Tim Murray lauds Leicester's vocational programs

LEICESTER — Tim Murray, the former Lieutenant Governor and current President and CEO of the Worcester Regional Chamber of Commerce, recently visited Leicester High School to check out the new Career Technical Education (CTE) offerings.

He stated, "Wow! Leicester has moved mountains in a very short amount of time. This is exactly what the state and local economies are looking for."

Murray was accompanied by Dave Garvin, who is the Manager of Workforce Programs, Worcester Regional Chamber of Commerce.

Garvin remarked, "We need the next generation of vocational students to fill the workforce demands across the state and nation. We need Leicester High School students to be prepared for work as soon as possible. People are retiring and the demand for jobs is sky high."

Superintendent Dr. Brett Kustigian and Principal Zawada led the tour along with School Committee Vice Chair Jim Reinke. Mr. Reinke attended a recent workforce development meeting in Worcester with Mr. Murray and Mr. Garvin.

Murray mentioned, "As someone who works in the construction industry, I see first-hand the need for CTE programs. It is good for students, good for the trade profession and good for the economy. It is great to see Leicester leading the way."

Kustigian said, "It is all about partnerships and bringing our community together. The Worcester Regional Chamber of Commerce has been our partner from the beginning and we sincerely appreciate their connections to the workforce."

Zawada agreed, "LHS students deserve the best opportunities available and we are working hard to get them college and career ready."

Ayers hired as Interim Town Administrator for Brookfield

BY JASON BLEAU
CORRESPONDENT

BROOKFIELD — The Brookfield Select Board has officially appointed Robert "Bob" Ayers as interim town administrator.

The decision was made official on Jan. 28 after the Select Board previously sought to put to rest what one member deemed to be "conspiracy theories" surrounding the hiring process. Ayers, a former Select Board member, was the only candidate considered during the meeting.

Select Board Chair Richard

Chaffee spoke highly of Ayers, calling him a capable candidate willing to put in the work.

"I've known Mr. Ayers for an excess of 30 years, and I know that he has the personal integrity that if this job is more than what he thinks it is and if he's not comfortable with learning the procedures and what takes place for the town, I know he'll say we have to find to someone to replace him," said Chaffee. "I felt really comfortable with the fact that he was a selectman, a Board of Health member, a police officer, and he's lived in town his whole life. I know Brookfield is in his heart and he's going to do his very best for the community."

The search for an interim administrator sparked some controversy in January which caused the Select Board to divulge some of the finer details of the hiring process during their meeting on Jan. 20.

Select Board member Sarah

Campbell and Town Accountant Laurie Bartkus were charged with vetting candidates for the job before reporting back to the full Select Board about the qualified candidates. Bartkus acknowledged they used Google to search for details about each candidate, which revealed some important details about their job histories.

"A quick search of some of these candidates led us to not even interviewing them, some poor news articles, evaluations, and selectmen meeting minutes," said Bartkus.

They even discovered that one applicant left a prior workplace off of their resume which caused them to question why.

"We did have one candidate that chose to leave off a town that had previously employed her. We had another candidate that had been just recently out on administrative leave. We chose not the interview that candidate, which unfortunately left us with one via ble candidate to interview. We did have two other candidates that we did reach out to that had already accepted employment by the time we reached out to them," Bartkus concluded.

The lone remaining candidate was Ayers, and both Bartkus and Campbell acknowledged him as a worthy pick.

For her part, Campbell wished they had a larger selection to pick from so that they had options, but also acknowledged they had to work with the applications they received.

"It's good to have at least some competition so you have something to base it off. Even now, I'm open to it, but I can't create viable candidates," she said.

Ayers was officially added to the town website following his appointment at the end of January. He will retain the position through at least June of 2026 to close out the fiscal year.

Meet Dante

Dante is not a cuddle bug and she's okay with that. She's the kind of dog who needs time, patience, and space to feel safe. It can take months for Dante to become comfortable with new people and her new home, but once she does, she will thrive in the right environment.

Important to know: Dante is an escape artist—even at her old age. She has escaped multiple times from her previous home and has even gotten loose while on walks. Because of this, a fully fenced, secure yard is absolutely required, and her adopter must be diligent with doors, gates, and leashes at all times.

Dante's ideal home: -Adult-only household (she prefers women) -No other pets -Fully fenced, secure yard (required) -Calm, low-activity home -Someone experienced, patient, and willing to let her move at her own pace -Dante does best in a quiet setting where there isn't a lot of foot traffic or constant activity. She's not looking for a busy social life—she's looking for stability, routine, and understanding.

