Gathering celebrates Puerto Rican heritage

BY GUS STEEVES
CORRESPONDENT

SOUTHBRIDGE — About 30 people from across the region gathered on the Common last Saturday evening to celebrate Puerto Rico with poetry, flags and music.

Organized by Councilor Jasmin Rivas and School Committee members Carla Davila and Brittany Davison, the event was aimed at showing unity in the face of what Rivas described as “racist and hateful rhetoric” coming out of the recent election campaign.

“Our island isn’t trash. It is the home of our ancestors,” she said. “... Puerto Ricans are the future of Southbridge. We’re a permanent part of this Honest Town.”

She noted South-

bridge’s population is (at least) 30 percent Latino, and a majority of the students are, and urged people to celebrate the community’s accomplishments, help each other, and support other marginalized groups, among other things. In both English and Spanish, she started chants of “Puerto Rico se respeta” and “Yo soy Boricua.” (The latter is a reference to the Taino name for the island, which many Puerto Ricans prefer over the Spanish colonial name.)

The island has been an American colony since 1898, when the US took it from Spain. It has a non-voting member in Congress, just like D.C., American Samoa and a few other places. It’s also

Schools looking at $225 million in construction needs

BY GUS STEEVES
CORRESPONDENT

SOUTHBRIDGE — According to the recent facility needs analysis, Southbridge schools need a total of around $225 million in repairs and reconstruction over the next 14 years.

That figure includes one of three proposed options for reorganizing the elementary school system, which some participants thought might actually reduce longer-term repair costs. One would have all students stay where they are and renovate each building. Option two would consolidate everything under grade 5 into one site and use Eastford for the Academy and administration, selling the rest. Option three would consolidate grades 2-5, probably at Charlton, move the younger kids to West, and have administration and Academy at Eastford, selling Cole Ave.

Presenters Jeff Shaw and Mina Abdelmasih of Context Architecture and Kristen Hill of Vaysen Studio noted they actually looked at seven total options. But they generally agreed that those three were the best, describing option 2 as the “most efficient” in that it reduces bus routes, staff needs, program duplication, and various other things. But they termed option 3 “the most feasible option.”

Later, however, Shaw noted the team “didn’t want to put our preferences in place of others.”

Whichever option the town selects – or some variant it devises itself – they noted the buildings will need significant repairs even to fit state standards for education needs, and some options will need por-

Sturbridge officials update fiscal policy

BY GUS STEEVES
CORRESPONDENT

STURBRIDGE — The Select Board approved revisions to its standard fiscal policy in various areas Oct 21 after hearing it explained by Finance Director Barbara Barry.

One of the more detailed changes came to how the town handles capital. Barry said she wanted to “fine-tune” and “streamline” it by increasing the value of what’s considered a “capital” item to $15,000 from $5000; she noted she’d considered making it $25,000. But there will still be flexibility for items “that are not capital under the policy, but have a longer life [and are] not just disposable.”

As an example of that, she pointed to a project that recently replaced fire alarms in several buildings; technically, each was a separate project that cost less than $15,000, but collectively they exceeded that and will last years.

State law requires getting three quotes for any expenses of $10,000 to $50,000, and formal bids above that, with some exceptions.

Town Administrator Robin Grimm said codifying such things has been necessary, particularly defining it so that “we’re not using it for what should be operating funds.”

Barry also changed the reserve policy, increasing the minimum amount of free cash and stabilization the town should hold on to annually from 10-12 percent to 10-15 percent, plus 35 percent in the water and sewer reserves. Those jumped to $750,000 and $1 million, respectively. Additionally, she hiked the Other Post-Employment Benefits contribution minimum from $50,000 to $100,000, which is what Sturbridge has used for a few years now.

Another area of policy being rephrased to reflect current practice involved the fact Sturbridge includes statements of how borrowing will affect the tax rate. She also said she more clearly defined “what debt is and how decisions are made ... to borrow money long term.”

Mary Dowling praised Barry for “an excellent job of making it a lot easier to understand.” But she queried whether the reserve changes would violate state law, which states “the cumulative reserve balances cannot exceed 5 percent of the prior year’s tax levy.” She wasn’t able to specifically cite where in the law that came from.

Barry said she didn’t think Sturbridge would exceed that, but promised to look up the law. She also noted the state and the Government Finance Officers Association have two different standards for this issue. The state sets it as 5-7.5 percent of the annual budget, but GFOA calls for “two months of operations.” For Sturbridge, the latter would be about $3.6 million, while the former would be $2.1-3.2 million.

Grimm said her “litmus number” is the two month standard.

Barry noted this year’s free cash was $6 million, and the town used about $2 million of it for various Bay Path Practical Nursing Academy is again offering free blood pressure assessing every last Wednesday of the month, 10:30 to 11:30 a.m. at Charlton Senior Center, 37 Main St.

“It is wonderful for our Practical Nursing student volunteers to be welcomed back at the Charlton Senior Center under Michelle’s leadership! Hypertension is one of the most prevalent chronic conditions in the US,” stated Gretheline Bolandrina, DHA, MSN Ed, RN, CRRN, Academy Director, Bay Path Practical Nursing Academy.

“It is important for people to know their Blood Pressure numbers because there may not be symptoms that alert you to a potential problem,” said Bolandrina.

