Gatzke promoted to Highway Superintendent in Dudley

BY JASON BLEAU
CORRESPONDENT

DUDLEY — After spending most of 2024 leading the department, Acting Dudley Highway Superintendent Melvin “M.J.” Gatzke has officially been promoted to fill the position full time.

Gatzke was named the Acting Superintendent in March after the departure of Jeffrey Murray in January. His performance impressed the Highway Superintendent Search Committee who recommended his appointment in early November. The Board of Selectmen unanimously approved the recommendation.

Gatzke has served the department for 14 years as a foreman, learning under the leadership of his predecessors before taking on the Acting Superintendent role. Dudley Chief of Police Marek Karłowicz, who served on the Superintendent Search Committee, said

As severe fire weather persists, Dudley extends outdoor fire restrictions

DUDLEY — With outdoor fuel sources extremely dry and no meaningful precipitation expected, Dudley Fire Chief Dean Kochanowski and municipal leaders are extending restrictions on any outdoor fires at least until Friday, Nov. 22.

“This has been an unprecedented fall fire season in Massachusetts,” said Chief Dean Kochanowski. “The current and expected weather conditions mean that any outdoor fire is likely to spread quickly and become difficult to control. In Dudley, those fires could easily spread to homes and other properties.”

Burning yard waste is already prohibited across Massachusetts through Jan. 15 and year-round in some communities under 310 CMR 7.07, the Open Burning regulation. The local fire restriction additionally restricts the outdoor use of fire pits, chimineas, candles, cooking/heating equipment, and other ignition sources under Section 10.10.2 of the Massachusetts Comprehensive Fire Safety Code.

The Code grants fire officials the authority to prohibit any and all open flames and other ignition sources under certain hazardous conditions, including extreme drought. About 200 Massachusetts municipalities have imposed these prohibitions.

Any requests for permits for outdoor fires, hot work such as cutting/grinding, and other activity will be decided in light of the ongoing fire risk.

All of Massachusetts, including Dudley, is facing an unprecedented fall wildfire season. While the state averages 15 to 20 fires a month in October and November each year, local fire departments have reported more than 500 fires since Oct. 1. These fires have burned more than 1,500 acres — rivalling average statewide totals for an entire year. Many of these fires have damaged homes and other properties, and they are taxing local and regional firefighting resources.

According to Chief Dean Kochanowski, the Massachusetts Department of Fire Services, and the Department of Conservation & Recreation’s Bureau of Forest Fire Control & Forestry, almost all of these fires start with human activity and can be prevented by limiting outdoor activity that involves open flames, sparks and embers, hot engines or gasoline from power equipment, and other ignition sources.

Kochanowski recommended the following fire prevention strategies during this period of severe fire risk:

- Follow local and state guidance on outdoor ignition sources. Remember that burning yard waste is prohibited statewide through January and in many communities year-round. Many cities and towns have implemented temporary restrictions on any outdoor fires until conditions improve.

- Refrain from outdoor cooking and heating. Sparks and embers from chimineas, fire pits, and grills can easily ignite dry vegetation, debris, and overhanging branches.

- Use caution with lawnmowers, leaf blowers, all-terrain vehicles, and other power equipment. Hot engines, sparks, and spilled gasoline can ignite dry leaves and grass.

- Dispose of ashes from fireplaces and wood stoves in a metal can.

Threads of Hope Closet opens at Webster UCC

WEBSTER — The Webster United Church of Christ, Federated congregation is thrilled to announce the Threads of Hope Closet is finally open! This amazing community outreach would not have been possible without a generous grant from the Janet Malser Humanities Trust, a generous donation from the Fels family, and the support and donations from the community.

The Closet opened officially on Oct. 24 with a ribbon cutting ceremony, which included many supporters such as State Sen. Ryan Fattman (who gave the church a State Senate official Citation recognizing the ministry), as well as State Rep. Joseph McKenna, representatives of the Sheriff’s Department, Town Selectmen, and representatives of local churches and organizations. Marilyn Fels cut the ribbon to welcome everyone in the space. Needless to say, our gratitude extends first and foremost to our amazing, dedicated volunteers, who give of themselves tirelessly!

Our Threads of Hope closet is filled with free clothing, socks, underwear, winter boots, shoes, blankets, tarps, tents, sleeping bags, hand-warmers, hygiene products (including feminine hygiene and items for children), backpacks, etc. We are also working on opening free laundry facilities. The closet is open several times a week (Tuesdays and Thursdays, 9-11 a.m., Thursdays, 4-7 p.m., and the 1st Sunday of the month, noon to 3 p.m.).

We welcome any donations, especially winter items such as coats, boots, gloves, etc.

In this season of Thanksgiving, we are incredibly grateful to all who have been involved in our mission to the community, whether with the Threads of Hope closet, or with the Feed my Sheep free weekly meal ministry. We would love to extend an invitation to the community to give thanks together during our free Thanksgiving meal on Thursday, Nov. 28, at 2 p.m.

November birthday celebrants and acts of kindness at Bay Path

CHARLTON — Donita Bytyqi of Grafton and Flory Muleka of Worcester, both members of the Practical Nursing (PN) Class of 2025 at Bay Path Practical Nursing Academy celebrated their November birthdays through the acts of kindness of the rest of the PN Class of 2025 as coordinated by Nadeige Octavius, also of Worcester. Octavius recognized that some practical nursing students struggle to find the balance not just of work-life but in their nursing journey, work-life-school balance. The struggle to check in mentally, physically, and emotionally be fully balanced while juggling home, work, and school is real. By celebrating birthdays and engaging in acts of celebration, the idea is to lessen the struggle. Octavius gladly stepped up to help celebrate her peers. Her acts of kindness do not go unnoticed. According to research, "spreading kindness not only helps others feel better about themselves -- it can also boost the giver's health and happiness!" November 13th is World Kindness Day and the PN Class of 2025 shared simple ways they connected through kindness, even the smallest acts can create a ripple effect strengthening our connections to one another. Practicing kindness gives the PN Class of 2025, faculty, staff, and alumni of Bay Path Practical Nursing Academy a powerful way to connect to each other, themselves, and their values.

"Wherever there is a human being, there is an opportunity for a kindness," wrote Seneca.