If you're someone who believes in giving a dog the time she needs to feel safe and doesn't expect instant affection, Dante may be the perfect companion for you.

Worcester Polytechnic Institute announces Fall Dean's List

WORCESTER — Worcester Polytechnic Institute (WPI) has announced its Dean's List for academic excellence for the Fall 2025 semester.

The criteria for the WPI Dean's List differ from that of most other universities as WPI does not compute a grade point average (GPA). Instead, WPI students are named to the Dean's List based on the amount of work completed at the A level in courses and hands-on projects.

"WPI's academic programs are rigorous and require a level of independence beyond what is required in traditional courses. WPI students work on real-world, open-ended problems on campus and in communities around the globe. Far from being simple academic exercises, the projects students complete have genuine and lasting impacts in our partner communities," said Provost Andrew Sears. "Some of this nation's best and brightest students come to WPI to study engineering, science, business, and the humanities. Those named to the Dean's List have excelled in all of their work, and we are exceptionally proud of these outstanding students."

The following students were named to the Fall 2025 Dean's List:

Matthew Carter of West Brookfield, class of 2028, majoring in Architectural Engineering

Ryan Delage of Leicester, class of 2029, majoring in Electrical and Computer Engineering

Adrianna Navarro of Spencer, class of 2028, majoring in Biomedical Engineering

William Panepinto of Leicester, class of 2028, majoring in Architectural Engineering

James Sweeney of Leicester, class of 2028, majoring in Chemical Engineering

Taking care with what we share

Small towns run on information. We pass it along at the post office counter, at the school pickup line, in the grocery store aisle. News travels fast in communities like ours, sometimes faster than we realize.

That can be a strength. When a neighbor needs help, word spreads quickly. When a local fundraiser is announced, people show up. When roads are closed or weather turns rough, information moves from one household to the next almost instinctively.

But there is another side to that closeness. Rumors can take hold just as quickly as facts. Partial information can turn into certainty. A secondhand comment can become a full-blown story before anyone pauses to check whether it is true.

This matters more now than it did a generation ago. Social media and group text messages amplify everything. A post written in frustration can reach hundreds of people in minutes. A misunderstanding can grow legs before the person at the center of it even knows it exists.

Local government, schools, and public safety agencies all feel the effects. Residents show up at meetings already angry about something that is not quite accurate. Teachers and administrators find themselves responding to claims that began as speculation. Volunteers and town employees face criticism based on information that was never confirmed.

None of this is unique to Spencer or the surrounding towns. But it lands differently in small communities, where people know each other and reputations matter. A careless comment does not disappear into the noise. It lingers.

Being thoughtful about what we share does not mean staying silent or avoiding hard conversations. It means slowing down just enough to ask a simple question: Do I know this to be true? And if I do not, is it fair to pass it along anyway?

There is value in waiting for official information, whether it comes from a town meeting, a school committee agenda, or a public statement. There is value in listening directly to the people involved rather than relying on a chain of retellings. There is also value in remembering that most local officials, educators, and volunteers are trying to do the best they can with limited time and resources.

Small towns work best when trust runs both ways. Residents deserve clear, accurate information. Local institutions deserve the chance to explain their decisions without a cloud of rumor hanging overhead.

Taking care with what we share is a small act, but it adds up. It keeps conversations grounded. It protects neighbors from unnecessary harm. And it helps ensure that when something truly important needs attention, the community can focus on facts instead of noise.

It is the sole prerogative of the Editor to determine whether a submission satisfies our requirements and decency standards, and any submission may be rejected at any time for any reason he or she might deem appropriate.

VIEWPOINT

OPINION AND COMMENTARY FROM SPENCER, LEICESTER AND THE BROOKFIELDS

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Spencer needs the Rescue Squad

To the Editor:

The Spencer Rescue Squad has served the town of Spencer for over 60 years. In that time, the Squad has saved the town millions of dollars.

The town has never had to pay to purchase, equip and stock an ambulance. The town has never had to pay the Squad's employees. The town has never had to purchase land and construct facilities that house the three ambulances and personnel.

The Rescue Squad is a "Not for Profit" organization. All profits earned go back to the organization. It has a Board of Directors that are not paid. They are dedicated volunteers from town.