DCRSD embracing multi-tiered system of support

BY JASON BLEAU
CORRESPONDENT

DUDLEY/CHARLTON — The Dudley Charlton Regional School District is embracing a proven system to help enhance support among staff across the district bringing together educators and administrators to provide the appropriate resources to provide accessible learning for all students.

Called the “multi-tiered system of support,” the approach involves creating three distinct but intertwined approaches to personalization learning strategies starting with the base tier that involves full classroom teaching and including two higher tiers that provide more targeted and individualized support. Assistant Superintendent of Schools Kelly True provided an update on the district’s implementation of these systems during a School Committee meeting in October where she called is a “huge focus” for the entire staff this school year. The district has also put a heavy focus on least restrictive learning (LRE) which True says will be heavily supported by these systems.

“That is going to help us with our work around LRE, with our work around just what’s happening in our core classes, making sure that curriculum is accessible for kids and that it’s engaging. All those great things that we want. But it starts with leadership and us putting those structures in place for multi-tiered systems of support,” said True. “We are really working as an administrative team so that every building has a working multi-tiered system of support for both academics and social emotional wellness which is a lot of work – We’re working together in a course that is going to be very helpful for us and we also have partnered with a consultant.”

That consultant is Eric Sheninger who has authored writeups promoting personalized learning strategies and how they bridge the gaps in education. Sheninger will be providing the district with eight visits and consultations to help assist in creating the most accessible learning environment possible in Dudley and Charlton.

“He’s going to be working with our administrative team this year to help guide us on things like looking at data, using data to support our multi-tiered systems of support, and the things that we want to be able to put into place in our schools. He’s going to help us get those off the ground as well as help us with different trainings that we can do with our staff and help support the administrators and the work that they’re doing with their staff within their buildings, which I think is really important,” said True.

The district plans to incorporate Sheninger into their professional development programs and meetings this school year with the end goal of enhancing academic wellness and social emotional health for all.

Friends of the Joshua Hyde Library bear tale of doomed ship at annual meeting

STURBRIDGE — The ship and its captain seemed cursed. The passengers paid the ultimate price. At the Friends of the Joshua Hyde Public Library’s Annual Meeting, attendees were captivated by the tale of this doomed side-wheel steamship Larchmont on a cold and stormy night on Feb. 11, 1907. That night, some emerged heroes, most lost their lives.

Daniel Harrington, a long-time monthly columnist for the Providence Journal, originally wrote an article about the sinking of the Larchmont for that Journal, but ultimately the tale haunted him and prompted him to delve deeper into the tragedy. He regaled the audience with his presentation “The Larchmont Remembered,” with stories of a troop of female Salvation Army members who gave up their seats in lifeboats to help others into life jackets and sang hymns on deck while the ship went down and we heard of a woman holding her 4-year-old son begging to be allowed into a lifeboat but shoved out by men. They both perished.

The tragedy happened while first pilot John Anson was on duty. The Harry Knowlton, a three-masted coal schooner was headed straight for the Larchmont. The law of the sea required the powered Larchmont to steer clear of the wind-powered schooner. Anson didn’t turn in time and the two ships collided, stuck together for a short time then were separated by the rough seas. The schooner was able to run aground and its entire crew made it to safety in a lifeboat. The Larchmont was not so lucky.

The accident happened after many had gone to sleep for the night. Most of the passengers who were sleeping in their cabins never made it out. Those who did were in their night clothes and lost their lives to hypothermia. The passengers who were staying up all night in the salon battled each other to get into the four lifeboats dropped in the sea. One passenger slit his own throat rather than face certain death from freezing.

The hurricane deck of the Larchmont detached from the rest of the ship and acted as a raft. While many victims washed ashore on Block Island covered in 8 to 10 inches of ice, thirty passengers had clung on top of the liberated hurricane deck and 12 hours after the accident some were still alive. The gale force winds had blown this lifesaving raft past Block Island entirely and was floating out to sea. The fishing vessel Elsie set out on a rescue mission and was able to recover the survivors on this raft. Many were kept alive by Harry Feldman who beat his wife Bertha and others while screaming at them, “Don’t lie down with the dead!”

Since the only passenger list was on the ship, no one knows how many actually died, but it is believed at least 150 died, and possibly as many as 300 passengers perished. This prompted changes in maritime record keeping and now passenger manifests are required to have a copy kept on shore as well. Many have said this tragedy was America’s Titanic, but since the Larchmont went down five years before the Titanic, that tragedy was actually England’s Larchmont.

Following the tale of the Larchmont, the Friends conducted its Annual Meeting. At the meeting, the library’s annual Wish List of funding was approved as was an increase in annual dues. Also, officers were voted in including: Donna Englander, president; Carrie Braney, treasurer; Alice Kao, secretary/clerk and newcomer Lisa Beaudin was welcomed as vice president.

The Friends of the Joshua Hyde Public Library is a fundraising organization that funnels its income to providing for programming, museum passes, movie series, book discussion groups, children’s activities and programs and any extras the library needs to meet the needs of the community’s citizens. # QCC police hold pet supply drive for hurricane victims

WORCESTER — The Quinsigamond Community College community is coming to the aid of pets affected by the recent hurricanes in several Southern states, through a recent Pet Food Drive sponsored by the QCC Police Department. More than 100 pounds of food and several boxes of supplies and toys have been donated.