Kindness is powerful, and it shapes lives in ways that one may not easily realize. Kindness is sharing in someone else's humanity. Kindness is choosing to act with care, even when it is difficult to. Sometimes, choosing kindness is a small, quiet choice. But kindness leaves an indelible mark.

Gretheline Bolandrina, DHA, MSN Ed, RN, CRRN Academy Director is grateful for the members of the PN Class of 2025 for sharing their kind gestures.

nurses continue to make the world a better place," she said. "Our faculty and staff not only produce competent and prudent nurses they are kind-hearted nurses. All acts of kindness, big and small, change the world, and kindness given to others is also a gift to oneself."

Here, members of the PN Class of 2025 share their acts of kindness. Kindness that they do every single day, even in the smallest ways.

"An act of kindness I did over the weekend, at work I was on a two on one, and I tidied up both patients' room, so they had a clean room to wake up to!" said Katelyn Smith

"Sharing an act of kindness from Donita. Last week she bought our clinical group dinner on Wednesday (pizza and soda) when she did not have to! It was exceedingly kind of her and very much appreciated," Johanna Marrero shared.

"I would like to call out not just one act of kindness done to me, but multiple acts of kindness this person has done. Nadeige has the greatest heart and always makes sure I am good. When we first started school, she would always cook for her four children and always made sure to bring some for me and Britney, even though she did not know Britney, she just knew she was my friend. Last week, my washer machine broke, so I had my laundry bucket in my car. Nadeige saw it when we were at school, so she took it without telling me and washed my clothes and called me the next day to go to her house and pick it up. This time last year was when we met at work. Just a few days before my birthday. She found out through other coworkers that it was my birthday, so she threw a surprise birthday party for me with a cake and a big basket filled with a bunch of gifts. She will do anything to see people happy. Nadeige goes out of her way to help everyone she can. Just in 2 months in this school, more than half of the class can say she has done something to help them out with whatever it may be. I am more than blessed to have such a kind soul in my life, and I hope one day I will be able to do anything and everything in return for her," said Donita Bytyqi.

"Last year, during the month of December, I met a young woman with three small children in my local grocery store. As I shopped, I watched as this young woman kept counting how much she was spending and explaining to her children this week we cannot buy some of the items her children had brought to the cart. Being in this same situation many years ago, I stayed behind her picking up the items that this young woman kept putting back on the shelves because she could not afford them, along with some essentials that I thought could help. I quickly used the self-checkout and waited for the family to go to their car. As she was loading the small number of groceries she could afford into a car, I walked over with my cart and said, 'Let me help you.' When I began giving her bags from my cart, she explained that those were not hers, I said 'Yes they are, I've been in your shoes, and I want to help,'" said Bobbiejo Smith.

"I would like to share how Abigail white and Nadeige supported me when my car was repossessed. What they did really brought me to tears because we all are students and struggling financially but they choose to sacrifice to help me out. I am grateful and pray God bless them. Adelaide also picked me up, advised, and prayed for me. In the morning, she called to make sure I was okay," recalled Miriam Botuo.

Masons honor service of District Deputy Grand Master

BY BRO. JIMMY FALZONE
QUINEBAUG MASONIC LODGE

UXBRIDGE — On Thursday, Nov. 14, the District Deputy Grand Master (DDGM) of the 24th Masonic District, Brother Jonathan Neitz, had his last official meeting at the Solomon Temple Masonic Lodge in Uxbridge Ma. Master Mason from throughout the 24th Masonic District and the state traveled to Uxbridge to thank him for his service. Many delegates traveled from the Grand Masonic Lodge of Boston were also in attendance to honor and thank this "Worthy of a Man."

The DDGM held this position for two years. A new DDGM is then elected from the Grand Masonic Lodge located in Boston. Brother Jonathan Neitz was responsible for seven lodges in his 24th Masonic District which included the towns of Auburn, Charlton, Temple Masonic Lodge in Uxbridge Ma. Master Mason from throughout the 24th Masonic District and the state traveled to Uxbridge to thank him for his service. Many delegates traveled from the Grand Masonic Lodge of Boston were also in attendance to honor and thank this "Worthy of a Man."

visits of his term, the Lodge holding this meeting is filled with Master Masons from other lodges from other districts who want to show their respect and gratitude for his service.

Simply put, Master Masons witnessed the rise of a "Worthy of a Man." As Master Masons we had the opportunity to witness and experience first-hand the results of "cause and effect" or simply put the ripple theory. As we go about our day-to-day life, we sometimes forget the small and large gestures we experience with others. The very simplest of things could mean the world to someone, especially during this time of year. As Master Masons we always strive to make that "ripple" extend far beyond our pond. The light of Masonry shined bright in him as he traveled to other Masonic Lodges throughout the state, with the simplest of a handshake, well wishes, determination and participation in all the lodges endeavors.

This is what Freemasonry is all about. The comradery and friendships you build as a Master Mason will last the rest of your life. If you would like additional information about what we are all about go to www.massfreemasonry.org and read about Freemasonry. You can also find a Masonic Lodge located near you.

Join Julie or Lauren at the Gladys E. Kelly Library for a vinyasa yoga class for all levels. In Sanskrit, Vinyasa yoga translates to the "uniting of movement with breath". A typical class involves centering the mind with the breath, aromatherapy, movement of the body to release energetic blockages, and, finally, rest and relaxation. Classes are free. Funded by the Friends of the Gladys E. Kelly Public Library.

The Hot Flashes are an exciting and eclectic group fronted by three female vocalists who have made a name for themselves on the New England music scene showcasing their tight vocal harmonies and jazzy acoustic stylings. The Flashes are Amy Gallatin, who with her expressive soulful singing has made a name for herself both in North America and overseas, award-winning singer-songwriter/guitarist Gail Wade, and multi-instrumentalist Peggy Harvey, founding member of the legendary bluegrass group Traver Hollow. Backed by the solid chops of mandolinist JD Williams, Dobro veteran Roger Williams—both from Gallatin's band Stillwaters—and bassist John Urbanik, the instrumentation also includes the occasional clawhammer banjo. As a group these six veteran musicians meld their collective experiences, voices and instruments into a unique and rousing musical experience as the three women fuse their distinct voices into one soaring, harmonious musical element.

Save Main Street: Shop local and keep our towns alive

In a world dominated by two-day shipping and digital convenience, it's easy to forget the personality of our communities, the small businesses that line our Main Streets. These aren't just shops; they're the heartbeats of our towns, and the places where neighbors gather. They are the framework of New England's charm, the pillars of local economies, and the custodians of our town's character. Without them, what remains?