One thing that people don't know is that the demographics of the town has changed. In the '80's and '90's, the majority of people had health insurance that covered the full price of an ambulance ride. That has changed to where now most people have Medicare etc. which does not compensate the Squad the full cost of the ambulance service. The Squad has to right off many thousands of dollars each year. The Squad cannot bill a patient for the difference. This is why the Squad is in the situation it is in now and why it needs help from the town.

The Board of Selectmen are contemplating bringing in a "For Profit" Service because they think they are going to save money. How can a "For Profit" be less expensive than a "Not for Profit" service? Where would they house the service? How many ambulances would they provide? Where would they house the personnel? They won't be able to use the Rescue Squads facility. It is private. The town would have to purchase the facility at fair market value. Where is the town going to get the funds from.

My question is: How many ambulances is this service going to provide? How many personnel are they going to station in town? How much is the town going to rely on Mutual Aid?

I believe the quality of service is going to deteriorate.

I realize that the voters voted down the Rescue Squads request for funds. Please reconsider that decision.

The Town of Spencer needs the Spencer Rescue Squad.

The Board of Selectmen has made two horrific blunders. The first was when it lowered the The second is the shuttering of the Rescue Squad. If they save any money, it will be at the expense of the service the residents of the town will not receive. The town will still have to pay.

'Do you see what I see?'

To the Editor:

I had been writing on the average of one letter every couple of weeks to the New Leader, but then decided that I would take a break and enjoy the holidays with friends and family.

I am so happy that I did because with everything going on in our country, it occurred to me that under the present, corrupt administration it could very well be the last Christmas we (as Americans) will ever have.

Trump already refers to himself as "King!" What will he want to be called next, Jesus??

Will Christmas become Trumpmas, or Trumppress? He is already telling us our daughters and granddaughters don't need dolls; they already have too many.

He has brought violence and fear into our lives. He is condoning ICE beating and murdering America citizens, deporting people born in the US, including a five year old boy being sent to Texas alone and scared. Imagine if that was your child or grandchild??!

Imagine if your loved one was murdered for using their freedom of speech, or for trying to help a woman who was pepper sprayed in her face and then knocked to the ground. I saw a woman being pulled from her car and then thrown on the ground as she was yelling "please don't hurt me, I am handicapped."

He is wiping his feet on our Constitution and breaking down our judicial system. He needs to be stopped now.

If we saw someone in our family or in our neighborhood acting like Trump, we would want him in a mental care facility yet we still have people believing in him over what we have seen with our own eyes. What is wrong with you people?

Wake up before it's too late!

NOREEN FERNANDES

WEST BROOKFIELD

Just the facts

To the Editor:

In my younger days, I was a fan of a TV series named "Dragnet," staring Jack Webb and Harry Morgan. Det. Joe Friday would commonly advise whoever was reporting on a crime, "Just the facts, ma'am." It seems they are becoming increasingly hard to come by. It was Sen. Daniel Patrick Moynihan, who often famously said "Everyone is entitled to their own opinions, but no one is entitled to their own facts".

In an interview with George Stephanopoulos of ABC News, Kelly Ann Conway presented the concept of "alternative facts" George asked her to clarify that it was just a different way of saying "lies."

I have watched at least eight comments by Faux Noos commentators, telling us to disbelieve the evidence of our own eyes, and that Alex Petti, the military veteran and ICU nurse who went to the aid of a woman that ICE agents had knocked to the ground, that he was brandishing a gun and was a threat to the agents safety. While I do not get the logic of carrying a weapon to a peaceful protest, the NRA would support that it was one of his rights totally violated.

When he helped the woman up brandishing his cell phone camera, 6 agents pinned him to the pavement face down. One agent then pulled the gun from his belt and yelled gun. This is a person trained in de-escalation? Two other agents then shot Alex 10 times in the back. They then tried to justify it by putting the gun back in his belt. Fox is still insisting they killed him because he threatened them. Want to buy a bridge?

This last week, Tulsi Gabbard and the FBI seized voting records that date back to the election Trump lost by 11,780 votes. It will not surprise me if they find them. Trump must think us all really stupid. Gabbard's job is national security, which customarily means between countries. He claims she did it because Pam Bondi, the US AG wanted her to. He further stated that states are just agents of the federal government. These are all alternative truths.

If you are familiar with the Federalist Papers, where Jefferson and Madison discussed why there would even be any need to have a federal government, they came up with 4 reasons for the states to relinquish any sovereignty.