“Hurricanes Helene and Milton devastated several of our southern states college received bedding, leashes and toys. QCC’s canned and dry donations will join others from across New England to support hurricane victims with pets. The items will be distributed out of North Carolina Lions Camp Dogwood, a retreat for the blind and visually impaired in Sherrills Ford, N.C.

“During catastrophic events, pets are often forgotten about or left behind. They deserve just as much help after these disasters,” said Campus Police Officer Nick Yacuzzi, who is also canine handler to Siggy, QCC’s community resource dog. “Siggy has made a positive impact on our college community and now we are paying it forward by helping support other pet owners in need.”

CMDART is taking applications for volunteers across Central Mass and for those who may want to learn about emergency animal sheltering to help with disasters.

“When the world is full of stress as it is now, the coming together of people who care demonstrates a small positive impact we can make. CMDART was very glad to help mediate this transport to help animals and pet owners impacted in the South,” said JoAnn Griffin, president and team lead of CMDART.

DA earns award for efforts to prevent distracted driving

BY KEVIN FLANDERS
STAFF WRITER

REGION — Worcester County District Attorney Joseph Early, Jr., recently received an award for helping to prevent distracted driving.

AAA Northeast presented DA Early with a Traffic Safety Hero Award during a ceremony held last month. The award recognizes Early’s efforts through multiple initiatives to reduce incidents of distracted driving.

Among the DA’s most effective programs this year is the “Eyes Up, Phones Down” campaign.

Launched in March, the campaign is supported by several community, state, and regional partners. These include AAA Northeast, the Massachusetts Registry of Motor Vehicles, the Massachusetts Department of Transportation, the City of Worcester, the Worcester Police Department, the Safe Roads Alliance, and WalkBike Worcester.

“I am so thankful to AAA for this recognition and for being a partner in our mission of prevention. This award really reflects the efforts of a lot of good people with a passion to make our roads safer,” Early said. “They play an essential role in this campaign. Together, all of us are working to prevent traffic deaths and serious motor vehicle crashes.”

The Eyes Up, Phones Down campaign specifically encourages drivers to activate the “Do Not Disturb” feature on their cell phones, which mutes notifications while driving. The goal of the campaign is for residents to avoid distracted driving and help reduce crashes.

Additionally, the campaign utilizes a variety of public education tools, including social media postings, educational pamphlets, and presentations to driving school students.

AAA Northeast hosts an annual Community Safety Traffic Awards ceremony, during which the organization not only recognizes Traffic Safety Heroes, but also local police departments and individual officers or school crossing guards for their safety efforts each year.

This year, 18 police departments and 23 individuals in Massachusetts received awards.

AAA Northeast leaders thank the DA’s Office for its efforts in increasing road and pedestrian safety.

“All of us who care about making the roads safer for all road users know that we can accomplish much more when we work together. The Eyes Up, Phones Down campaign proved to be a great stakeholder partnership, and we commend District Attorney Early for his leadership on the distracted driving issue,” said Mary Maguire, the vice president of public affairs at AAA Northeast.

Embracing the shift: Falling back to a cozier season

As the clocks roll back an hour and daylight slips away a bit sooner, it's easy to feel the initial sting of losing those precious evening rays. The transition to shorter days and longer nights can be tough—our routines are thrown off, the dark arrives before dinner, and it feels like our world has shrunk just a little. But while that initial adjustment can feel jarring, there's an opportunity in this seasonal shift to lean into something more comforting and cozier.

When we fall back, we enter a season that invites us to slow down and settle in. The crisp, cool air outside becomes a reason to pull out our favorite sweaters, gather around fires, and sip on warm drinks that taste like nostalgia. It's a time when neighborhoods start to glow with holiday lights, and homes become filled with the sounds of friends and family reconnecting over shared meals and laughter.

For those who thrive on outdoor adventure, the shift also marks the beginning of snow sports season. The first snowfalls dust the world in white, creating a canvas that catches the sunlight and transforms the simplest landscapes into scenes of breathtaking beauty. Whether you're skiing down a mountain, sledding with the kids, or taking a quiet walk as snowflakes fall around you, there's something undeniably magical about embracing winter's gifts.

And while the early nights may initially feel like a loss, they can also be an invitation. An invitation to slower evenings at home, wrapped in blankets, breathing in the cool, refreshing air as it seeps through the window. An invitation to more time spent catching up with loved ones, sharing stories, and building up the excitement for the holidays ahead.

Adjusting to the time change isn't always seamless, but soon enough, we settle into this season and realize it's not so bad after all. It's the season of comfort, of gathering, and of finding joy in the simple things. So, as we turn the clocks back and brace for the darker evenings, let's remember to also turn our focus to the light—whether it's in the glow of holiday decorations, the sparkle of snow under the sun, or the warmth shared with those we love.

Tiffany Studios and Tiffany & Company

ANTIQUES, COLLECTIBLES
WAYNE TUISKULA

One of the most knowledgeable antique dealers I've worked with used to call Tiffany "the magic word." The Tiffany name coupled with the quality and craftsmanship of their pieces commands a premium.

Tiffany's history dates back nearly 200 years. Their website states that Charles Lewis Tiffany and John B. Young opened a "stationery and fancy goods" store with a $1,000 advance from Tiffany's father. The shop opened at 259 Broadway in New York and focused on "American style" goods that differed from the styles of the day in Europe. In 1845, the Tiffany & Co. Blue Book became the first direct-mail catalog, offering jewelry and accessories to those who couldn't travel to the New York store.