The reality is stark: every time we opt for an online order instead of visiting a local shop, we make a choice about the future of our communities. Small businesses are facing a relentless uphill battle, competing not only with giant corporations but also with the shifting habits of modern consumers. And when these businesses close, they take more than their storefronts with them—they take jobs, vibrancy, and a sense of belonging.

Shopping locally isn't just about buying goods; it's about investing in the people around us. That cup of coffee from the corner café supports a family. That thrift store find funds local charities. That gift shop purchase puts money back into the local economy, where it's reinvested to improve schools, roads, and public services. Your dollar goes further when spent locally because it stays local.

But this requires a conscious effort. Yes, online shopping is convenient, but at what cost? Do we really want to trade ease for a future of shuttered windows and hollowed-out Main Streets? Do we want our children to grow up in communities where "downtown" is a relic of the past?

We have a choice. This holiday season and beyond, let's make an intentional effort to visit our local bookstores, bakeries, and boutiques. Explore the unique treasures of thrift shops. Say yes to the farmer's market, the family-owned hardware store, and the independent art gallery. These businesses are run by our neighbors—people who support our schools, sponsor our Little League teams, and show up when we need them most.

If we don't invest in them, who will? Let's work together to keep our towns alive, vibrant, and full of opportunity. Let's shop local—not because it's trendy, but because it's essential.

Our communities depend on it. Let's not let convenience rob us of connection. Together, we can ensure that our Main Streets remain places we're proud to call home.

Be rich toward God

To be "rich toward God." What does this mean? Take a moment and reflect on what this means – to be rich toward God.

We hear this beautiful phrase in the Gospel reading about the Rich Fool, someone who was not rich toward God. Jesus Christ says, "So is anyone who lays up treasure for themselves and is not rich toward God." Such a person is a FOOL!

Imagine Christ calling you a fool. That's a scary thought, something none of us would ever want to be called when we come face to face with our Lord. And thus, He warns us anyone who lays up treasure for themselves and are not rich toward God are fools!

Well, what does this mean? It's interesting how Jesus isn't afraid to talk bluntly to people about their relationship with their possessions and wealth and to show how this relationship with our material goods reveals what type of relationship we have with God Himself.

Do our wealth and money, our possessions and material goods, control us or do we control them? Are we seeking to get more and more, adopting the American mentality of success from a consumeristic perspective – the richer we are, the more successful we are; the more we have, the happier we'll be? Do we give to the greed of the world and fall prey to envy and jealousy when others have something we don't?

Jesus calls this foolishness! Plain and simple! Foolishness to put our trust and hope in wealth and possessions. Foolishness to think this will make us happy and content. Foolishness to judge success by what we have! Foolishness to allow our wealth and possessions to feed our ego and make us self-centered people, simply looking for ways to become more comfortable and secure.

"What shall I do with all my wealth?" the rich man asked in the Gospel story? "I will pull down my barns, and build larger ones... I will say to my soul, 'Soul, you have ample goods laid up for many years; take your ease, eat, drink, be merry!'"

This sounds like a resounding successful life! How many of us admire and even envy the millionaires and billionaires of the world - the Elon Musks, the Jeff Bezos, the Mark Zuckerbergs, the Bill Gates?

And yet, Christ highlights a radically different message again and again throughout the Gospels. Don't be a fool! Be rich toward God. Don't let your possessions possess you but understand that we are but caretakers, or stewards, of all we possess. We have these possessions so that we can use them to bless others. Remember, we are Christ's ambassadors in this world. Thus, whatever we have, we use to glory His Name!

The Lord blesses us. He gives us our upbringing, our health, our intellect, our charisma, our work ethic, our opportunities to do well financially and to prosper. And then, He wants us to be rich toward God.

He doesn't bless us so that we can accumulate more and more. He doesn't bless us so that we can build bigger homes and acquire more toys to entertain ourselves with.

BEYOND THE PEWS

BY FR. LUKE A. VERONIS
SAINTS
CONSTANTINE AND HELEN
WEBSTER

He reminds us to be rich toward God with all we have. To share generously. To give freely. To understand that all we have is a blessing we receive so that we can bless others. He wants us to discover the JOY OF GIVING!

Saint John Chrysostom reminds us that whatever money and possessions we have, they are ultimately the Lord's. It's not OUR hard earned money and possessions, but whatever finances we have accumulated are God's. And we are His stewards, acting as His ambassador in the world. We are called to use whatever gifts we have to glorify His Name. And we do that by sharing, by giving, by helping others in need.

Chrysostom reminds us that "the rich man is not one who has much but one who gives much, for what he gives remains his forever." This is what it means to be rich toward God – to use our riches to bless others, to give to others, to help others.

We can read different stories in the Gospels warning us of the dangers of greed and a self-centered life compared to Christ's call for us to be rich toward God. We read about the rich man who lived extravagantly while he didn't even notice or help the poor man Lazarus right outside his doorstep. We read about the Good Samaritan who went out of his way to help a stranger, a foreigner, even someone from the despised enemy tribe and freely gave whatever was needed to help the poor man half dead on his path.

Maybe Saint Paul helps us understand being rich toward God with his beautiful phrase "It is no longer I who live but Christ who lives in me." If Christ truly is inside me, ruling in my heart, my entire perspective and goal in life will be to love my neighbor, to help my neighbor, to share my blessings with others because that is what divine love does.

When we adopt this "mind of Christ," we then will understand what it means to be rich toward God. We will realize it is a joy to share and to give of what we have.

The Lord gives us all we have. He gives us the freedom to do choose what to do with the blessings He gives us. We can choose to honor God and be rich toward Him with all we have, or we can choose to be foolish with our possessions and try to acquire more and more.

God doesn't need our gifts. Yet, He wants us to discover the joy of loving others, the joy of freely sharing our blessings, the joy of giving freely. This is why Jesus said, "It is more blessed to give than to receive." Many people don't understand this because they don't understand the heart and spirit of our Lord. He's revealing to us a secret of life – to discover the blessedness and joy of sharing our gifts with others, starting with the Church, the Family of God, and then going beyond to the world at large.