- 1) Military- to establish and fund a standing Army and Navy
- 2) A national bank and currency
- 3) Trade and treaties with foreign nations
- 4) Interstate commerce

They believed Congress to be a part time job with infrequent meetings (to some extent, that is still true)

I mention this, because our constitution, though amended and perverted over the years, was expressly designed to protect states and citizens rights, having just rejected an overbearing foreign government. My point is, the federal government is an agent of the states and the people, not the opposite.

To further emphasize the "no Kings" attitude, our constitution specifically grants election rules and oversight to the states and localities and prohibits federal involvement or armed troops of any kind, anywhere near the polls. Even partisans must keep their distance. ICE agents surrounding polls, is not democracy. Also, the Stalin plan of not carrying who votes or how, only who counts the votes, is not democracy. Although not highly reported, the Arizona cyber ninja recount, cost millions and found a few more Biden votes.

More than ever, you president saying things, does not make them true. One paper credited him with over 30,000 lies in his first term. You definitely can fool some people all of the time. They probably lose bets on replays, thinking it could never happen again.

Tax-saving moves you can still make for 2025

 NIELSEN

Tax season is upon us, and while April 15 may seem like it's right around the corner, you still have time to make some strategic moves that could lower your 2025 tax bill. Whether you're looking to reduce your taxable income or set yourself up for a more secure financial future, these options are worth considering.

Contribute to an IRA. One of the most popular tax-smart moves is contributing to an Individual Retirement Account. You have until the April 15 filing deadline to contribute to an IRA for the 2025 tax year. You can contribute up to $7,000, or $8,000 if you're 50 or older.

If you choose a traditional IRA, your contributions may be tax-deductible depending on your income level and whether you participate in an employer-sponsored retirement plan. Your earnings grow tax-deferred until you withdraw them in retirement. With a Roth IRA, you won't get an immediate tax deduction, but your earnings can grow tax-free if you follow the withdrawal rules.

Max out your Health Savings Account (HSA). If you're enrolled in a high-deductible health plan, a Health Savings Account offers triple tax advantages. You can still make HSA contributions for 2025 until April 15. The limits are $4,300 for individual coverage and $8,550 for family coverage. If you're 55 or older, you can contribute an additional $1,000.

HSA contributions reduce your taxable income, the money grows tax-free, and withdrawals for qualified medical expenses are never taxed. Plus, HSAs have no "use it or lose it" rule. Your savings roll over year after year, making an HSA a valuable tool for building resources to cover healthcare costs in retirement.

Self-employed? Consider a SEP IRA. Business owners and self-employed individuals have another powerful option: the SEP IRA. You can make contributions for 2025 up until your business tax return deadline, including extensions. For 2025, you can contribute up to 25 percent of your compensation, with a maximum of $70,000. This can significantly reduce your taxable income while building your retirement nest egg.

Don't forget required minimum distributions. If you turned 73 in 2025, make sure you've taken your Required Minimum Distribution from your traditional IRA or 401(k) for 2025. Missing this deadline can result in a steep penalty, so it's important to verify that if your 73rd birthday was in 2025, your RMD has been withdrawn before April 1.

Consult a professional. While these moves can help reduce your tax burden, everyone's financial situation is unique. Before making any major financial decisions, it's wise to consult with a tax advisor or financial advisor who can provide guidance tailored to your specific circumstances.

The April 15 deadline is fast approaching, but you still have opportunities to make smart choices that could benefit both your current tax return and your long-term financial health. Don't let this window of opportunity close without considering your options.

QCC's Commonwealth Honors program promotes research

WORCESTER — Students in Quinsigamond Community College's Commonwealth Honors program presented their research findings at a recent Honors Colloquium Student Showcase. The Honors Colloquium is an interdisciplinary course required for students completing designated honors pathways. Designed to foster intellectual curiosity and collaboration, the course brings together faculty from multiple disciplines to explore a central theme from diverse perspectives.

Each student develops a thesis related to the semester's theme, conducts in-depth library research and produces a research paper. The experience culminates in a poster presentation, shared both in class and at the Honors Colloquium Student Showcase, where students present their work to the broader QCC community. Many participants also take their research beyond campus, presenting at the Undergraduate Research Conference at UMass Amherst.

One section of the Honors Colloquium course, co-taught by Associate Professor of Biology Opeyemi Odewale and Professor of English John Stazinski, employed the theme "The Small Engines of Humanity: Germs, Cooties, and Diseases – Microbial Impact & Societal Transformation."