Tiffany's silverware designs earned them a bronze medal at the 1867 Paris Exposition. At the turn of the 20th century, they opened locations in London and Paris. They weren't only known for their silverware. In 1878, they showcased one of the largest and finest yellow diamonds at 128.54 carats with 82 facets.

Louis Comfort Tiffany took over the business in 1902 and formed Tiffany Studios and other offshoots of the main company. Tiffany & Company continued to produce silver and jewelry while Tiffany Studios produced Tiffany Lamps and stained glass. Louis Comfort Tiffany also produced bronze, glass, pottery and other functional and artistic pieces as Tiffany Studios and under different brands.

Tiffany Studios closed in 1932 while Tiffany & Company continued to run. Tiffany & Company produced china for White House dinners, military medals, and sports trophies. Their jewels have been worn by famous women including Jacqueline Kennedy Onassis and Elizabeth Taylor. Tiffany & Company still runs their landmark store on 5th Avenue in New York City. You can even order breakfast at Tiffany's in their Blue Box Café.

As you would expect, the quality and beauty of Tiffany pieces continues to make them popular with collectors. In one of our auctions last month, we sold a group of Tiffany bronze and glass desk accessories that brought $1,200. We also sold a Tiffany "Olympian" pattern sterling silver flatware set for $3,500. An antique Tiffany 18 karat gold necklace with tourmaline stones brought $23,000.

Stained glass pieces have also fetched some amazing prices at auction. "The Danner Memorial" window made by Tiffany Studios from the First Baptist Church in Canton, Ohio, sold for a little under $2 million in 2000. A one-of-a-kind Tiffany stained glass and bronze lamp that was exhibited at the Exposition Universelle in Paris in 1900 and at the 1901 Pan-American Exposition in Buffalo, N.Y., went to auction in 2021. It lit up the auction hall and the bidder's home when it sold for $3.7 million in 2021.

We have some specialty auctions coming up including a major collection of Civil War memorabilia and a collection of memorabilia of some Hollywood legends. As always, we continue to accept consignments of fine jewelry, sterling silver, paintings by well-known artists, advertising signs, coins, old comic books and baseball cards, and almost any other valuable antique or vintage item for future auctions. Please visit our Web site, <https://centralmassauctions.com>, for links to upcoming events.

Happy Election Week

We stand at the crossroads of another chapter in our nation's story. The act of voting, an honor hard-won and cherished, reflects our journey from a small group of colonies to a mighty republic, constantly tested and reshaped by the hands of its people.

It all began in 1775 with a small group of determined colonists who risked everything for self-governance. Visionaries like George Washington, Thomas Jefferson, and Benjamin Franklin knew that independence from Britain was only the start. They would go on to craft a nation based on untested ideals of liberty, rallying under the Declaration of Independence—a declaration of rights for all who would call themselves American, even if America's early reality fell far short of this lofty vision.

We faced immediate and daunting challenges. As westward expansion continued, conflicts erupted between settlers and Indigenous tribes.

Tragically, Native American nations were forced from their lands, often with devastating consequences that continue today, reminding us of promises not kept and wrongs that still echo through our history.

Even as America grew, another dark shadow loomed: the institution of slavery. By the 1800s, slavery was entrenched in American life, particularly in the South, where millions of people lived in bondage. Abolitionists like Frederick Douglass, Sojourner Truth, and Harriet Tubman risked their lives to challenge this brutal institution. Their courage would be a rallying cry for the Civil War, a four-year battle that tore the nation apart. Yet, under the leadership of Abraham Lincoln, the Union's victory brought freedom to enslaved people and solidified the principle that "all men are created equal."

The fight for freedom did not end there. The women's suffrage movement took hold in the late 19th century, as Susan B. Anthony, Elizabeth Cady Stanton, and countless others pushed for equal rights. Decades of relentless advocacy finally succeeded with the passage of the 19th Amendment in 1920, granting women the right to vote and affirming that America's promise of freedom extended to all citizens.

Just when we seemed to be on a path of unity, the world was thrown into chaos. World War I and later World War II. Veterans of those wars, like Dwight D. Eisenhower and George S. Patton, returned as heroes, their courage reinforcing America's role as a beacon of freedom, yet even as our soldiers fought for liberty abroad, Americans at home wrestled with deep issues of justice and equality.

The Civil Rights Movement of the 1960s marked a new era of change, challenging systems of segregation and discrimination. Leaders like Martin Luther King Jr., Rosa Parks, and John Lewis reminded the nation that "freedom for all" meant just that—for every race, creed, and color.

They pushed America toward the promises written into its founding documents through marches, sit-ins, and speeches, which led to legislative milestones like the Civil Rights Act and the Voting Rights Act, which continue to protect and empower citizens today.

Since then, we've faced significant challenges and times of turmoil—from

Cutting spending can help boost retirement savings

NIELSEN

Like most of us, you may someday want to enjoy a comfortable retirement. Your ability to achieve this goal will depend on how much you save — but it also matters how much you spend.

And saving and spending are certainly related: The more you can reduce your spending, the more money you could have available to save for retirement through your IRA and your 401(k) or other employer-sponsored retirement plan. Over many years, even relatively small amounts diverted from spending to saving and investing could add up substantially.

