade to Windows 11. Jovan agreed, saying “that conversation was part of our presentation when they came.”

Part of the cost for those items came from reallocating small remaining amounts from older projects. (One was just eight cents.)

At the night's other extreme, the council also approved a $3.15 million contract to Amorello Paving to do the long-awaited River/Crane Street project. As mentioned in prior meetings, that work is being largely done with grant money, and its design was completed back in July. For a while, the plan called only for doing the stretch east of the bridge, but it has since been expanded all the way to Pleasant Street.

As usual, most items were approved unanimously, except two.

Marketti was the sole no vote on buying ammonium nitrate as part of the town's water treatment system because it's used to make chloramines. He argued “there's a lot of controversy about putting chloramines in the water. It can cause health issues. It's documented; I'm not making this up.”

Indeed, ScienceDaily.com recently reported on US/Swiss research identifying “a previously unknown compound in chlorinated drinking water” called chloronitramide anion. The report observed, “While its toxicity is not presently known, its prevalence and similarity to other toxic compounds is concerning and warrants further study to assess its public health risk.”

One of that paper's researchers, Julian Fairey of the University of Arkansas, is quoted as saying that water disinfection creates “chronic toxicity, really. A certain number of people may get cancer from drinking water over several decades. But we haven't identified what chemicals are driving that toxicity.”

The story is at <https://www.sciencedaily.com/releases/2024/11/241121141048.htm>, and several chloramine-related stories are on the same website. Southbridge has been using chloramines to decontaminate water for years, in part because of concerns about how long water sits in the pipes between the reservoirs and the most distant users, some of them in Charlton. (Marketti cited that, arguing he didn't mind if Charlton wanted to chlorinate, but didn't want it in Southbridge.)

The other split vote – also with a single no (Joe Daou)– was over a revised contract with Uni- first for DPW uniforms.

A couple weeks ago, the council approved it as a 5 percent increase, but Jovan said that was an error and it should have been 10 percent “right off the bat.”

Such a hike riled Daou, who noted, “I own three companies. They charge me 3 percent, not five. Why are we going to give them 10?” He and Marketti asked if the town priced such service elsewhere.

Jovan noted this is a renewal with an existing provider, and DPW Director Rich Benoit said he'd be willing to price check elsewhere. Benoit said this is “a very limited contract” providing full uniforms (11 pants, 11 shirts and two jackets) for the three mechanics plus pants for about half of the staff, who get t-shirts and other items from the town itself. Normally, such contracts cover the entire DPW staff, he said.

The council also approved $36,000 for water department gatehouse roof repairs and an agreement to allow Central Mass Lightning softball league to use Morris Street Field alongside other users.

ing: the AYC Nationals in Orlando, Fla., where they will compete next week against the best teams in the country.

The road to Nationals has been no small feat for these talented athletes. At each level of competition—Central Massachusetts, State, and Regional—the teams had only two minutes and 30 seconds to pull off a flawless routine, combining advanced stunts, tumbling, and synchronized choreography, all while facing some of the toughest teams in the region. Their ability to excel under such pressure showcases the skill, precision, and commitment of these young athletes.

“Our cheerleaders have poured their hearts into this journey,” said Melissa Lotter, Cheer Director for the Charlton Dudley Rams. “From hours of practice to their unforgettable performances, these athletes have demonstrated incredible resilience, teamwork, and determination. We are so proud of what they've accomplished and can't wait to see them shine on the national stage.”

In addition to their rigorous preparations for Nationals, the Rams Cheer Teams are rallying the community to help make their dream trip a reality. The cheerleaders have launched several fundraising efforts, including community events and giveaways, and have set up a GoFundMe campaign to offset the costs of travel, accommodations, and competition fees.

“We're so grateful for the support we've received from the community thus far,” continued Melissa Lotter. “It's this kind of encouragement that fuels our teams to achieve greatness both on and off the mat. We're asking for everyone to rally behind these amazing kids and help them bring home a win!”

The Charlton Dudley Rams invite the community to join their efforts to support these young athletes. Donations can be made via their GoFundMe page Fundraiser by Melissa Lotter : Help Charlton Dudley Cheerleaders Shine in Florida!, and updates on their journey can be found on their social media channels.

has grown immensely and shifting more burden on businesses would slow that growth.

"Towns who have split historically have always tried to find a way to get them back because by its very nature you are discouraging businesses from coming in because they'll be paying higher taxes," said Borowski. "There's a reason larger industries, for good or bad, are coming in right now, but it is helping our overall taxpayer relief for our residents. To move against that in my opinion would be, for all intents and purposes, saying that we are against economic development and I'm never going to pursue that path."

Selectmen approved staying with the single tax rate for another year. Stanley's presentation set the single tax rate estimate at $11.13, or $5,022 for the average household. Looking at comparable surrounding towns that puts Charlton second to Dudley for lowest tax rate in the area.

The Board of Selectmen also considered a Small Commercial Exemption which would apply to owner occupied businesses of ten employees or less and valued at less than a million dollars. This was not recommended nor was it approved for implementation. A residential exemption, typical implemented in communities for non-owner-occupied facilities like apartment buildings, was also not recommended or approved. Finally, the Board of Selectmen, on the recommendation of the assessor, also voted down the option to implement an Open Space Discount.

only preserves critical wildlife habitat but also safeguards the eastern edge of the Cohasse Brook Reservoir, protecting the drinking water supply for Southbridge residents.

"As our communities grow and change, it is important to plan carefully to protect the important land and water that is essential for healthy communities," said Laney Wilder, Executive Director of Opacum Land Trust. "We're not just protecting land; we're ensuring the long-term health and vitality of our region."

Matching gift challenge doubles donor impact

In an exciting development, the first $23,000 in donations will be matched, effectively doubling the impact of each contribution. First time donors who give before Dec. 31 will also receive a special New Member Welcome Kit, adding an extra incentive to support the organization's critical work.

A legacy of conservation

As Opacum Land Trust approaches its 25th anniversary in 2025, the organization reflects on the protection of more than 4,000 acres of land in our communities, many of which are open to the public for hiking, biking, hunting, fishing, and more. From its founding to today, Opacum has been instrumental in preserving the natural landscapes that define Central Massachusetts.

"We've seen countless families like the Para's who want to protect their land but need support," Wilder added. "Our upcoming 25th anniversary is not just a milestone, but a recommitment to our core mission: to engage communities in the protection of land, water, and wildlife for the benefit of current and future generations."