"The Honors Colloquium is unique among classes at QCC in that the students, every single semester, become very close and end up forming a true learning community," said Stazinski. "They're genuinely engaged by each other's projects and tend to keep each other on track."

At last month's showcase, students presented their research on how microbes influence contemporary societal challenges.

Student Luis Cruz investigated the gut-eye axis, inspired by his background in ophthalmology and future plans for graduate school and a Ph.D. His project explored early eye treatment options to prevent surgery. Another student, Emma Dattis, examined how music and social networks influence the gut microbiome, uncovering links between cultural factors and microbial health.

Other sections of the Honors Colloquium included "The World in 2050: A Certain Uncertainty," "(Hi)stories of American Violence" and "Truths or Consequences: Examining Movements for Change."

Cornerstone Bank donates $10,000 to RCAP Solutions to support housing counseling in Worcester

WORCESTER — Cornerstone Bank today announced a $10,000 donation to RCAP Solutions, Inc., in Worcester to support staffing at its Housing Consumer Education Center (HCEC) following state funding cuts that have reduced access to free housing counseling services across Worcester County.

HCEC is a proven, no-cost resource that helps individuals and families stabilize their housing through one-on-one counseling, financial education, sustainable spending classes and pre- and post-homebuyer support. Recent reductions in state funding have limited staff capacity at a time when demand for housing guidance continues to grow, placing low-income residents at greater risk of housing instability.

"Stable housing is the foundation of strong families and healthy communities," said Todd Tallman, CEO of Cornerstone Bank. "With state funding cuts putting essential counseling services at risk, we felt it was important to step up and support RCAP Solutions' Housing Consumer Education Center so they can continue helping Worcester County residents stay housed, informed and financially resilient."

Cornerstone Bank's contribution will help RCAP Solutions retain skilled HCEC staff so they can continue assisting individuals and families in navigating the housing market, addressing financial challenges and maintaining stable housing.

"Cornerstone Bank's support will make a meaningful difference for the individuals and families we serve," said Brian D. Scales, President & CEO of RCAP Solutions. "This funding strengthens our Housing Consumer Education Center's ability to provide essential counseling and guidance at a time when many in our community are facing growing challenges. We are deeply grateful for Cornerstone Bank's commitment to helping local families find stability and a path forward."

OBITUARY

Rear Admiral Francis W. Lacroix, United States Navy (Retired), 79

RADM Francis William Lacroix, USN (Ret.) passed away peacefully at age 79 on January 14, 2026, in Punta Gorda, Florida. A native of Spencer, Massachusetts and the second eldest of nine children born to Albert Ronald Lacroix and Marie (Berthiaume) Lacroix, he was a 1963 magna cum laude graduate of Assumption Preparatory School in Worcester, Massachusetts. He then entered the NROTC program at The Ohio State University where he studied physics and French. After graduation in 1967, he married his "lovely prep school sweetheart," Maryellen Donelan. He then entered the Navy's nuclear propulsion training program where he completed his post-graduate studies in nuclear engineering. He served in the Navy for 35 years and in the nuclear submarine service for over 20 years. In addition to making many undersea deployments on several boats, he supervised the refueling and construction of nuclear submarines and was a member of the nuclear propulsion examining board (NPEB) which was responsible for monitoring the nation's nuclear Navy for safe operation. He eventually commanded the nuclear attack submarines USS Jacksonville and USS Dallas, then a squadron of seven nuclear attack submarines during which time he also led submarine tactical development for the Atlantic and Pacific Fleets. While in the Navy, he was awarded a fellowship to study Defense Economics at the RAND Corporation, a think tank in California, after which he served as head of the Navy's Program Development branch in Washington, D.C. In 1991, he was promoted to Rear Admiral. He then attended the J.F.K. School of Government at Harvard University as a Senior National Security Fellow. As an admiral, he first served as the Director of the Department of the Navy's multi-billion-dollar Navy and Marine Corps Manpower and Operations budgets. Next, he was assigned to the Joint Staff as Deputy Director for Force Structure and Resources (J-8). Here he led several major defense reviews including those affecting the reduction/reorganization of U.S. military forces after the Cold War and the post-Desert Storm review of national and combat intelligence needs and capabilities.