How can you go about potentially reducing your spending? Here are a few suggestions:

Use a budgeting tool. If you're not already doing so, you might want to consider using a free online budgeting tool. Among other capabilities, these apps can place your spending in categories — groceries, travel, entertainment, and so on — which can reveal redundancies that, once eliminated, could save you money. For example, you might find that you're spending a not-insignificant amount on streaming services you rarely use. Or you might be surprised at how often you go the grocery store, rather than consolidating your visits and reducing the likelihood of "impulse" purchases.

Take advantage of employee benefits. If you work for a mid-size or large company, you may have an extensive employee benefit plan, which could include discounts on some products and services. Also, if you are enrolled in a high-deductible health plan through your employer, you might have access to a health savings account (HSA) or flexible spending account (FSA), either of which may let you lower your out-of-pocket health care costs by using pre-tax dollars to pay for deductibles, copayments, coinsurance and some other qualified expenses.

Shop around for insurance. To some extent, we are all creatures of habit, which can be good in some circumstances and not so good in others. In the "not so good" category, many people stick with their auto, homeowners and life insurance policies year after year, even though they might be able to save some money by switching to another company. But even if you stay with your current company, you might find ways to save money by taking steps such as adding a home security system. Check with your insurer to learn more.

Compare credit cards. There's a piece of financial advice that essentially says: "Pay cash for everything" — and this isn't a bad idea. Ideally, you might want to use a credit card strictly for items such as car rentals or hotel reservations, and you should pay off the bill each month to avoid interest charges. Sometimes, though, you may need to use your card for other purposes, and it may not always be possible to pay your bill in full. That's why you'll want to review credit cards periodically to find one with lower interest rates, a favorable balance transfer offer and a better rewards program.

It's not always easy to cut down on your spending, but when you do, it can provide more peace of mind — and an opportunity to boost your savings for what could be a long and active retirement.

Butternut Squash Recipes

TAKE THE HINT
KAREN TRAINOR

As the harvest season wraps up, farmers markets, local stands, and grocery stores are piled high with winter squash, with butternut being a top choice. Butternut squash is healthy, hearty, versatile, and delicious, so it's no surprise it's a seasonal favorite!

From savory soups to flavorful fries, this week's column highlights ways to enjoy the last of the season's finest!

Butternut Squash Bisque

This hearty recipe uses fresh butternut squash and apple cider for a blend of savory and sweet.

Ingredients: 1 tablespoon olive oil; ½ large onion, diced; ½ large carrot, diced; 1 stalk celery, diced; 1 pound butternut squash, peeled, seeded and diced; 2 sprigs fresh thyme, rinsed; 5 cups chicken stock or canned chicken broth; 2 cups apple cider; 2 cups heavy cream, or half cream half chicken stock (optional); Salt and black pepper, to taste.

Directions: Heat the oil in a large pot and sauté the onion, carrot, and celery until the carrot and celery are soft and the onion is translucent, about 5 minutes. Add the squash and thyme and sauté until all of the vegetables are coated with oil, about 2 minutes. Add the stock and the 2 cups of cider and simmer until the squash is very soft, about 30 minutes. Remove from heat. Puree the mixture, in small batches, in a blender on medium speed until smooth and well blended. Place the pureed mixture into another pot and stir in either the cream or stock to achieve the desired consistency. Add the salt and black pepper. Heat gently and serve.

Note: When heating this soup, be careful not to overcook it to retain its sweet and savory flavor.

Butternut Squash Fries

Ingredients: one medium butternut squash (chose squash with longer necks for more fries); 2 T olive or avocado oil; ½ teaspoon each salt and pepper.

Instructions: Preheat oven to 400 degrees. Line a cookie sheet with parchment paper.

Peel squash; cut into half, then cut into shorter strips to form fries. (If you have a crinkle cutter, even better!)

In a bowl, coat the squash strips with oil, salt and pepper. Place evenly on the cookie sheet.

Cook for 20 minutes, turn fries, and then cook for another 10 to 20 minutes, until browned and crispy. (Cooking time varies, depending upon how thick the squash is cut.)

Chinese Butternut Ravioli

This is a restaurant recipe shared years ago, and worth republishing. It's a seasonal treat that combines the flavors of fresh butternut squash and native maple syrup with an Asian twist. And it's so easy to prepare!

Ingredients: Butternut squash; butter; brown sugar; won ton wrappers; egg white; pure maple syrup.

Instructions: Mash and prepare butternut squash with butter and brown sugar as desired. Brush one side of won ton wrapper with egg white wash. Fill center of wrapper with squash and top with another wrapper (washed sides touching). Pinch edges to form a seal. Boil in water for three or more minutes until won tons are tender. Serve hot topped with warmed maple syrup.

This tip cuts prep time for butternut squash down to size!

I have an easy tip for prepping butternut squash. The squash is delicious, but it can be such a difficult thing to prepare. Here's a trick you can use to make that process easier. Just place the squash in the microwave for 2-3 minutes. Afterwards you'll see that the squash becomes much easier to seed, peel and cube.

Who knew? This reader's slow cooker method eliminates the hassle of peeling and cutting hard-as-a-rock butternut squash!

Here is my tip. Put the whole butternut squash right in the crockpot, add just a little water and cook it until soft. It comes out so good, I can even eat the skin. I wish my father knew this on all those holidays! Just scoop out the seeds in the middle, no peeling needed.