Let us be rich toward God. Don't be a fool who tries to accumulate more and more, keeping it for yourself. Discover the joy of giving and the delight in being rich toward God. Remember the words of Saint John Chrysostom, "The rich person is not one who has much but one who gives much, for what he gives remains his forever."

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR Political observations, take 2

To the Editor:

First, let me dispel the false narrative that Trump won in a landslide. Final totals are not yet complete but he barely cracked the 50% mark of the popular vote (currently at 50.2 percent). His margin of victory is currently less than 2 percent. That is the lowest popular vote winning margin since Richard Nixon's victory in 1968! As far as the Electoral College goes, we still have no "landslide." A landslide is when you sweep 49 of 50 states like Reagan beat Mondale in 1984. Trump lost 18 states! Nearly nine million people that voted in 2020 did not vote this year. It was not a "red shift," it was a "blue abandonment."

Second, I seem to remember Republicans "scheming and plotting ways to block" Biden's legislation four years ago. The Republicans voted against every legislative accomplishment that was passed except for the Infrastructure bill in which 87 percent of Republicans voted against. Yet, during this election cycle they proudly took credit for the investments in their communities.

I would like to think that I speak for many voters that think we should be working together to make things better for the bottom 90 percent of the population. But first we need to agree on the same set of facts to move forward. Sure, we will disagree on what needs to be done and how far we can go and compromise will be needed. But many Republicans (not all) prefer misinformation to the truth and facts and are not willing to compromise. That will make it difficult going forward.

Auction news

There's been lots of auction news since my last update.

Beginning with an item from the 16th century, a pair of Ming Dynasty jars sold well above their estimate at auction recently. The "fish jars were made during the reign of the Jiajing Emperor, from 1522-1566," according to CNN. They were made with advancements in ceramics design and depict golden carps along with lotus and other plants. The jars were in a home in Wiesbaden, Germany, but were moved after the start of World War II and placed in a secure location. The jars far exceeded the £1 million ($1.3 million USD) estimate selling for £9.6 million ($12.5 million USD).

Some rare presidential memorabilia including artifacts from two of America's greatest presidents will hit the auction block later this month. A lock of George Washington's hair inside a locket is one of the pieces being offered. The locket was given to a family friend of Washington's and was documented as it passed down through the generations. It's estimated to sell for $30,000 to $40,000.

ANTIQUES,
COLLECTIBLES
WAYNE TUISKULA

Another important artifact was recently discovered in a Florida museum, according to the Chicago Sun-Times. The museum manager found an old dusty shadowbox containing an American flag. The flag is dated April 14, 1865, the day after Abraham Lincoln's assassination. It was draped over Lincoln's coffin as his body traveled 1,654 miles to be buried in Springfield, Ohio. The flag was signed by New York physician Lewis Applegate, who went to school with one of the pallbearers. It's believed Applegate's school friend gave the flag to him. After Applegate signed the border, other owners followed suit which provided a documentation of ownership over the years. It has an auction estimate of $800,000 to $1.2 million.

Moving to an item from more recent times, a collection of "Star Trek" memorabilia from the popular 1960s television show had many items selling past their estimates and even saw an auction record broken. A vintage red velour duty uniform worn by Nichelle Nichols when she played Nyota Uhura had an estimate of $3,000 and sold for $114,300, according to mylanews.com. Captain Kirk's yellow velour tunic and Starfleet Command Bridge trousers worn by actor William Shatner in the first season sold for $455,000, well above the $65,000 estimate. A communicator and phaser used by William Shatner as Captain Kirk were considered "lost." The original owner "was a veteran of Hollywood's prop industry," according to ArtNet. Don Hillenbrand, a long-time collector and researcher compared the items to those that appear in early episodes and to a documentary book on the series. The effort paid off when the phaser, estimated at $100,000, boldly went where no man has gone before, setting an auction record for a "Star Trek" prop at $910,000.

We are currently cataloging for an online antiques auction in a Beacon Hill Boston estate and a large Civil War collection from a local estate. 'Tis the season: is a donor advised fund right for you?

BY CHRISTOPHER MALLON

PROGRAM MANAGER

CAPSTONE PLANNING GROUP
LOCATED AT CORNERSTONE BANK

The months of November and December usher in two of America's biggest holidays – Thanksgiving and Christmas. Friends and relatives plan get together, begin gift shopping, and children eagerly make lists for Santa Claus. For many Americans, these holidays also lead to increased feelings of gratitude and generosity. The term "Giving Season" is often used to describe this time of year; and up to 34 percent of annual online charitable donations occur within December alone.

According to the Giving USA 2023 Annual Report, Americans gave a total of $557.16 billion in 2023 with the largest source coming from individuals (individuals gave $374.40 billion or 67% of total).

If you are one of the millions of Americans that are charitably inclined, perhaps you've heard the term "Donor Advised Funds' (DAFs). If you haven't heard of DAFs – or if you don't understand their potential benefit - please read on.

DAFs were created in the 1930s but they weren't formally recognized by the IRS code until 2006. Since then, they've become one of the fastest-growing vehicles for philanthropy, with grants from DAFs accounting for nearly 10 percent of all giving in the United States. Today there are approximately 1.9 million DAF accounts in the U.S.

Because most Americans don't have the financial means to create their own endowment or foundation, a DAF can easily function in a similar capacity and be set up for low minimums. Depending on the sponsor firm chosen, the minimum initial contribution often ranges between $5,000 and $25,000.

Simply put, a DAF allows any individual (or business) to open an account, receive an immediate up-front tax deduction, and recommend grants from the account over time. Donors have the flexibility to add to their DAF as frequently or infrequently as they like. They can recommend grants to their favorite charities whenever desired, all from the convenience of one streamlined account. Plus, the assets can be prudently invested to seek growth and years of potential giving.

Common scenarios when a DAF could be worth consideration:

- You are in a high tax bracket due to the sale of a business (or appreciated asset)
- You want to lower your Adjusted Gross Income and "bunch" several years of donations into one tax year
- You typically give to multiple charities and want to simplify the administrative process
- You want to create a DAF in memory of a specific loved one, family, or organization
- You already plan to bequest a portion of your estate to charity

Most donors name

their Donor Advised Fund after themselves or family members, for example: John and Jennifer Smith Fund, or Jones Family Charitable Fund. Others name their funds for a purpose, such as: Local Children's Health Fund. If the DAF is created on behalf of a business entity, it could even be named after the organization and accept employee donations.