In 1993, he was promoted to Rear Admiral (upper half) and advanced to be the Director (J-8) where he became the principal budget and military acquisition advisor to the Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff. In November of 1995, he was selected for promotion to Vice Admiral and assigned to a Fleet Command. Medical circumstances ended his sea-going career. While on active duty he received many individual and unit awards including the Legion of Merit (4), the Defense Distinguished Service Medal (2), and the Navy and Defense Expeditionary medals, the Battle Efficiency "E", the Navy and Meritorious Unit Commendations and several others. He retired on January 1, 2002.

Following retirement from the Navy, he first became Executive Vice President and Director of Studies and Analysis for the Engineering Division of Science Applications International Corporation (SAIC) in McLean, Virginia. He then spent several years as a Senior National Security Policy Analyst at RAND Corporation. He was a lifetime member of the Ohio State Alumni Association and was the 2010 Ohio State NROTC Alumni Honoree. He was also a member of the Naval Institute and the Naval War College Foundation.

In retirement, Frank continued to challenge himself intellectually by reading, studying languages, and travelling the world with his beloved wife of 58 years. One of his greatest joys was encouraging his children and grandchildren in their studies and personal endeavors. He will be remembered for his devotion to his family and friends, his dedication to the U.S. Navy and The Ohio State University, and his unwavering faith in God.

He is survived by his loving wife, Maryellen, daughter Kristen Harnisch and son-in-law David Harnisch, daughter Katherine Lacroix, grandchildren Tyler, Natalie, Ellen, Ryan and Julia, and siblings Eve-Marie Lacroix (Joseph Hutchins) and Paulette Berthiaume (Edward Connelly) of Florida, Joseph (Susan) LaCroix, Victor (Annette) Lacroix and Charles Lacroix of Spencer, Massachusetts, Monique Lacroix Theall of New Hampshire and Marie (Michael) Collins of Maryland. He is pre-deceased by his brother Vincent Lacroix, and son Matthew Lacroix, a Navy Reserve Commander and submariner.

A Memorial Mass will be held at Our Lady of Victory Catholic Church in Centerville, Massachusetts on Saturday, March 21, 2026 at 11 a.m.

The admiral will be buried with full military honors at Arlington National Cemetery at a date to be announced.

In lieu of flowers, please consider donating to the Tunnel to Towers Foundation (t2t.org).

The quiet comfort of familiar errands

There is a particular kind of comfort in doing the same small things the same way, week after week, year after year. It is not the sort of comfort that announces itself. It does not come with fireworks or applause. It slips in quietly, usually while you are not paying much attention, and settles somewhere between habit and gratitude.

For me, it shows up most often during errands.

Not the big ones. Not the kind that require lists, calendars, or steeling yourself for frustration. I mean the ordinary errands.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Can the free press make it to the ninth round?

To the Editor:

We are finally seeing some of the content of the Epstein files, and it is just the tip of the iceberg. Trump announced that we should go on to more important things (like ballrooms, triumphal arches, recognition of his great accomplishments as a peacemaker, and threatening of our neighbors and trade partners); and of course, ignore the thousands of times he is 'mentioned' in those Epstein files. (Will he be adding his visage to Mount Rushmore?) A substantial portion of our nation still support this morally bankrupt man. For quite a few years, I've heard all kinds of criticisms of our 'wokeness'. I think I'm getting a better understanding of that criticism. To support such a disgusting man, it helps to be asleep to the injustice and corruption he has committed for many years.

It's time to 'wake up!' How many more 'woke' individuals like the activist mother and the caring ICU nurse in Minneapolis will die before this administration is held accountable for its murderous behavior. Will our democracy and remnants of a justice department survive? Will America be 'great again?' If greatness means a greater willingness to ignore the suffering of others, the demise of our system of checks and balances, and the all too real threat of climate change already upon us, then we have become more of the problem than the answer. We sorely need a caring America that doesn't judge people by the color of their skin or the size of their bank accounts!

Increasing the size of our gross national product is not an excuse to condone or ignore our truly gross behavior. We don't need a great military might willing to serve a self-serving autocrat, or a few wealthy oligarchs who worship the golden calf, golden toilet, or whatever motivates them.