Grow healthier gardens with the help of a soil test

GARDEN MOMENTS
MELINDA MYERS

Soil is the foundation of a healthy garden, but let's be honest, most gardeners don't like spending time, energy, and money on it. It's more fun to show off pretty flowers or share tasty vegetables. But creating a healthy soil foundation will increase your growing success which means more beautiful flowers, larger harvests, and a healthier landscape to enjoy.

When creating a new lawn, landscape, or garden bed, begin with a soil test. Use soil testing to evaluate your fertilization practices and diagnose problems in existing lawns and gardens. Prioritize and spread out the cost by starting with new and struggling gardens or lawn areas. Then implement an ongoing testing schedule that tests one or two existing gardens each year. Testing lawns and gardens every few years can help improve their health while helping you avoid improper and overfertilization that can negatively impact your landscape and the environment.

Soil testing can be used to evaluate fertilization practices and diagnose problems in lawns and gardens.

A soil test report tells you what if any fertilizer is needed and what fertilizer is best to use for the plants you are growing. It also evaluates the soil pH, acidity, and alkalinity, advising you of any needed adjustments. Testing this before fertilizing or adjusting the soil pH can help avoid years of problems caused by applying too much or the wrong fertilizer, lime, sulfur, or other products.

You can take a soil sample for testing whenever the soil is not frozen, and you have not recently applied fertilizer. Fall is an excellent time as it allows you to implement the soil test results before the next growing season.

Contact your local or state University Extension Service to locate a qualified soil testing lab near you. Many have a state lab that provides this service for a fee while others provide lists of soil-testing labs in your area.

Take separate samples for each type of planting, garden bed, and if needed, lawn area. As you may have discovered, the soil can vary greatly from one place to another. Fill may have been added when the house was built, topsoil used to create planting beds, and other soil amendments incorporated that can impact your growing success. Taking a sample from individual planting beds, mixed borders, and the lawn provides better information on the existing conditions and what is needed for growing those types of plants.

SEND US YOUR NEWS!!!

news@stonebridgepress.news

Use a clean trowel and bucket to gather the soil sample. If needed, slide away mulch and remove a narrow slice of soil, four to six inches deep, where many plant roots grow.

Take several samples from the garden or lawn area you want to test. Collect samples from each edge and several throughout the middle of the bed or lawn area. Mix the samples together, place about a cup in a plastic bag, and send it to the soil testing lab. Allow several weeks for the test to be completed and the results returned.

Consider adding soil testing to your garden preparation and ongoing care. This investment will help you grow healthier, more productive, and more beautiful gardens and landscapes.

The horror takes over Main Street

SOUTHBRIDGE — “The horror, the horror!” isn’t just a line from “Heart of Darkness.” It also walked down Main Street last Thursday in innumerable forms, from lurching zombies and demons to Squidward and Mario Brothers. Even kings and cameras and various unidentifiable monsters joined this year’s shambling Horribles Parade.

Friends of Charlton Public Library host Quilt of Valor

CHARLTON — During the month of November in honor of Veterans Day, the Friends of Charlton Public Library will host a special “Quilt of Valor,” designed by local quilter and quilting teacher Emily (Mimi) Strack, who died on Sept. 9 following a lengthy battle with cancer.

Strack developed a passion for quilting after the birth of her first child and immersed herself in perfecting the craft. She designed numerous quilts in her inimitable creative style, earning acclaim from others in the quilting field. Strack also taught the art of quilting in community centers, quilt shops, and craft schools in Massachusetts and Vermont. She was often called upon to serve as judge in quilting shows due to her expertise and experience.

In addition to creating numerous quilts for Quilts of Valor, Strack made hundreds of unique quilts for the Mimi Strack's Quilt of Valor will be on display at the Charlton Public Library through the month of November.

Linus Project, which provides handmade blankets for children from 0-18 who are seriously ill, traumatized, or otherwise in need. Her designs often inspired many others.

In 2003, Catherine Roberts dreamed that quilts could heal the wounds of war and launched an organization that has awarded more than 400,000 quilts nationwide as of 2024. Machine or hand-quilted, a Quilt of Valor (QOV) is a quality quilt awarded to a service member or veteran who has been touched by war. The quilt expressly communicates a clear message: “Thank you for your service, sacrifice, and valor in serving our nation.”

To use the term Quilt of Valor, Quilts of Valor, or QOV, the quilt must meet specific size requirements and bear a label with required information. These quilts are not a gift but must be awarded to the individual and recorded with the national organization.

The local Quilt of Valor group meets on the last Sunday of each month at the Christ Episcopal Church hall, 1089 Stafford St., Rochdale, from 1 to 3 p.m. The group is open to all interested parties.

Election

foreign wars to September 11th and beyond.

Through it all, our strength has been found not in perfection but in a continued willingness to change and strive for a better future.

And here we are again, after a divisive election, with candidates on all sides calling for different paths forward.

We must remember that we are united by a shared love for our country and by the knowledge that, regardless of who sits in the Oval Office, the power rests with the people. We must uphold the ideals that have defined America: liberty, justice, and freedom for all.

So whether your candidate wins or loses, whether this election played out precisely as you'd hoped or not, we all have a role to play in moving forward. Our nation's history is built on debate, disagreement, and, ultimately, unity in the pursuit of freedom. That pursuit makes us the “shining city on a hill”—a place of hope, progress, and promise. Our light must never be extinguished.

Together, we can keep America strong, free, and fair—a place where all voices are heard and everyone, regardless of race, religion, or background, can pursue their dreams.