Everyone's charitable and financial goals are unique, and there are additional rules and regulations regarding DAFs. As a result, you should consult with a knowledgeable Financial Planner and/or Tax Consultant. Together they should be able to answer your questions and assist in determining if a DAF is right for you. Working with a professional can help simplify the setup, administration, and ongoing investment management. Maintaining a DAF does involve a combination of annual fees (administrative + investments), but the total cost is often less than donating to charity via a credit card.

At The Capstone Planning Group, we utilize an independent business model and have the flexibility to help clients choose from a variety of DAF sponsors. We also have the freedom to create investment portfolios using stocks, bonds, ETFs and mutual funds from companies including (but not limited to): American Funds, Fidelity, Blackrock, Invesco, JP Morgan, Goldman Sachs, PIMCO, State Street, Vanguard and many more

Turkey Tips

Thanksgiving is arguably the most anticipated annual holiday, and the highlight of an annual Thanksgiving celebration is the fabulous feast, with a turkey served up as the crowning centerpiece of the both the table and the holiday. A large, golden brown bird, roasted to perfection and surrounded by a medley of delicious accompaniments has no culinary competition at the dining table.

With so much at stake (and so much to go wrong), it's no wonder we're obsessed about turning out a feast on par with the roasted beauties we recall from our childhoods. Thus, this week's column offers a guide to preparing a Thanksgiving turkey along with some fun facts about the holiday bird. Happy Thanksgiving!

Many a novice cook has been intimidated by the mere thought of preparing a turkey for dinner, nonetheless for a Thanksgiving feast. The good news is turkeys are not difficult to cook, and all it takes is a little advance preparation to ensure a turkey success:

* Not sure how big a bird to cook? A general rule of thumb is to allow one pound of uncooked turkey per person from an 8 to 12 pound turkey. Larger birds have a larger proportion of meat to bones, so three quarters of a pound per person should serve well when purchasing heavier birds.

THE

* Like all protein foods, should be thawed in the refrigerator, never at room temperature. When foods are thawed at room temperature, surface bacteria can rapidly multiply to dangerous levels at temperatures of 40 degrees F and above. The National Turkey Federation offers the following guidelines to properly defrosting frozen turkeys: For safety and superior quality, leave turkey in the original packaging and place in a shallow pan. Thaw in the refrigerator, using the simple formula: whole turkeys thaw at a rate of 4 to 5 pounds per 24 hours. Example: A 15-pound frozen bird will take 3 to 4 full days to thaw in the refrigerator. To speed thawing, keep turkey in the original tightly sealed bag and place in a clean and sanitized sink or pan. Submerge in cold water and change the cold water every 30 minutes. The turkey will take about 30 minutes per pound to thaw. Refrigerate (at 40 degrees F or below) or cook the turkey when it is thawed. Do not refreeze uncooked, defrosted turkey.

 Stuffing is a delicious requisite for most Thanksgiving meals, but it's important not to stuff a turkey until just before it is placed in the oven for roasting. If preparing the stuffing ahead-of-time, wet and dry ingredients should be refrigerated separately and combined right before stuffing the turkey. The turkey should be stuffed loosely, with about three quarters of a cup of stuffing per pound of turkey. It's also important to test the internal temperature of the stuffing as well as the turkey. The internal temperature in the center of the stuffing should register 160 to 165 degrees F.

* Many a Thanksgiving meal has been delayed due to underestimating the time it takes to cook a turkey. Since turkey is low in fat and high in protein, the meat is sensitive to extreme heat and prolonged cooking. Loosely place an aluminum foil tent over the turkey breast during the first 1 to 1½ hours of roasting, then remove to allow the turkey to brown. A turkey should be cooked just until it is done. The best way to determine the level of doneness is with a food thermometer. Even if you subscribe to the "20 minute per pound rule" you should also use a thermometer to ensure the bird is fully cooked. For whole turkey, place the food thermometer in the deepest part of the thigh, but not touching the bone. The internal temperature of the turkey should measure 180 degrees F in the thigh and 170 degrees F in the breast. Juices should run clear and the drumsticks should be soft and move easily at the joint.

 *Brine is a popular prep to ensure juicy meat and crisp skin, but it can be a hassle. Try this super easy method that makes brining a breeze.

Note: Add some herbs and spices, it also infuses the turkey with additional flavor. Choose a bucket or container large enough to cover the bird with brine. To each gallon of fresh, cool water; add one cup of Kosher salt and one half cup of white or brown sugar. Pour the mixture over the turkey and refrigerate for at least 12 hours. If you want to flavor your turkey, add spices such as black peppercorns, dried thyme, garlic cloves or bay leaves to the brine. When the brining process is complete, rinse the bird well and pat dry. If you want a crispy skin, allow the turkey to air dry overnight in the refrigerator. Stuff and roast the turkey as usual. Another secret to delicious turkey is a simple spice rub, which adds not only incredible flavor to the bird, but a rich color as well. Note: If using dried spices, half the amount required. Mix together in a small bowl, three tablespoons each: chopped fresh rosemary, chopped fresh thyme, and chopped fresh tarragon; one tablespoon ground black pepper; two teaspoons salt. Pat turkey dry with paper towels and place on rack set in a roasting pan. Tie legs together loosely to hold shape of turkey. Brush turkey with a little olive oil. Rub herb mix all over turkey. Roast as usual.

Did you know?

* The average price of a whole turkey is expected to increase by just 8% in 2024, jumping from $27.9 in 2023 to $30.15

* Half of all whole turkeys sold in the United States are consumed on Thanksgiving

* A frozen turkey keeps up to a year, but usually loses some flavor, according to the folks at Butterball.

* Even a "pre basted bird" can benefit from hand basting. Basting gives your bird color, crisps the skin and helps hold in juices. Rub the bird with a few tablespoons of softened butter and pour two cups of turkey broth, chicken broth or water into your roasting pan. Baste every half hour or so. And be sure to baste quickly, because the oven temperature will reduce every time you open the oven door.

* Some seasoned chef's recommend rubbing the inside of the turkey with a cut lemon before stuffing.

* A turkey will carve more easily if you let it sit for 20 minutes to allow juices to set.

* According to the Center of Science in the Public Interest (CSPI), the Thanksgiving turkey can be safely eaten for just four days after cooking.