How is it that so many people can see these atrocities and still appear supportive of such behavior? There are certainly some who see the world differently and have taken the stance that this is survival of the fittest (as opposed to a perilous situation that threatens all of us and our descendants and demands that we find common ground to effectively face the threat). But there are many good, generous people who still support Donald Trump and his policies. I suspect that we are not seeing the same news. In this day of artificial intelligence, the computer search engines we interact with quickly adapt to our viewing habits and readily provide suggestions of other news that would perk our interest (and our support of their advertising clients). Every autocracy attacks a free press, and we all need to become more vigilant and find trusted sources that truly investigate, and not just push conspiracy theories or ignore critical information. I encourage you to watch live coverage of some congressional sessions if you have time, and listen to interviews available from professionals that truly know the science and the law. The "Meidas Touch Network" and "Democracy Now" include Constitutional scholars, law professors with substantial experience as prosecuting attorneys, and scholars in various fields of science, finance, history, and medicine. Donald Trump may claim to be a stable genius, deserving of a Nobel Peace Prize, but he is clearly not a source of information that deserves our trust.

Quality investigative journalism is essential to safeguarding our democracy. I fear that we will no longer be able to rely on the Washington Post to come to our rescue. Jeff Bezos, owner of both the Washington Post and Amazon, just purged his paper of an outstanding team of journalists. He is the fourth richest man in the world, and he recently chose to spend $75 million to finance Melania Trump's documentary; so financial hardship is not a likely cause for this alarming turn of events. Is there news he wants to hide, or some favor he seeks from the Trump Administration? Careful, David, this sounds a bit like conspiracy theory. But in the battle between the free press and power-seeking billionaire oligarchs, I fear the press will not make it to the ninth round.

DAVID W. BROWN
NORTH BROOKFIELD

The ones you could almost do with your eyes closed. The trip to the grocery store where you already know which cart has the wobbly wheel. The stop at the post office where the clerk nods before you even reach the counter. The gas station where you don't have to think about which pump to use because you always pull into the same one.

In small-town Massachusetts, these errands are less about the task and more about the reassurance. They remind you that, despite everything else changing at a dizzying pace, some parts of life remain dependable.

I sometimes think about this when I am standing in line, waiting my turn, listening to the quiet hum of everyday life. Someone ahead of me is chatting with the cashier about a grandson's basketball game. Someone behind me is patiently holding a cup of coffee and pretending not to be in a hurry. No one is performing. No one is in a rush to be impressive. We are all just there, together, taking care of small necessities.

Years ago, I did not appreciate this. I wanted efficiency. I wanted things done quickly and without interruption. Conversations felt

LANTERNS
By CHARLES

like obstacles. Familiarity felt dull. I mistook speed for progress and novelty for meaning.

Age has corrected that misunderstanding.

Now I notice the rhythm. I notice how often I see the same faces and how comforting that repetition can be. I notice how a brief exchange, no longer than a sentence or two, can brighten an otherwise ordinary morning. A simple "Good to see you" carries more weight than it used to.

These errands also remind me how much of community life is held together by people who rarely get any attention. The clerks, tellers, attendants, and cashiers who show up every day, learn names without trying, and quietly make things run. They are part of the architecture of our towns, as essential as sidewalks and stop signs.

When one of them is missing, you feel it immediately. The day is still functional, but something is off. A familiar note is missing from the chord.

I think my parents understood this better than I did when I was younger. They treated errands as opportunities rather than obligations. They lingered. They listened. They understood that life is not only what happens at milestones, but also what happens between them.

Now I find myself doing the same. I take the long way through the aisles. I exchange a few words even when silence would be faster. I leave with what I came for, yes, but also with a quiet sense that I am part of something ongoing and shared.

There is comfort in knowing where things are. There is comfort in knowing who will be behind the counter. There is comfort in knowing that tomorrow or next week, you will likely do it all again, and that repetition is not a failure of imagination but a sign of belonging.

In a world that constantly urges us to upgrade, optimize, and move on, these familiar errands gently suggest another approach. Stay. Notice. Appreciate. Let the ordinary be enough.

Some nights, when I drive home as the last light fades and the streetlamps come on along Main Street, I think of them as lanterns. Small points of steady light, not meant to dazzle, just meant to guide you home.

That is what these routines are, too. Lanterns along the way.

QCC business professor wins national faculty award

WORCESTER — Quinsigamond Community College Professor Jean McLean has been named a recipient of the Dale P. Parnell Distinguished Faculty Award by the American Association of Community Colleges (AACC). This is a national honor recognizing faculty who demonstrate passion for teaching, commitment to students and excellence in the community college mission.

McLean, who has worked at QCC for more than 30 years, was recognized for her student-centered teaching, leadership in academic innovation and advocacy for student success, both inside and outside the classroom.

"As a first-generation college student raised by a single mother who was deaf, I learned early that education is the surest path to independence. I have devoted my career to creating opportunities for students, especially those who needed someone to believe in them," said McLean.