Happy Election Week, and may our love of country keep us united, now and always.

Historical Society to dig through history

SOUTHBRIDGE — Two new speakers will address the next Southbridge Historical Society meeting in place of the originally scheduled speaker.

Society member Steve Brady will update us on the status of the proposed Local Historic District encompassing the Downtown Southbridge area, and also the on-line map of the area being produced as part of the ongoing Mass. Office of Travel and Tourism initiative.

We will also hear from Society member Ray Petrelli about his decades-long passionate pursuit of buried 'treasure' by locating long forgotten dumps covered over by nature and digging for antique bottles and all kinds of other discarded items. These old dumps were mostly on private properties such as farms, in-town residential sites, and even municipal places like behind the former Main Street School, which also saw life as a district courthouse and police station.

The public is invited to this free program, which happens on Wednesday, Nov. 13 at 7 p.m. in the Ruth Wells Center for the Arts, 111 Main St.

Here's How It Works:

Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

Eva Glaser of Sturbridge presents at COPLAC conference

WILLIMANTIC, Conn. — Eastern Connecticut State University sent students from a broad range of disciplines to present at this year's Council of Public Liberal Arts Colleges (COPLAC) Northeast Regional Conference on Oct. 25 and 26 at the Massachusetts College of Liberal Arts in North Adams. Fifteen students from nine academic departments represented Eastern at the conference.

"Our students presented with poise and personality, engaging their audiences and showing off the wealth of opportunities Eastern provides for students to find their scholarly voices," said English Professor Allison Speicher, who served as faculty chaperone.

Among the students who presented was Eva Glaser of Sturbridge, a senior who majors in English and presented a project titled "Of Ghosts and Gates; Or, American Women Writers' Civil War Theologies."

Eastern Connecticut State University is the state of Connecticut's public liberal arts university, serving upwards of 4,000 students annually on its Willimantic campus. A residential campus offering 41 majors and 68 minors, Eastern offers students a strong liberal arts foundation grounded in a variety of applied learning opportunities. Ranked among the top 25 public institutions in the North by U.S. News & World Report in its 2024-25 Best Colleges ratings, Eastern has also been awarded 'Green Campus' status by the Princeton Review 14 years in a row. tistics show that more than 76 million people in the U.S. age 20 and older have high blood pressure. Of those, about 22 percent are unaware of their condition, 69 percent are receiving treatment and only 45 percent have their blood pressure controlled.

Delene Sarsfield of Charlton and Chalinant Desrosiers of Oxford were the recent PN student volunteers to report to the Charlton Senior Center.

Both are members of the PN Class of 2025. Both are Mental Health First Aid Certified, Dementia Care Certified and completed training in Domestic Violence.

She is employed at CareOne at Millbury as a CNA (since 2019) and was with Sterling Village at Sterling from 2008 to 2019.

She graduated from the Holy Name Central Catholic Jr/Sr High School in Worcester (2005). Sarsfield's long-term goal is to complete her practical nursing education, become an LPN (Licensed Practical Nurse), and bridge into an RN (Registered Nurse) program with her field of interest-hospice and palliative care nursing. She is a 2024 PCE (Program for Continuing Education) Grant recipient from P.E.O. International (Philanthropic Educational Organization, www.peointernational.org) Sarsfield was also newly elected as an officer of the UNICEF Club.

things. Last year, it spent $3.1 million, and she told the board to expect "a lot of vehicle purchases this year."

Dowling said she feels free cash should only be used for "non-recurring or emergency expenditures" or to reduce the tax rate. For years, she said, Sturbridge used $200-300,000 annually to do the latter, but hasn't in a few years and she'd like to see that resume.

Grimm noted that would be up to the board to set such a policy. Barry said the last few years, the town has spent the amount of free cash it had in excess of the highest reserve percentage.

Jamie Goodwin noted many towns use reserves to improve their bond ratings, but "things are much more expensive right now" and Sturbridge shouldn't just "rely on its bond rating." Dowling said the town's bond rating is probably already the highest it can be, given Sturbridge's size.

"Given the scale of the town and the cost of everything, the recommendations look pretty logical to me," he added.

Schools

table classrooms and/or a temporary building. Among them are needs for bathrooms in Eastford classrooms, meeting classroom area standards, and rearranging various spaces now being used for things they weren't intended for. They noted Eastford is "the only one that's undersized" while the others are "much larger than what is required."

Hill noted any project would take years, especially if Southbridge goes through the Mass School Building Authority aid process, but nobody was sure how long. MSBA breaks projects into "modules," and would require its own feasibility study of various options, hiring an owner's project manager, creating a Building Committee, and various other things. They said they think MSBA would cover about half the cost, but it paid 80+ percent of the middle/high school 10 years ago.

Abdelmasih noted option 2 would require finding new land. Some town officials noted Southbridge has such land – the Palmerino property, which was deeded for educational use. Scott Lazo said it was considered years ago as a potential site for a "three-pod" elementary school, but that never happened. Instead, the middle/high school went up on Torrey Road.

Looking at options 2 and 3, Steve Kelly asked them "Were you assuming the student population would remain stagnant" or grow? Hill said it was based on last year's numbers and the ongoing downward trend, but they didn't analyze it based on projected birth rates going forward.