Webster-Dudley-Oxford Chamber donates gift cards to community food banks

WEBSTER — The Webster-Dudley-Oxford Chamber of Commerce this week donated $2,000 in grocery gift cards to Webster Dudley Food Share and $1,000 in grocery gift cards to the Oxford Ecumenical Food Shelf to support these local organizations in their mission to provide people in need this holiday season.

"There's a need out there, and we don't talk enough about it," said John Milas, chamber director. "This is all about helping our community. The number of people going to the food banks has been increasing with the rise in the cost of food."

This is the third year that the Chamber has been donating to the food banks in the form of gift cards. Previously, it donated turkeys at Thanksgiving. Milas noted that the gift card donations are now included in the Chamber's annual budget.

Webster Dudley Food Share is a non-profit organization that provides essential food to all Webster and Dudley residents in need. The Oxford Ecumenical Food Shelf provides free emergency grocery assistance to any family living in Oxford and any registered members of an Oxford church.

QCC's Community Impact Award goes to ACE volunteer

WORCESTER — Quinsigamond Community College has announced Ayman Abdelgadir as the recipient of its most recent Community Impact Awards. Abdelgadir received the award in response to his work with African Community Education (ACE), an organization that aims to empower African refugee and immigrant youth through educational, leadership and cultural programming.

Abdelgadir has been volunteering with ACE since 2009, becoming the volunteer and mentoring coordinator in 2019. His role includes recruiting volunteers and mentors for ACE's programs to assist with academic support, English for Speakers of Other Languages (ESOL) and career development. He is also the head coach of the ACE youth soccer team.

"I take pride in working with all newcomers to the community and helping them flourish to their full potential. It brings me tremendous joy to see both the youth and adults continuously reach new milestones and build a successful future," said Abdelgadir.

The Community Impact Award is a project developed by QCC's Director of Community Engagement Sean Harris in 2023. An award is given out during each athletic season to highlight individuals and/or organizations in Central Massachusetts who do impactful work with young people from underserved communities.

"I garnered feedback from our student-athletes and Ayman's name came up repeatedly from his work with the ACE soccer team. Not only that, but also his reputation precedes him in local community organizations. Everyone has high regard for Ayman," Harris said.

Abdelgadir was born in Sudan and raised in Worcester, receiving two graduate degrees from Clark University. He appreciated QCC's recognition of community development organizations and praised progress made by the many groups in the city.

"I share this award with every staff member at ACE and the other organizations in Worcester that are doing phenomenal work. In this field, we don't compete with each other, we work together," said Abdelgadir.

Born and raised in Oxford, Rodney was the son of the late Joseph P. and Shirley R. (Beauregard) Fountain. A lifelong resident of the community, he worked for Gaftek Corporation in New Hampshire for five years and was a skilled heavy equipment operator for many years.

Rodney was known for his love of pool, earning the reputation of a "pool shark" among friends. He enjoyed fishing, mowing the lawn, and taking leisurely drives around town. A hard-working man with a big heart, Rodney especially cherished time spent with his daughter and grandson.

A celebration of his life will be held at a later date. In lieu of flowers, memorial contributions may be made to UMass Memorial Health, c/o Cancer Research, One Biotech, Suite 301, 365 Plantation St., Worcester, MA 01605.

Paradis-Givner Funeral Home in Oxford is directing the arrangements.

Dream of holidays

As the holiday season heats up and the smell of roasted turkey and pumpkin pie fills the air, it's easy to get caught up in the magic of the season—and just as easy to let your dreams slip into the background.

POSITIVELY

you're chasing your dreams in the first place. Let the joy of giving inspire you to give your all in pursuit of your goals.

and jot down your biggest aspirations. Putting them on paper makes them more real.

Visualize success: As you sip on cider or watch the leaves fall, close your eyes and imagine achieving your goals. What does it look like? How will it feel?

Share your passion: Talk about your dreams with family and friends who support you. Their encouragement can spark new ideas or give you a much-needed boost.

Set a small goal before the New Year: Don't wait for January 1 to start fresh. Take one small, actionable step toward your goal now.

The holidays are the perfect reminder that life combines work and play, effort and joy, dreaming and doing. As you prepare your Thanksgiving plans—whether it's organizing a menu, tidying up the house, or coordinating with loved ones—take a moment to prepare for your goals.

Just like a well-thought-out meal comes together with care and attention, your dreams need thoughtful planning and action to thrive. Let the spirit of the season inspire you to dream bigger and work harder.

Gratitude and ambition go hand in hand. Some might argue that being happy with what you have might stifle your drive to achieve more. But think of an athlete who cherishes every victory while relentlessly training for the next one.

Here's to chasing your dreams as fiercely as you chase seconds on pumpkin pie!

Even history's greatest dreamers didn't take the holidays off when their vision was on the line. In the winter of 1879, Thomas Edison worked tirelessly at his lab in Menlo Park, perfecting the electric light bulb. His assistants reported working through snowstorms and late into the night by lamplight. The breakthrough came on New Year's Eve when his bulb successfully burned for over 13 hours, proving it was commercially viable.

Edison later said, "Genius is 1 percent inspiration and 99 percent perspiration." His dedication reminds us that even in the season of comfort, a little extra effort can lead to monumental breakthroughs.

Of course, no one wants to become a workaholic. Ebenezer Scrooge learned the hard way that all work and no play leads to misery, though his ghostly intervention came at Christmastime. Thanksgiving reminds us of balance. Gratitude is as much about appreciating where you are as it is about striving for more.

Here are a few ways to stay motivated while savoring the season:

Reflect: Take a moment to look back—not to beat yourself up, but to celebrate the progress you've made. Even small steps matter.

Write down your dreams: Grab a notebook

Between family gatherings, festive celebrations, and endless to-do lists, the holidays can feel like both a time of joy and a reminder of what you haven't yet achieved. But what if this season could be the spark to reignite your fire for your dreams?

The holidays are distracting. There's shopping to do, meals to prepare, and social media posts showing everyone else's highlight reels. That can leave you comparing your progress to others and wondering if you've fallen behind. But here's the thing—the holidays aren't about competing; they're about connection, reflection, and renewal. And that goes for your dreams, too.

Think about the power of this time of year. Latch onto the holiday spirit, express gratitude, reflect on where you've been, and just as importantly, set your sights on where you're headed.