In the classroom, McLean emphasizes real-world skills, critical thinking and confidence-building, helping students connect coursework to meaningful career and transfer outcomes. Her commitment to mentoring continues well beyond graduation, as she remains a steady source of support while students pursue careers and further education.

Beyond teaching, McLean has played a pivotal role in expanding academic and career pathways at QCC. Working with colleagues and industry partners, she helped develop new programs such as the Insurance and Logistics certificates, expanded transfer opportunities through articulation agreements with four-year institutions and secured Perkins funding to support business tutors.

McLean's leadership and service have been equally impactful. She currently serves as chair of the Academic Policy and Standards Council and has been deeply involved in college governance. She previously served eight years as vice president of the Faculty Senate, founded QCC's chapter of the Alpha Beta Gamma Business Honor Society, and mentors new faculty members in curriculum design, assessment and student-centered teaching practices.

"Jean McLean exemplifies everything the Dale P. Parnell Distinguished Faculty Award represents," QCC President Dr. Luis negotiator, SWAT Unit, Drone Unit, K-9 Unit, as well as the State Police Air Wing Unit.

In a press conference broadcast by WCVB Channel 5 Boston, Jeff Travers, the Senior First Assistant District Attorney for the Worcester District Attorney's Office, confirmed that gunfire was exchanged resulting in the death of the suspect and the injury of one Millbury police officer.

"The suspect discharged a firearm towards police officers, striking and injuring a Millbury Police Officer who was a member of the CEMLEC SWAT team. That officer was reported to be in stable condition. Officers returned fire towards the suspect, and he is reported to be deceased," confirmed Travers.

Madison's identity was initially redacted so that next of kin could be informed but later identified by the District Attorney's Office in a written release.

While the identity of the injured Millbury officer was eventually made public by some news outlets, the Stonebridge Press has decided not to include the officer's name in this story as the Millbury Police had yet to post any statement confirming those reports and indicated a desire to protect the privacy of the officer. The most recent update from the department on Feb. 5 stated, "The officer's injuries are non-life threatening, and he remains in good spirits as he faces a long road of recovery ahead."

Spencer Police Chief Michael Bedford released a statement on the department's social media in the hours following the incident acknowledging details of the standoff and assuring locals there was no danger to the public.

"I would like to assure Spencer residents that there is no ongoing threat to public safety. I want to extend my sincere thanks to the Spencer Police officers who handled the scene, as well as those who responded from home. I would also like to thank the many mutual aid police departments who assisted with this incident. Thank you as well to the Spencer Fire Department, the Spencer Rescue Squad, and the District Attorney's Office," the Chief wrote.

Details on a motive or the condition of the initial victim who was shot by the suspect were not included in any media releases from law enforcement or the Attorney General. However, reports from several news outlets named 28-year-old Sean Scannell as the victim.

The incident remains under investigation by detectives with the Massachusetts State Police out of the Worcester District Attorney's Office, State Police Crime Scene Services, State Police Ballistics Section, and the Spencer Police Department.

Anyone with information is encouraged to contact the Mass. State Police Detectives assigned to the Worcester County District Attorney's Office at 508-453-7536.

School Committee Chair McCance said, "I was highly impressed by the growth mindset that was displayed by these remarkable students when they were speaking. Their commitment towards focusing on being better and doing better is admirable."

Saint Joseph School Student Council puts faith into action with winter drive

WEBSTER — At Saint Joseph School, Student Council is designed to help students become thoughtful leaders who serve their community. Elected annually by their peers, Student Council members represent the voice of the student body and support school life through outreach projects, student-led initiatives, spirit activities, buddy programs, and school dances. The goal is not only to build leadership skills, but also to form students who understand that leadership includes responsibility and service.

Student Council members are guided by Beth Boudreau, Principal, Mary Ann Weaver, Teacher Moderator, and Rev. Richard Polek, Pastor and Headmaster.

That mission was especially visible when the Student Council partnered with the Webster Police Department for its annual coat, hat, and glove drive. With support from school families, the Council collected 40 coats, 48 hats, 36 scarves, and 90 pairs of gloves, making it the most successful drive the school has held to date. Students presented the donations to Webster Police Chief Michael Shaw. The items will be distributed through the Webster-Dudley Food Share to help local families stay warm during the winter months.

School leaders noted that the drive's success reflects both the generosity of families and the commitment of students who organize and lead service projects that benefit others.