Citing the receiver's previously stated worry about a "catastrophic failure" potentially shutting down a school, George Chenier asked when they thought that might happen. Shaw said they found "imminent safety concerns" all of which would be likely "within a 10-year time frame," but they expected "a major failure of some system before that."

To Chenier, a "catastrophic event" means one that's "life-threatening today," based on his firefighting background. He said he wants a clearer idea of "what could happen sooner rather than later."

Receiver Jeff Villar said he sees those risks as being losing heat, getting major leaks, having a fuel system failure, or something similar that could shut down a building, especially in winter.

Mike Montigny noted their projection called for $133 million in repairs over the next five years. And about nine years to build a school. Nobody mentioned this at the meeting, but the latter is quite likely; Bartlett in Webster has taken nearly that long so far to work through the MSBA process, including a couple failed ballot votes before being approved and starting construction last year.

Shaw said the town could accelerate the process, but would probably forego MSBA aid doing that. Also, he noted the state probably would not provide funds for both repair and major renovation/construction at the same time.

Villar said the town might get 65-70 percent from MSBA, but would have to "meet their very specific requirements." One key issue in just doing a repair is whether the work would trigger state law requiring the entire building be brought up to current code. By state standards, repairs and new buildings should last 30 years, he added.

Now, the schools get about $300,000 a year in local capital funds, most of it going to repair work. But the West Street flooding cost $1 million, Villar said.

Andrew Murch said he felt the presentation "gives you a better understanding of what we have to deal with overall." He noted the numbers they cite are from last year, and have already inflated.

To him, the work needs to be done, in part because the buildings "are pushing 100 years old." Noting the fire station project "barely passed," he said he hopes the schools don't get delayed as long as that did.

Lazo agreed, saying, "When you have these problems, the landlord [the town] has to step up" and fix them. If Southbridge opts to sell any building, "you have to sell them in some sort of good condition," so even those will need repairs.

"The taxpayer has to know we're going to be very frugal," he added, but noted the total bill will not be cheap.

"I don't know how much more the taxpayers of Southbridge can take," Mike Marketti responded later, noting town officials just got this report and need time to study it.

While observing he "woke up fresh and blood this morning; I'm not made of money," Murch said he feels funding projects like this are "what we do for the town we live in."

The presentation is available online at <https://4.files.edl.io/dad2/10/29/24/142219-dbb618f9-5690-4ecc-89d4-fb4702d2855c.pdf>

keeping its current status, those who want statehood, and those who seek independence. Because Puerto Ricans are American citizens, people have flowed fairly easily between the mainland and the island for work, family and other connections. They started coming to Southbridge in significant numbers in the 1960s and '70s.

Some of that background is in local historian Robert Brown's "The New New Englanders," which Rivas said was the first book in which she saw the Puerto Rican community depicted. She also credits him with "show[ing] me someone like me could be a writer;" Rivas later became a local reporter (for this newspaper) and is now an educator at Old Sturbridge Village.

"We are truly stronger together," Rivas added. "It's what makes America great."

Davila, who claims Afro-Latina ancestry, agreed, saying "You can't spell American without Rican."

She said the recent rhetoric "disrespects our families, ancestors, and all of us who work daily," but the Puerto Rican community "will continue to build up our people, our island, because that's who we are."

"Puerto Rico is a place of vibrant culture, resilience and beauty, a home full of love," she added.

To Davison, "It's still shocking to see so much hate in the world," so it's important to have events like this that "show how proud we are of our community."

"We want to be able to give voice to everyone in our community," Rivas later added. "That is the power we have. Let's not give it away."

Among the songs, dancing and Puerto Rican flag-waving, a few others also gave some brief comments, including candidates Jeanne Costello and Anthony Allard. But Rivas noted the event was "really just about unity. We're not trying to get political. It's especially about our students – we want them to know we support them."

She said the event was inspired in part by a similar rally in Worcester that drew several city councilors, school committee members and legislators.

Charlton Land Trust presents program on animal tracking

CHARLTON — A free illustrated public program on animal tracking will be presented by the Charlton Heritage Preservation Trust (CHPT) on Thursday, Nov. 21 at 7 p.m. in the Fellowship Hall of the Charlton Federated Church, 64 Main St., Charlton.

This program presented by Nick Wisniewski of Walnut Hill Tracking & Nature Center will highlight the skills of identifying animals by the tracks found on the ground, in the woods and meadows of Central New England, and in people's own backyards. These skills help our understanding of animal activities and their impacts on the ecology and environment of Central New England.

"We are pleased to offer public programs like this that help people understand the natural world around them," said CHPT president, Bill Blasius.

He further commented, "By doing so, we hope to inspire all people regardless of their background to explore nature on our hiking trails, or wherever they find it and to join us in preserving and maintaining open spaces in our community. We are also grateful for the Federated Church of Charlton who is donating the use of their building for this program."

Nick Wisniewski is a lifelong naturalist, photographer, and professional tracker. He was a long-term student and apprentice to master tracker Paul Rezendes, author of the acclaimed "Tracking and the Art of Seeing" (1992, revised 1999). He has taught the skills of animal tracking to hundreds of people through the nature school he founded in 2003, Walnut Hill Tracking and Nature Center. He has worked as a certified interpretive guide for the state of Massachusetts at Walden Pond, the site of Thoreau's experiment in living. He continues working as a park naturalist and guide for the state and continues running private programs throughout New England, helping people connect to nature through animal tracking and outdoor immersion activities.