What about that book you're writing, the weight you're losing, or the business you started that hasn't quite taken off yet? Now is not the time to hold back. Wake up a little earlier, stay up a little later—don't let your dreams take a holiday break only to resurface as New Year's resolutions. Keep the fire burning!

Let the warmth of the season fuel your ambitions. Let the love and laughter of family remind you why

Holiday cacti add weeks of color and enjoyment

Add weeks of colorful flowers and decades of enjoyment to your indoor plant collection with holiday cacti. Dress one up with a decorative basket, container, or foil wrap and give it to a favorite gardener or holiday hostess. You'll find a variety for sale at your local garden center or florist.

The plant sold as a Christmas cactus may in fact be a Thanksgiving cactus. The true Christmas cactus blooms later and has small segments with rounded edges. The Thanksgiving cactus, though often sold as the Christmas cactus, has toothed or jagged segments and typically blooms earlier. To add to the confusion, there are hybrids of the two that bloom in between these.

Fortunately, their growing requirements and care are essentially the same so the plants will do fine no matter the name on the label. Keep your flowering holiday cactus in a cool bright location to extend its bloom time for as long as four to eight weeks. Avoid hot and cold air drafts, moisture stress, and other environmental changes to reduce the risk of bud and flower drop.

These holiday cacti are epiphytes that naturally grow on trees in the rainforests of Brazil. They all prefer bright indirect light, high humidity, and thorough watering when the top few inches of soil begin to dry. Don't overwater, but don't let the soil dry completely. Water a bit more often when the plant is in bloom.

Grow them in an organic well-drained potting mix for best results. Water thoroughly and pour off any excess water that collects in the saucer to avoid root rot. Reduce maintenance and improve the growing conditions with the help of gravel trays.

tom of the foil wrap or basket. The pot will be elevated above any excess water collecting in the pebbles. As this water evaporates it increases the humidity around the plant.

Fertilize with a dilute solution of flowering houseplant fertilizer once it finishes blooming and throughout spring and summer as needed. Grow your cactus in a north-facing window or back from an east- or west-facing window where it receives bright indirect light throughout the year. Too much sun turns the leaf segments dark red.

Don't be anxious to move these plants to a bigger container. They prefer to be somewhat pot-bound and can remain in the same pot for years.

Encourage a new flush of flowers with cooler night temperatures around 55 to 60 degrees and slightly drier soil. An uninterrupted dark period will also help promote flowering.

Next fall, start the dark treatment in early October to get holiday flowers. Cover the plants or move them to a location free of artificial light, indoors or outside, each night for 14 hours and provide bright, indirect sunlight each day. Any interruption in the dark period from outdoor, street, or reading lights can delay or prevent flowering.

Make this the year you add holiday cacti to your indoor plant collection and consider purchasing a few for friends and family. These easy-care flowering beauties will brighten indoor holiday décor and everyone's mood.

Gatzke stood out as the most capable candidate for the job. "M.J. has met all the qualifications on the job description. I think he's done a great job filling in for the year or so that we've had a vacancy. I believe the whole board made a decision that M.J. deserves the opportunity to become the permanent Superintendent of the Highway Department," said Karłowicz. Selectmen praised Gatzke for keeping the Highway Department operating effectively and efficiently even with limited resources and a small staff in 2024. Board of Selectmen Chair Steve Sullivan commended Gatzke for a job well done so far and everything he will bring the department in the years to come. "In one way or another we've all said in the past when we say 'Highway Department' it doesn't even do justice - They're more than just highway workers and M.J. has worked his way up the ranks," Sullivan said of the new appointee. Gatzke was softspoken in accepting the appointment. He said his goal is to keep the department moving in a positive direction. "Hopefully, I do what everybody expects me to do. I've been doing it for the last basically almost a year so far and everything's been going pretty well so hopefully everything will be pretty good," he said.

The Board of Selectmen approved the appointment effective Nov. 4, the date of the meeting where Gatzke was presented for consideration.

M.J. Gatzke is sworn in as Dudley's new Highways Superintendent.

On Friday, Nov. 8, the fifth graders at Dudley Middle School welcomed veterans from the community for the annual Bring a Veteran to School Day. Approximately 30 veterans, who were relatives and friends of students, joined in the celebration. The seventh and eighth grade chorus and band put on an incredible performance for the veterans. The fifth grade students interviewed veterans in small groups asking about their experiences, what they learned from their service, and looking through their artifacts. The day concluded with a homemade lunch for the veterans and their student sponsors. The fifth grade team thanks everyone for their support of this important day of honoring the veterans.

“Come hang out in the goat pen”

FARMWORK OFFERS HEALING FOR DISABILITIES

BY GUS STEEVES
CORRESPONDENT

DUDLEY — Many families these days are seeking ways to help loved ones with disabilities.

Last week, a handful of people at the Dudley Grange learned of an option that long predates many of the disabilities themselves — agriculture, particularly the calming and other effects of working with animals.

For Jennifer Kearney and Beth Cogoli of Oakham's Family Farm Education Center, one of the biggest attractions is the idea of having “play dates” in a safe setting.

“That's particularly important if you have a child with an intellectual or developmental difference,” Kearney said. “It can be a lot of stress to go out in public and do something. But here, literally no one cares [what they do]. There are no rules; just go and have fun.”

Cogoli agreed, saying that became most notable during Covid, when so many public places were closed. Families needed places to meet friends outdoors, and their farm started accommodating them. She recalled asking some “Do you guys want to come hang out in the goat pen?” and many did. The animals didn't care whether the kids wore masks.

Play is a crucial part of learning in their setting. They said they allow all ages and all kinds of disabilities to play with/care for the animals, but have programs geared generally for younger people. Among the organizations they've hosted are Seven Hills (which Kearney used to work for), the Stetson School,

Making Opportunities Count, various school field trips, homeschool groups and many one-on-one service providers and caretakers. Some of those groups have actually helped build the farm — Stetson School residents, for example, built their barn, woodshed and are now clearing a pasture.

They noted a key goal is teaching job and life skills — that can range from the obvious (resume and interview skills) to the very basic (how to control one's balance around animals and self-regulation), depending on what their participant needs. That includes holding and birthing baby animals, cooking pies, tapping maple trees, shearing sheep, selling herbs, wielding axes and even tractor-driving.

“We're very careful, but we teach everything,” Kearney said. “... Nothing is off limits. There's dignity in risk.”

During the process, many of their participants end up getting “a lot of sensory therapy” from the textures of things, sounds of water, the physical act of lifting and carrying animals and objects, and “especially with the younger kids, some tolerance, being gentle, and being patient,” Cogoli said.

One example of the latter was the fact their people tapped their first six maple trees this spring. After processing, they got about a cupful of syrup from it. But that was a learning experience — they've already planned to tap 60 trees next year, Kearney said.

“Everything we do is educational,” she said, noting later they have no age restrictions for the various activities.

In response to an audience question about teaching speaking skills, Cogoli said they do that, too “but maybe not in the most common way.” She has found many of their participants spontaneously teach each other about the animals they work with, what they're doing today, and related issues.

“We charge nothing, ever. It's all by donation,” Kearney added. “... Part of our goal is to make it accessible.”

As a mother of four kids (two with special needs), Cogoli has seen how important that is. She said she and many similar parents get some state aid, but it's nothing like a full-time income, so they often cannot afford the cost of events other parents can take their kids to.

Being next to 414 acres of wildlife management land, their farm also sees a wide range of non-domesticated visitors, or, as Kearney put it, “volunteers we never asked for.” For several years, they've been visited by a black bear named Shelley and her “entourage” — “she goes nose to nose with our goats. She's been there as long as we have and never bothered anyone.”

She also cited “a beautiful owl that's been with us three years now,” “a lot of rat snakes,” the usual menagerie of coyotes, foxes and bobcats, and even a probable mountain lion who “took a turkey off our property” and ate it without leaving a trail. (They didn't see the lion, but showed a photo taken by someone living nearby of one that's been reportedly hunting the area from as far away as Rindge, New Hampshire.)

Another unusual species is the black squirrel, which they noted is “very aggressive. They'll kill other squirrels.” Kearney said that's a relatively recent transplant to our area, allegedly brought by a man who liked them while visiting another country.

Dudley Woman's Club has fun, fun, fun!

DUDLEY — The November Dudley Woman's Club meeting was fun, fun, fun! We welcomed Alex Diaz Salisbury, who shared many tips and tricks for turning grocery store flowers and discount store items into beautiful holiday centerpieces. His demonstration was both educational and entertaining! The DWC donated $200 in Salisbury's name to his local charity of choice: The Webster-Dudley Boys & Girls Club.

We also welcomed our holiday season favorite Lesa Patrock, who once again is working to sponsor more than 400 children through the YOU Inc. Adopt-a-Child for Christmas Program. In this program, children separated from their biological families select three items for their Christmas wish list and Lesa finds people to fill those wishes. The DWC adopted five children and donated dozens of gift bags to be used to wrap the gifts.

To round out the good cheer at this Nov. 14 meeting, we welcomed five new club members. Our nearly 60 members hail from Dudley, Webster, Southbridge, Charlton, Uxbridge, Putnam, Woodstock, Thompson, North Grosvenordale and Millbury.

WORCESTER — Worcester County District Attorney Joseph D. Early, Jr. recently partnered with the Autism Resource Center to help expand adaptive swim program offerings to more families of neurodivergent children across Worcester County.

The classes include basic swim skills, as well as water safety training. They also include a home safety workshop for parents/caregivers to provide information and resources to protect against elopement.

"We know that children with Autism Spectrum Disorder are 160 times more likely to drown than their peers without adequate water safety instruction," said Early. "We want to prevent such tragedies. These swim classes will help children be safe, help give parents some peace of mind, and also allow children to have fun in an environment adapted to their needs."

The Autism Resource Center first began setting up the Adaptive Swim Program last year with the support of the Doug Flutie Jr. Foundation for Autism.

"The Swim and Safety Program is truly about prevention and accessibility. Our goal is to provide swim lessons to as many children and young adults with autism as possible," said Kristen Cariglia, Director of the Autism Resource Center. "By training more Water Safety Instructors across our region to increase the number of adaptive lessons and funding for participants, children are able to participate in these potentially lifesaving lessons in close to home. We are beyond thrilled to be partnering with the Worcester County District Attorney's office. With their support, we are able to make these lessons accessible to double the number of children and train more swim instructors to provide them."

Through the funding provided by the District Attorney's Office, the program has been training additional instructors and expanding to new locations across Worcester County. Classes are currently offered at Worcester Fitness, the Worcester JCC, British Swim School of Milford and Orchard Hill Athletic Club in Lancaster. There are plans to add additional classes soon.

"Providing water safety skills to the community is at the forefront of preventing drowning incidents," said Janine LaPrade, the adaptive swim class instructor at Worcester Fitness. "Many times, accessibility is a substantial roadblock to acquiring these survival techniques. The partnership created by the District Attorney's office, the Autism Resource Center, and swim academy sites of Worcester County will increase the number of trained instructors, the number of sites providing lessons, as well as an increase in families served all in hopes of reducing the tragic accidents that can occur, especially within this population."

The District Attorney's office provided $10,000 to help cover the cost of swimming fees and additional staff training needed to expand the adaptive swim program. The prevention program money was funded through the office's Drug Forfeiture Community Reinvestment Program, which uses money seized from drug crimes to provide funds for community initiatives in Worcester County as a crime prevention and intervention tool.

These swim classes are open to the entire community and registration is free. Contact the Autism Resource Center at www.autismresourcecentral.org/swim for additional information and registration.

Worcester Academy Play Ensemble brings sneak preview of "Matilda" to Park Ave

WEBSTER — On Wednesday, Nov. 6, Worcester Academy Play Ensemble visited Park Avenue Elementary to perform bits from their new play "Matilda" that opened the following weekend.

"The acting and singing is amazing," said Mr. Aronian, who is the Dean of Students at the school. "It's like going to the Hanover Theatre."

The Worcester Academy cast and screenwriting is all put together by David Plante (Worcester Academy Faculty Member and Performance Center Director) and Lucy Tew (Worcester Academy Faculty Member and Arts Program Director).

"The work these guys put in is incredible," said a third grade teacher at Park Ave. "The voices and choreography were brilliant."

The student started out by singing a few different songs from the musical and then, in the middle of the performance, allowed students to ask some questions; the questions were very thoughtful. The teachers prior to the event had engaged the students with some information about the story line to Matilda. The fourth grade Student Leadership team was responsible for the entire set design on stage; it resembled a classroom you would find in a school with giant letters falling in the background - The
